Reds Strike With Renewed Force

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese smashed into American bases with renewed fury today, hitting them with rockets, mortars and infantry assaults that caused serious casualties and losses of aircraft, vehicles and fuel.

In one of the heaviest series of blows since the opening of the spring offensive 27 nights ago, enemy rockets and mortars hit 65 allied bases and towns, and infantry assults ripped into three of the bases.

It was the largest number of attacks since last Friday, when 70 bases and towns were hit.

All of the enemy infantry attacks were on American bases along the northwest approaches to Saigon, between 31 and 51 miles from the capital. Twelve Americans were killed and 47 wounded, while known enemy losses were 38 dead, U.S. spokesmen said.

Ten of the Americans were killed and 28 were wounded in one attack on an artillery base.

Spokesmen said only five enemy bodies were found after an estimated 400 North Vietnamese attacked the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division's Fire Support Base White behind a 150-round mortar barrage. However, the Americans said many blood trails and drag marks were found, indicating the enemy took a number of wounded and dead with them when they pulled back toward the Cambodian border at daybreak.

The attack began shortly before 3 a.m. when mortars, bazooka-type rockets and small arms hit the American camp 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The 250 American troops called for help, hurriedly donned their gas masks as the North Vietnamese fired tear gas grenades, and turned the base's eight 105mm and 155mm guns on the enemy positions. Helicopter gunships fired rockets as one of the camp's a guns illuminated the enemy batteries with flares.

All the Americans killed were victims of the bombardment. Six were members of a mortar platoon trying to hit the enemy mortars. The other four were riflemen in a bunker that took a direct hit.

Two infantry assaults were made on the south and east sides of the base within 90 minutes, but they were small, officers said. Thirty enemy troops were repulsed in the first thrust, while 15 to 20 North Vietnamese failed to find an opening in the second assault.

Only 12 of the 28 Americans wounded had to be evacuated. The rest were treated and returned to duty.

The base is one of four artillery and patrol camps along the southern edge of the Viet Cong's War Zone which impede the enemy approach to Saigon from the northwest.

White Base is just north of the Michelin rubber plantation where more than 10,000 American troops and scores of tanks are trying to root out an estimated 7,500 North Vietnamese threatening Saigon. U.S. intelligence officers said the purpose of the attack on the base apparently was to tie down the artillery batteries while North Vietnamese troops tried to maneuver away from American ground forces closing on them.

AP photographer Horst Faas reported from the area that the bulk of the North Vietnamese believed to have been in the Michelin plantation area apparently had escaped to the north and east.

Only one major contact was reported today in the big U.S. counteroffensive, known as Operation Atlas Wedge. Troops of Col. George S. Patton's 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment and men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division fought a day-long battle 45 miles northwest of Saigon Thursday, and killed at least 72 North Vietnamese, U.S. headquarters said.

The North Vietnamese cut into Patton's tanks and armored personnel carriers with heavy small arms fire, machine guns and armor piercing rocket-grenades. The tanks replied with their 90mm cannon while the personnel carriers fired .50-caliber machine guns.

The headquarters said one American was killed and 12 wounded, but damage to the armored column was "light to moderate," meaning some tanks and personnel carriers were destroyed or damaged.

Military spokesmen said the big Atlas Wedge force now has killed about 300 of the enemy since the operation was launched Tuesday. About half a dozen Americans have been killed and about 55 wounded, they said.

In an attempt to catch the escaping enemy, more than 40 B52 bombers pounded the area north of the plantation with over 1,200 tons of explosives.

One shelling apparently seriously damaged the U.S. Marine air base at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, where several squadrons of figher-bombers are based.

Several rockets slammed into the base, and while U.S. Headquarters would not specify what damage was caused, it appeared that some planes were hit. Spokesmen said some Americans were wounded, but no one was killed.

Other targets included Da Nang Air Base, the biggest north of Saigon, the nearby Marine air station at Marble Mountain, no reported casualties or damage; a U.S. Army transportation base near Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, moderate damage and some Americans wounded; an American fuel storage depot near Qui Nhon, 260 miles northeast of Saigon, "light to moderate damage," and the headquarters of the U.S. 1st Marine Division at Da Nang, of the 4th Infantry Division in the central highlands and of the 1st Infantry Division, north of Saigon.

The U.S. Command also reported the loss of 11 more helicopters and a jet fighter-bomber. One helicopter and the jet were shot down Wednesday and Thursday in the northernmost provinces, killing two men and wounding five. Most of the other helicopters apparently were destroyed by enemy shelling in the past week.

The report raised aircraft losses from all causes in the Vietnam war to 2,452 helicopters and 2,615 fixed-wing planes, the U.S. Command said. sIn the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, six battalions of the U.S. 9th Ifantry Division killed about 80 Viet Cong in a widespread series of skirmishes. U.S. casualties were said to be light.

MRS. DOROTHY POWELL, a teacher in the Sikeston public schools for 20 years, was named "Woman of the Year" at the eleventh annual B&PW banquet held last night at the American Legion hall. The affair is sponsored by the Sikeston Business and Professional Women's club. Mrs. Powell was cited for her many years of service to the underprivileged children and her work in many organizations.

Piano Shipped to Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mahogany grand piano President Nixon is presenting to the Truman Library was a gift to the White House during the Franklin D. Roosevelt years.

A spokesman for the Steinway Piano Co. of New York, which gave the piano, said it was given to the executive mansion in 1937 at the request of Eleanor Roosevelt.

The piano was shipped to Missouri by the government so Nixon could make the presentation in Independence. Both he and former President Harry S. Truman play the piano.

No Contest for Seats

HOWARDVILLE -- No opponents filed against incumbents Tom Jennings and Jack White, aldermen of Wards One and Two, respectively, seeking re-election in the April 1 city election.

A proposition for an electrical franchise contract to Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi Rural Electric Co-op for a 10-year term with an option to renew for 10 years will be submitted for voter approval.

School Board Races Develop

NEW MADRID — A race has developed in the April 1 New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District election to elect two directors for three - year terms.

Incumbents Paul E. "Jack" Mahar, Marston, and James. R. "Bob" Blades, Parma, are being opposed by R. F. "Dick" Spitzer Jr. and Hoyt Butler, both of Parma.

Patrons also will be voting on a tax levy of $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation in addition to the amount allowed by law to make a total levy of $3 per $100 valuation.

Under the proposed tax levy Parma patrons will receive a 50 cent increase, Matthews 10 cents, and Higgerson, a $1.90 increase.

New Madrid and Lilbourn patrons' tax will remain the same, and Portageville taxpayers will realize a 25 cent reduction.

Two Races in Chaffee

CHAFFEE — With a filing deadline of 5 p.m. today, as of shortly before noon, there are only two races for city offices.

For alderman of ward one, R. R. Williams and George H. Oberman, have filed. Neither is an incumbent.

The second race will be for police judge, with incumbent Nathan Carle, being opposed by J. P. Arnold.

Unopposed aldermen races at this time are, Sally Wehmeyer, incumbent for ward two; Bob Kielhofner, incumbent for ward three; and William J. Pfefferkorn, incumbent for ward four.

Other city officers seeking reelection are: Iris Foley for city treasurer; and Charles Cunningham for city collector.

Chili Day Monday

Arrangements have been completed for the 11th annual Rotary Chili Day, Monday at the American Legion Hall on So. Kingshighway.

The proceeds will go for Rotary sponsored projects for the coming year.

Tickets are available from members, or can be obtained at the Daily Standard office.

Laird Pledges New War Course If Talks Fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird pledged today that if the Paris peace talks fail to end the conflict in Vietnam, "We will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct."

He did not say what that alternative would be.

Laird made that statement after Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., shifted the course of a Senate hearing away from the hotly contested antiballistic missile (ABM) system with a critique of Nixon administration handling of the Vietnam war.

Fulbright said the question of armaments and their control is linked with that of the Southeast Asian conflict.

"Isn't it possible, Mr. Secretary, to realize that we are not now and never have been winning this war?" he asked Laird.

"If this administration continues and escalates this war in Vietnam, it will soon be Mr. Nixon's war," the senator said.

"I would just like to say that this administration is committed to end the war in Vietnam," Laird said. "We are presently engaged in very important peace talks in Paris."

Then he declared:

"I want you to know that we are hopeful that we will be successful in the talks ... but if we are not successful, and we pray for success, I can assure you that we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct of that war."

Laird denied that the administration dropped the old Sentinel missile defense project because of public protests, insisting that the change came "because we have a better system."

On Vietnam, Laird said: "I do not believe that it serves this nation or the cause of peace in Southeast Asia any real good to carry on our negotiations in public at this time."

He said peace efforts are being made privately, as well as formally and publicly.

Fulbright remained critical and caustic. "I've heard this before and I accepted it before for a while," he said.

Laird said discussion of a shift from city defenses to the Safeguard system, President Nixon's plan to defend U.S. offensive nuclear bases with antiballistic missiles (ABM), was under way even before the public protests against deployment near Boston, Chicago and Seattle.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told Laird it appeared to him the protests had led to re-examination of the missile defense program and the shift to "a completely different mission."

Nixon Calls on Truman To Patch up Differences

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Nixon and Harry S. Truman repaired their longstanding breach today with Nixon delcaring that where the nation's strength is concerned, "We're not Republicans or Democrats—we are all Americans."

Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon the President visited the former chief executive at his home here. Truman and his wife awaited them on the front porch and exchanged cordial greetings before moving inside for some conversation.

Nixon beamed at the Trumans but the former President—who had severed relations with Nixon more than 16 years ago in a hassle over campaign oratory—looked sober as he greeted his visitors. He did bow low when shaking hands with Mrs. Nixon.

On the drive to Independence from Kansas City Municipal Airport, Nixon halted his motorcade twice to greet school children.

Outside Van Horn High School in Independence, Nixon climbed to the hood of his limousine and, using a battery-powered megaphone, told hundreds of students that 20 years ago—before they were born—he has supported Truman in the establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said his reunion visit with the former President demonstrated that where the nation's strength and security are involved, Republicans and Democrats join together.

"That's what this visit is all about," he said.

Moving on to the Truman Library to short ride from the family home, the two men walked in side by side, spent a few minutes in Truman's office and then came out into a reception room where the piano, the former president used at the White House was waiting.

Nixon had had it shipped out and in presenting it, Nixon again struck the theme, and Truman agreed, that where peace and defense are concerned there are no Democrats or Republicans - only Americans.

Truman said he appreciated what Nixon had done in getting the piano for the library but that he couldn't play it. Mrs. Truman asked Nixon to and he did - "The Missouri Waltz."

The Trumans went back home while the Nixons were taken on a tour of the library.

The piano was the unlikely peace symbol to end one of the nation's nastiest political feuds - the Truman-Nixon split.

Resisting Arrest Offense Brings $56 Fine, Sentence

A 30-day suspended jail sentence was revoked and an additional 10 days were assessed against John Joe Aycock, East Prairie, last night in City Court. He was charged with resisting arrest.

Judge James Sickal also imposed a $56 fine on the charge, and fined Aycock $21 for careless and imprudent driving.

The 30-day suspended jail sentence was pronounced against Aycock last year, pending good behavior for one year.

John Henry Stevenson, 303 Alabama, was fined $56 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence for assault.

Robert Franklin Henry, Sikeston, was fined $16 for disturbing the peace, and $12 for public intoxication.

Arthur Bernard, Watertown, N. Y., was fined $31 for carrying a concealed weapon, and $12 for public intoxication.

Jennie Harris, 227 Young, was fined $75 for petit larceny.

J. D. Rusisill, 309 South Scott, was fined $17 for careless and imprudent driving. Donald Ozment, 425 Maple, was fined $12 for the same offense.

A charge of trespassing against James E. Robinson, 230 Felker, was dropped upon payment of $6 court costs.

A careless and imprudent driving charge was dismissed against Paul E. Lomax, Matthews.

Gussie Murdock, 229 West Kathleen, forfeited a $7 bond when failing to appear to answer failure to have a city auto sticker charge. The same was done by Larry Lambert, 202 Marian, who was charged with he same offense.

A no city sticker charge against William Hennington, 101 Smith, was dismissed.

Several Hubcaps Stolen

Mrs. Jewel Blalack, route four, Sikeston, reported to police that someone stole four hubcaps from her automobile yesterday morning while it was parked on the parking lot at Two Tony's Restaurant. They were valued at $85.

Cline Ables, 1200 Ables Road, reported this morning that someone stole four hubcaps off his car last night while it was parked at his residence. They were valued at $62.

Robert Cooper and Curtis Jobe, both of Bertrand, reported last night that someone stole all four hubcaps off their cars that were parked at the skating rink. Cooper's caps are valued at $65. No estimate was made for the other caps.

Police reported that someone broke into a coin machine at the Kwiki Car Wash on Tanner Street last night and stole $6. The business is owned by John Felker.

Three Injured In Accidents

Three persons were injured in area highway accidents Thursday, two in Ripley county, and one in Stoddard county.

A 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Paul Smith Jr., 17, Doniphan, went out of control while rounding a curve, and went into a ditch.

The accident occurred Thursday afternoon on highway 142, three miles west of Naylor.

Injured was the driver with a back injury, and a passenger, Susan Smith, 16, Doniphan, who was treated at Ripley County Memorial hospital, for bruises.

Henry Baker, 65, Bloomfield, passenger in a 1953 Chevrolet, driven by Georga Hamil, 67, Dexter, suffered a broken left leg and cuts on his forehead, in an accident at 3:50 p.m. Thursday on highway 60, four miles west of Dexter.

The Hamil car was following too closely behind a 1958 Chevrolet, driven by Lola Marie Woods, 67, Dexter.

The Woods car made a right turn, and the Hamil car went into a ditch to avoid hitting the Hamil car.

Baker was taken to the Veterans hospital, Poplar Bluff.

Mrs. Dorothy Powell Is 'Woman of the Year'

Approximately 400 were present last night at the American Legion hall to see the "Woman of the Year" selection. Only a few short sentences of a biographical sketch were necessary before everyone recognized Mrs. Dorothy Powell, a teacher in the Sikeston public schools for 20 years. She teaches fourth grade at Lee Hunter Elementary School.

After introducing the former "Women of thyyear", Mrs. Dale White read a short history of the accomplishments of Mrs. Powell.

Mrs. Powell was cited for her work with the underprivileged children, her work with school children who required special attention, her charities to her neighbors, time taken to visit nursing homes and the sick, and her participation in many clubs and organizations. She has participated actively in the Order of the Eastern Star, Parent-Teachers Association Women's Division of Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Association for Social Welfare, Community Concert Association, Business and Professional Women's club, Council of Exceptional Teachers and the Sew and Chat club. She was the coordinator of the Sew and Chat club, organized to sew for the needy and to provide money for underprivileged children. She has worked in the local elections, cancer drives, Red Cross and UNICEF. A member of the First Christian church, she has taught Sunday school since she was 15 years old. She has opened her home to ministers, scouts, and students for weeks at a time. Because of her modesty, many of her efforts have gone unknown.

Mrs. Powell replaces Mrs. Burt Rowe, Sr., who was the 1968 "Woman of the Year".

Capt. H. S. Matthews Jr. was the guest speaker for the ceremonies. He spoke on his experiences with the young men under his command and the sacrifices that must be made to keep America free. He pointed out that freedom is never really free, that it must be guarded again and again. Noting the trends of some of the youth of this country, he denounced their lack of respect for laws and other people's rights. He spoke of the hippies with their "long hair hanging down their dirty backs," and felt that riots and campus rebellions should be squashed immediately.

Speaking of the navy and its purpose in the national defense, he called it the "over the horizon force", rarely seen but always there to stabilize world peace. He said it was difficult for the average citizen to understand or appreciate the role of our countries national defenses.

Capt. Matthews, commander officer of the U. S. S. Independence, concluded his speech with a presentation of a plaque to the B & PW club. He received a standing ovation.

Colonel Robert A. Dempster presented Mrs. Powell with a Distinguished Citizen Award on behalf of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Other honors bestowed upon Mrs. Powell were the Key to the City presented by Mayor Kendall Sikes, a gift certificate from Baugher's Studio, a charm from Mrs. Darrell Alcorn, and a silver bowl from Jack Hogan, president of Security National Bank. Mrs. Powell accepted the awards and gifts and said "I will try to live up to your expectations".

Mrs. Dale White announced the past women of the year and Mrs. Alcorn presented them with a rose. They were Mrs. Burt Rowe, Sr., 1968; Mrs. Keith Collins, 1967; Mrs. Franklin Struwe, 1966; Mrs. Earl Jarvis, 1965; Mrs. Violetta McGee, 1963; Mrs. Helen Reuber, 1962; Miss Electa O'Hara, 1961; Mrs. Joe McCord, 1960; and Mrs. Kenneth Smitten, 1959.

Others present were members of the B & PW clubs of Cape Girardeau, Caruthersville, Charleston, and Dexter.

Entertainment was furnished by the Sikeston high school Concert Choir, directed by Gordon Beaver, and Mrs. W. L. Clayton and Bob Williamson.

Mrs. Clayton closed the banquet with the navy hynm in honor of Capt. Matthews.

Spradling Supports Voting Machine Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill to modernize Missouri's ox cart election laws won preliminary approval in the Senate today. The voice vote was unanimous.

One feature of the bill allows fast growing areas to use simple electronic voting machines or any other type of voting machines to count the ballots.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said his county "is tremendously interested in this" to speed up the vote counting. He said a computer at Southeast Missouri State College coould be used to count the card punched by voters with a stylus.

"We would be able to count the vote in 15 minutes," he said, instead of waiting 26 or 28 hours as in the last election in some wards.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D - Columbia, indicated Boone County also is interested in the new types of machines. Clay County is the only one authorized to use them now.

The bill also sets poll opening and closing hours at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. The Senate defeated a move to make the opening time 6 a.m. Under the present law, rural areas keep the polls open until sundown when that is later than 7 p.m.

The bill was developed by a special Election Law Study Commission headed by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy.

He won Senate approval of another bill to extend the life of the commission another two years to study such things as counting absentee ballots with the regular ballots — a recommendation of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

One change in the proposed new law would do away with the practice of scratching "yes" or "no" to vote on constitutional amendments, school bond issues and other propositions before the voters, instead voters would mark an "X" in a box, as they do in voting for candidates.

An attempt to move the primary election date from August to June in another bill was pending when the bill was laid over before the Senate quit work until Monday.

The House advanced a bill that would let the teachers in a school district organize a union and negotiate wages and working conditions with the school board. They would be barred from striking to enforce their demands.

The House rejected an amendment that would have forced the school board to negotiate with the teachers union but retained the idea that they could negotiate. Any teacher who struck could be fired.

There was no discussion as the House advanced a bill making substantial increases in the benefits under workmen's compensation.

East Prairie Man Named to New Post

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - A Kansas Citian and a Mississippi County man were named to serve as members of state commissions Thursday by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
MARCH SUNRISE

Each sunrise is a miracle. In a universe that extends unknown billions of miles from our planet in its solar system, our small fleck of material turns on its axis and light replaces darkness. Since ancient days men have felt the wonder of a Supreme Being which governs life.

All life is regulated by profound rhythms. Seasons come and go in inexorable sequence; flowers bloom and their seeds fall to the soil to insure the continuance of species. Some of the rhythms are prolonged; some are brief. Such is the sequence of dawns and sunsets, days and nights.

A March sunrise is a moving experience. When night's black curtain begins to change to gray, fields and hills, meadows and mountains begin to emerge. As the sun lifts above the horizon, the color in the sky is a painting of reds and pinks, rose and amber. Then the light rays strike the landscape and begin to color the uplands.

He who has watched the colors deepen on a hillside at dawn has seen a picture more beautiful than any painted by the hand of man. For a piognant interlude, the greens of pines and hemlocks and the lacings of gray birches and beeches is a changing picture of blended, pastel hues.

Minute by minute the colors change as the sun lifts in its pathway. The hilltop golows with maroon and saffron hues; the deep hues of the evergreens are tinged with shades of pink and rose and, for a moment of eternity, the landscape is like a bouquet.

Here's a new and exciting way to have an auto accident. Try colliding with a bathtub or a Brahma bull.

This accident was actually reported in claims filed with one of the largest auto insurers in the country.

One honest motorist reported that Santa Claus landed on his car, leaving the top looking like a saucer.

The facts between the lines were that the claimant parked his car to watch Kris Kringle parachute from a helicopter. It was a Christmas promotion stunt. But he parked too close to the landing area.

Another claim of the type that takes the drudgery out of insurance company paper work told the story of two motorists who tried to kill the same rattlesnake. Intent upon the malevolent reptile, the drivers didn't notice each other until their cars collided.

Here's another one, and the moral is, "Never lend your car to friends with aggressive tendencies." One man who did learned later that his friend, obviously oblivious to the fact that the car he was driving belonged to someone else, intentionally crashed it into 11 moving vehicles.

Pulling up alongside a car, he would roll down his window and yell, "Now it's your turn." He then would ram the other car, producing a scene reminiscent of a battle between bull elks during the mating season.

If you're wondering about that collision with a bathtub, it happened when the tub fell off a truck.

The Brahma bull escaped from a cattle truck and promptly charged the nearest rubber-tired bull. Its driver tromped down on his brakes -- and got a car in the trunk. The bull missed him, though.

All of which goes to prove that if you work for an insurance company and a policyholder tells a story that sounds ridiculous, don't laugh - it probably happened.

HOW THE UN PURCHASED A WHIRLWIND

Fevered and fitful, it passed a resolution concerning South West Africa. Now there are second thoughts.

In championing the rights of their brethern, the black African nations and the UN have bought themselves a whirlwind in the desert of South West Africa.

Yielding to demands of black African countries, the UN voted to terminate South Africa's mandate over South West declaring the giant desert territory "a direct responsibility of the United Nations."

Pressure to end the mandate grew from black African bitterness over the segregation or "apartheid policy" of South Africa's white government. The UN action flies in the face of a recent decision of the World Court, the judicial arm of the UN, which ruled that two African nations, Liberia and Ethiopia, had no legal grounds to bring the suit to set aside the mandate which was issued by the League of Nations. Only the League can do that, and it has gone out of business.

Overlooked were several matters germane to any plane to bring South Africa to its knees:

-South Africa has possession and will not willingly give it up. The African states which made an issue of the matter would like to use force but, recognizing South Africa's strength, had to resort to an amendment calling for a committee to study the situation and recommend ways of assuming the mandate.

-Although South West Africa is rich in potential, it exists almost entirely on its subsidy from South Africa.

-Britain is unlikely to back suggested sanctions against South Africa, for the best of reasons: it cannot afford to do so. It has the tidy sum of $3 billion invested in South Africa plus an annual trade advantage of about $150 million a year - a rather important item to consider when your Pound Sterling has a severe case of anemia.

The UN also leaped before it looked at the cost of its S. W. Africadventure. South Africa is pouring $200 million a year into its mandate - millions more than the entire administrative budget of the UN, which is up to its collective neck in debt. Should the UN take over the administration of South West Africa, it will have to take over financing too - a further burden on it and its principal supporter, the American taxpayer.

South Africa would probably quit the UN before giving in, and there is feeling that this move may not be very far away. Portugal, with its African territories of Angola and Mozambique, might follow. And would Rhodesia, which isn't a UN member, support the desertions?

The offended architects of the resolution are not in a position to fight a war. Neither is the U. S., for various national and international reasons. Nor is Britain which is having enough trouble with Rhodesia and a sick economy.

All in all, this last hope of peace, the UN, has stirred up the peace and bought a lot of trouble with its resolution.

MARCH'S UNCERTAIN TRUMPET FOR SPRING

March is here, and the temptation is strong to sing of spring.

The birds already are doing it. In the Austrian pine, the cardinal lifts his bell-like tenor at dawn. In the distance is heard the plaintive rain - crow call of the bluy jay. A starling on the lawn utters his surprising imitation of a bobwhite.

The buds of the magnolia tree still are tightly wrapped against winter, but the branches are alive as a pair of chickadees flits among them in perpetual excitement. And the crocuses under the south window, which a week ago were afraid to open their cloaks, now spread yellow robes over the litter of their winter mulch.

On days such as those which began our March, it is easy to be carried away with optimism. The sun rises, not in the stormy glory of exciting colors, but in a gentle rosy glow that spreads around the horizon. It illuminates a sky which often is a dome of blue - not the brittle blue of winter, but a softer shade. Clouds, when they come, are cotton puffs.

Such are the pleasant days of early spring - or, if you insist on the astronomical reckoning of seasons, late winter. In them men can plow fields and plant potatoes or, if they are of another bent, while away pleasant hours on the golf course. And if they prefer winter, there is still plenty of snow on the ski slopes of the Rockies.

Which reminds us that winter can, and probably will, play a return engagement in the Mid West, sweeping out of the north and out of the mountains with a great flourish of white banners. March, having come in like a lamb, can be expected to go out like a lion, if we accept the old saying. Modern meteorologists write it off as inaccurate; and indeed it is. But it conveys a warning that is true enough: March at some time, in our Mid-West, will book winter for what we may hope with some assurance will be his farewell appearance of the season.

There is an obvious lesson in this, and as men have been drawing morals from nature since the days of Aesop, we might as well point it out. Troubled days follow good ones with cruel certainity in our world. And if we are wise we will, while enjoying the good times, build up reserves of spirit as well as of material things to cope with hours of adversity.

In recent years, the idea of taking personal thought for the morrow has been discouraged by a rush of government measures to assure material sufficiency. But the good life calls for more; and there is no government subsidy for the human spirit.

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you been embarrassed lately by mistaking a him for a her, or a her for a him?

Well, don't let it worry you. It's happening to everybody. Such mixups are quite normal, considering how much alike the two sexes think, talk, dress, act and look today.

It all started some years ago when the boys started imitating the girls. Now it is somewhat difficult to be sure who is imitating whom.

However, despite the present complexity of the problem, it is still possible for a careful student of human behavior to determine the sex of most of those he meets. There are always tipoffs of one kind or another.

Here are a few hints to guide the puzzled:

If it can hang by its heels from a playground iron bar, it's a boy. If it likes someone else to carry its books home from school, it's a girl.

Does it wear an itty-bitty watch surrounded by diamond chips? That's a young lady. Does it wear a larger watch with a metal or leather band? That's a young man..

If it can sew on a button without sticking the needle into its fingers, it's a woman. If it complains about how tired it is from sowing wild oats, it's a man.

So it like a tuna fish or peanut butter and jelly sandwich for lunch? Chances are it's feminine. Would it rather have a ham and egg sandwich? Chances are it's masculine.

Does it rush out to the icebox to get a cold beer at every third commercial on a television program? That's the papa. Does it simply murmur acidly, "Sooner or later you're going to turn into a beer can"? That's the mama.

Choice of words is sometimes an indication. If it says it's going to work, it's a Joe. If, preferring to employ a euphemism, it says it "goes to business,' it's a career Jane.

If it likes to gossip with its hairdresser while getting its tresses trimmed, it's a girl. If it closes its eyes and dozes the moment it sits down in a barber chair, it's a guy.

Does it count the years, months, days, hours and minutes until it will be able to retire? That's grandpa. Does it say in exasperation, "You know you'd never be happy just sitting around the house doing nothing?" Thats grandma.

RADICAL ON COMMISSION STAFF

Earlier this year the White House Commission on Violence was appointed to investigate the breakdown of law and order in our country. It is well-known that the staff of the commission will do most of the actual research and write most of the final report.

Staff members, therefore, should be individuals who can be trusted to make objective investigations into this serious probem. Yet one of the key members of the staff is a professor of the University of California at Berkeley, who regards violence as a sometimes permissible way of solving problems in our country.

Jerome Skolnick is co-director of the Commission's Task Force on Violent Aspects of Demonstrations and Protests. He can speak on violent demonstrations from first-hand knowledge since he has participated in several of them.

Skolnick is a member of the Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. In this group, according to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, communists play the "dominant role."

Skolnick's attitude toward violence is clearly stated in his published writings. He has said that it is "increasingly difficult to draw a line between crime and political activity," and adds that an individual who burns down a department store may be engaged in "heroism." He has sanctioned "the violence revolutionary act" as a means of bringing about change.

Attitudes such as these have helped produce the atmosphere of violence in our country. If the Commission on Violence is to find meaningful solutions to the problem, it must hire investigators who are not themselves contributing to it. HLH

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Nixon campaign got millions through Agnew promise to block cheap New England oil; secretary Stans now pays off oil barons by "no action" strategy re Machiasport, HHH turned down same secret deal, got peanuts

WASHINGTON--This column has now dug out the details of a pre-election deal between the Texas oil barons and Vice President Spiro Agnew.

The oilmen met with Agnew last October 21 at the plus petroleum club in Midland, Tex., to discuss campaign finances. In return for their contributions they wanted Agnew's word that the Nixon administration would block occidental petroleum fr- building a $145 million oil refinery, storage complex and deepwater port at Machiasport, Me.

Under the proposal, Machiasport would be declared a "Foreign Trade Zone," which would permit occidental to import foreign oil free of the normal customs and trade restrictions. This could open New England to a flood of cheaper, low-pollutant fuel oil, which would undercut the rigged prices that the oil companies now charge for imported oil.

Agnew not only gave his secret pledge to the Texas oil crowd, but he has now reminded Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans of this commitment to block the Machiasport project.

Stans, an investment banker and big-game hunter who once shot a Bongo in the Congo, was the chief fund raiser for the Nixon campaign. He persuaded Agnew to attend the Petroleum club meeting and to put the arm on the fat cats. Approximately 20 oilmen showed up, including representatives of the major oil companies. Notes taken by one of the participants have been made available to this column.

-"Machiasport Is Dead"-

Shortly after 6 p.m., John Hurd, the Texas finance chairman for the Nixon campaign, began his pitch.

"I have good news for you," he told the assembled oilmen. "I have talked directly to Mr. Agnew. He has assured me that the occidental effort at Machiasport is dead. If he and Nixon are successful, there will be no refinery."

As an after thought, he blurted: "I hope there are no occidental people here."

"There sure are," spoke up Walter Davis, an occidental Vice President. A few minutes later, Agnew appeared and confirmed what Hurd had said.

"I assure you," he promised, "That any gimmick to get a refinery a t Machiasport will be killed."

Earlier, Hubert Humphrey had met with the same fat cats and had scrupulosly declined to oppose the Machiasport foreign trade zone. As a result, the oil barons cut off Humphrey with no more than token contributions but raised millions for the Nixon-Agnew campaign.

A foreign trade zone, though physically located in the United States, is considered for trade purposes to be outside the country. If Machiasport should be granted this status, occidental could bring in foreign oil for $1.25 to $1.46 a barrel less than the cost of domestic crude oil, currently $3.20 to $3.50 a barrel at Dallas.

-$300 Million Windfall-

Other oil importers pocket the difference, hich adds up to a staggering sum each year. On the East Coast alone, this windfall surpasses $300 million a year. Ye t not one cent of this has been passed along to the consumers.

In contrast, occidental has offered to slash prices both to civilian consumers and the Armed Forces. This almost surely would compel the other oil companies to give up part of their windfall, too. Result: All the other oil companies have ganged up angrily to block the occidental proposal.

Shell oil, for example, bitterly charged that occidental's windfall in imported crude oil would reach $65 million in the first full year of the Machiasport operation. Looked at another way, this was a startling admissi- from Shell that the import pr- m is a tremendous Bonanza for companies fortunate enough to have oil import quotas.

Approval of the occidental deal is supposed to come from the Secretaries of Commerce, Treasury and Defense who, together, comprise the foreign trade zones board. In the past, their alternates have made the decisions, which have been ratified routinely by the busy cabinet officers over the phone.

The alternates, acting on the merits, voted a few weeks ago in favor of establishing a foreign trade zone at Machiasport. The oil tycoons immediately got hold of Agnew and reminded him of his October 21 pledge. True to his word, Agnew spoke to Stans who, as Commerce Secretary, is chairman of the foreign trade zones board.

Instead of accepting the decision of the alternates, Stans called an unprecedented meeting of the board. For the board to overrule the alternates, however, would have caused some awkward publicity. So the last minute, Stans called off the meeting and deferred the decision. It now looks as if he intends to block the Machiasport project simply by taking no action at all.

Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy--Thanks for putting us straight on the fact that you are now a Democrat, not a Republican. The error was due to our linking you with your father, a strong Republican when he occupied your position in the State Department, and did not take into consideration, we should have, the fact that you are now married to a lovely Democrat, Eleanor Acheson, and that women's views do prevail.

New Grand Old Party: Reuther Comes To The White House

Washington, D.C.: - Men are of many kinds politically, philosophically and religiously. And Richard Nixon believes their differences should not prevent their praying together. In this spirit, the President invited the iconoclastic Walter Reuther to worship services in the White House East Room last Sunday.

In view of Mr. Nixon's recent forgiving and recent eclecticism, this surprised a few friends of the President but did not startle them. Mr. Nixon has of late been more consensus conscious than even his predecessor.

But what did surprise those who know the militant auto union le- r was that he came. He lis- ned. He sat with other worshipers, not too many chairs from Gen. Westmoreland and university president Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, as the Rev. Louis H. Evans Jr. of the LaJolla (Calif.) Presbyterian Church conducted the services that morning.

Those who know Walter Reuther well were doubly startled. For they know the auto union leader as an agnostic "with sympathies," if I can steal a line from Somerset Maugham.

But come he did. And worship he did, in the home of the man whom he has fought so bitterly for so many years.

For Mr. Reuther, this visit is a most unusual gesture of reconciliation. He is virtually a total political man. His followers will take sharp note of his action. To him and to them this is no mere visit. He did not come to dine at some formal state function. He came to a man's home on a Sunday morning for prayers and a sermon.

This will not, of course, shake the faith of Mr. Reuther's beared colleague. West Coast UAW regional chief Paul Schrade, now building a new Democratic party coalition which hopes Edward Kennedy will lead it to the presidency once again. Nor will Mr. Reuther's even slight sign of empathy for Mr. Nixon deter those many auto union officials who will not shed their loyalty and devotion to Hubert Humphrey.

But the invitation to Mr. Reuther to come and sit with cabinet members as well as scrub women, chauffeurs as well as Gridiron Club officials, as a representative of labor during Rev. Evans' discourse on ethics and morality, is not being overlooked in knowledgeable political circles.

A strange phenomenon is developing in Republican ranks. Slowly Richard Nixon is developing influence and acceptance in labor ranks on levels and in relationships not easily discernible to the public. This comes from far more than formal dialogues with labor men. It springs, for example, in part from a willingness to accept some union chiefs as intimately (and perhaps more so) as did Lyndon Johnson.

Racing parallel with this phenomenon is the developing coolness between some militant leaders and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller -- a mighty stubborn man when he believes himself to be on a principled course.

And not too many have paid much heed to the course he's now taking -- one which might have been expected of a preelection Richard Nixon.

Gov. Rockefeller believes there comes a point where you can't spend money you haven't got.

So in New York he's seeking to cut the behemoth budget by 5 per cent while raising the sales tax. After all the arithmetic is done, the state will still be short some $280 million.

Mr. Rockefeller has decided that the cuts must – among other items -- be made in welfare and medicaid.

There will be some trimming of the educational budget. But some cities, such as New York, still will get more than they did last year.

In addition, "Rocky" has pushed through a revised anti-public strike (Taylor) law. The growling in labor circles hasn't been a mere chorus of statements in public. There have been some furious confrontations. But Mr. Rockefeller doesn't budge when he believes he's right. Nor does he take pressure from his friends in or out of lab- not even from those he has hosted at cocktail parties in public halls or at private dinners under his surrealist art.

So Gov. Rockefeller slowly is losing some of his militant friends inside labor. Some simply are screaming. Some simply are drifting away. Some simply seek other alliances. Some, including those Mr. Rockefeller befriended during last year's stenchful 9-day garbage strike, are shifting to their old antagonist, Mayor John V. Lindsay, as he starts running for reelection.

It's fascinating to watch the remaking of images in the new Grand Old Party. And it's just the beginning.

The eleventh annual "Woman of the Year" banquet, sponsored by the Sikeston Business and Professional Women's club, was held last night at the American Legion hall. The women of the year from 1959 to 1968 were honored. The sales of All-America Rose Selections award winners have moved up from 10% of all roses sold in America in 1943 to over 40% of the market at the present time. It is estimated that well over 50,000,000 American families grow roses and rose sales amount to better than 55,000,000 units, valued at better than $150,000,000 per year.

4-H News

On March 17, the Oran Peppy Peppers were called to order by President Richard Welter, 4-H pledge, and Pledge of Allegiance were led by David Welter. Roll call and minutes of our last meeting were read by Donna Hicks.

Junior leadership turnout at New Hamburg was good, and those who went received recognition.

Project reports were given by their children. During the business session it was decided that something should be done to raise funds for our treasury. It was suggested that we have a party. The planning committee selected was Jolene Schlitt, Marion Tetly, Gary Hicks and David Welter.

Plans for 4-H Sunday (May 11) and National 4-H week (June 3-6) were made.

Our speaker this month was Gary Hicks. He reported on "The hazards of cigarette smoking."

Nominated for secretary were Cheri Schlitt, Jolene Schlitt, Donna Diebold, Cindy Dennis and Marion Tetly. Cheri Schlitt won the election.

After the business session we sang "I Love the Mountains" and "Daisy." We played Charades and had refreshments following adjournment.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City has the largest collection of art in the Western Hemisphere, says The World Almanac. It has over 365,000 works of art, a reference and research collection of more than 155,000 books and a periodical section with some 1,000 titles.

The Gospel Visitor

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER
The Church And Human Organizations
(Concluded)

In second Corinthians chapter five, verse seven, God says, "We walk by faith." Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the word of God, according to Romans ten verse seventeen. And according to Romans fourteen, twenty - three, whatsoever, is not of faith is sinful. Since God's word gives no authority, offers no testimony, to justify human institutions, they cannot be matters of faith for without hearing there is no faith and without faith we cannot walk by faith. (Read 2 John 9-11)

When the church today preaches the same gospel preached by the church of the New Testament, it will build only the church as it did then free from all human institutions and arrangements. There is no trace of their existence in New Testament scriptures to do any work of the church, therefore, there is no authority for them now. It would be interesting for someone to point out anything that God gave the church to do that cannot be done through the local congregations.

We have discussed in former articles the three works which God appointed the church to perform. We pointed out that each congregation is obligated to preach the gospel, help the needy, and to edify itself. Thus, let us set the record straight our position does not envolve a denial of the church doing any of the three works listed above. But rather, we defend the right for the church to do these so long as it is the church doing its work. The real issue is (1) The (church) sending to a (Missionary Society) to do (Evangelism) (2) The (church) sending to a (Benevolent institution) to o do (Ministering (3) The (church) sending to a (Edificational Society, School) to do (Edification) So what we oppose is not the work, but rather, the institution between the church and its work. And we will continue to oppose such institutions until someone gives scriptures which authorize them. We are willing to discuss these matters with anyone and stand "ready to give an answer to any one who ask the reason for our hope."

In view of the judgement to come and that we must all appear before Christ, to be judged by Him. (2 Cor. 5:10) As Paul said, "knowing the terror of the Lord we persuade men." We persuade men to give up all doctrines, commands, and traditions which originated with men and do all that God has said. Jesus said, "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." (Jno. 12:48) Does your practice conflict with the words of Christ? The judgement is coming!!! (We will have a gospel meeting at Vanduser beginning the 24th thru the 30th, we will be pleased to have you).

FROM PORTUGAL

LISTON (AP) — Portugal exported to European Free Trade Association (EFTA) countries 16,697 tons of canned fish worth $10.7 million in 1967.

Great Britain was the greatest buyer with 10,122 tons worth $6 million.

Although Portugal belongs to EFTA, the Common Market countries take 49 per cent of all exports of Portuguese canned fish and the partners in EFTA only 24 per cent.

West Germany is the country that buys the most canned fish from Portugal. Last year Germany bought 10,615 tons worth $7.3 million.

Relatives Make Poor Instructors

Dear Ann Landers: I could have kissed you when I read your answer to "Stymied Mother." You told her to get off Isabelle's back and I hope she listens.

I used to be a fat and unhappy 16-year-old and my mother nagged me just the way Stymied Mother is nagging Isabelle. The more my mother harped the more I ate. She sounded like a broken phonograph record and I hated it. I used to sneak food into my room to spite her.

One day my mother went to school at the request of the guidance counselor. I don't know what they talked about, but from that day on my mother never mentioned my weight.

Within six months I lost 35 pounds. I not only look like a different person but I feel like one. I have confidence, my grades are better and boys treat me like a girl instead of another guy. I hope every mother who bugs her daughter about being fat reads this and learns something. — 36-25-36.

Dear 36: I can't improve on your language so I'll simply repeat your well-chosen words. I hope every mother who bugs her daughter about being fat reads this and learns something.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 20-year-old gal who is flustered easily. When I'm ill at ease (which is often) my hands get ice cold and clammy as the dickens. This usually happens when I meet new people. I try to avoid shaking hands, which gives the impression I'm unfriendly. Help me, please. — DRIPPY MITTS

Dear Drippy: Have you tried an anti-perspirant? This is NOT the same as a deodorant. If the anti-perspirant doesn't work, wear white silk or nylon wrist-length gloves. Gloves will give you confidence, reduce your anxiety and diminish the clamminess.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks for advising that woman who signed herself "Stuck At Home" to learn how to drive. I'm sorry you didn't add, "But don't let a relative teach you." Here's my story:

After serving as a WAC in World War II, I returned to Los Angeles. I was scared out of my wits by the traffic, refused to ride in a car with friends and took a bus or walked everywhere.

I realized this was crazy, so I forced myself to enroll in a drivers' school. My brothers were furious. "Why spend money on school?" they screamed, when THEY could teach me. Sure they could. They could teach me to tailgate, run through yellow lights and get mad at every driver who passed me.

I kept on at the school. My teacher didn't swear at me. He didn't tear out his hair and make me feel like a hopeless idiot. I learned the parts of an automobile and the rules of the road. I made my mistakes on a dual-controlled car.

Today I am a competent driver and proud of myself. At this moment, however, I wish I'd paid as much attention to my typing instructor as my driving instructor, but typing is not a matter of life and death -- and driving is. — HELEN S.

Dear Helen: Your typing isn't that bad, honey. Thanks for a good letter.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

UCLA Coach Impressed by Purdue's Semifinal Spree

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — UCLA and Purdue meet Saturday for the national collegiate basketball title, but UCLA Coach John Wooden isn't banking on a repeat of the teams' season opener when UCLA beat Purdue 94-82.

That match was played at UCLA, and Wooden thinks Purdue is a vastly improved team.

The Bruin coach, seeking an unprecedented third straight NCAA title and the fifth in six years, was anything but complacent after UCLA held on for an 88-82 victory over stubborn Drake in the semifinals Thursday night.

Purdue gained the championship game with a convincing 92-65 win over North Carolina in the first semifinal.

"We'll have to play a lot better than we did tonight," Wooden said of a Bruin team that hit 56 per cent of its field goal shots, but committed 22 floor errors and technically won on free throws.

Referring to Purdue, Wooden added, "If they played all season like they played tonight, we wouldn't have beaten them last fall."

Purdue Coach George King was a little happier with his team's performance.

"I don't believe we were looking ahead to anyone tonight," King said.

But when questioned before the second game about the possibility of meeting UCLA, he said he would let his Boilermakers run with the Bruins just as they did in their first meeting.

"We like for a team to pressure us," he said, "so we can develop our running game."

And King added that Purdue has picked up more poise and togetherness in play throughout the season.

But King faces the same large problem he did earlier—UCLA's 7-foot-1½ Lew Alcindor proved his All-American ranking against Drake with 25 points and 21 rebounds.

"If we had Chuck Bavis," King said, "we probably would play them straight away. But since we don't ..." He wouldn't say just what Purdue might do.

Bavis is Purdue's 7-foot junior center who is out of tournament play with an injury.

Wooden's chief concern in meeting the Boilermakers is the guard duo of All-American Rick Mount and Bill Keller, who bombed the Tar Heel defense with their outside shooting.

Mount hit 14 of 28 field goal attempts and finished with 36 points. Keller connected on nine of 19 floor shots and wound up with 20.

"I don't think we can guard him (Mount) one-on-one," Wooden said, adding that "I've always been highly impressed with Keller."

Wooden also pointed to Boilermaker depth which he called better than UCLA's bench strength.

Temple, Boston College Bound Into NIT Final

NEW YORK (AP) — The Temple Owls, who tired of playing third fiddle in Philadelphia all basketball season, are playing perfectly in New York, and now only Boston College stands in their way of top billing in the National Invitation Tournament.

"I don't think we did a thing wrong all night—the perfect game," said Coach Harry Litwack of the overlooked Owls after they pulled away from Tennessee 63-58 in the semifinals Thursday night for their third straight upset.

Their perfect play came after Boston College, the first team picked for the NIT and the one that has received top billing, beat Army at its own control game 73-61.

The results left Temple and BC to play for all the marbles on national television Saturday at 2 p.m. EST, in Madison Square Garden. Army and Tennessee, the 1-2 defensive teams in the country, meet at noon for third place.

"You have to give the boys credit," Litwack said after the Owls, now 21-8, scored 10 straight points behind a press to turn a 49-44 deficit into a 54-49 lead.

"They've been getting second and third billing to LaSalle and Villanova all year in Philadelphia."

John Baum, Temple's 6-foot-5 jumping Jack, hit the final three points in that decisive 10-point run.

Before that, the Owls had dissipated an eight-point lead to only a 29-26 spread at halftime.

The lead changed nine times before Joe Cromer's two baskets for Temple tied the count at a 49 as the Owls began pressing.

Bill Strunk scored to put the Owls ahead to stay and Baum added his three points.

Eddie Mast of Temple finished with 24 points, 12 in the final half, and Cromer had 11 of his 15 after the intermission against Tennessee's 1-3-1 zone.

Bob Croft and reserve Rudy Kinard, who hit all but two of the Vols 30 points in the second half, finished with 21 and 19, respectively.

Boston College, running the nation's current longest winning streak to 19 in a 24-3 season, chose to forsake its fast break against the bruising Army defense and disciplined offense and waited patiently until midway through the final half to pull away.

"We wanted to beat them at their own game, not shove ours down their throats," said BC Coach Bob Cousy, who will retire after the final. Playmaker Billy Evans, who had 13 points and seven assists, said, "We had to play a slow, patient game. You have trouble getting involved. We're so used to running."

Although trailing 29-26 at the half, the Eagles finally went ahead to stay 42-40 when Tom Veronneau scored and was fouled as Army's Mike Gyovai fouled out.

Veronneau missed the free throw, but 6-7 teammate Terry Driscoll rebounded for a basket. Driscoll later hit a free throw for a 47-41 lead as Army's second starter, 6-6 center Dick Simmons, fouled out with 9:36 left. Driscoll led BC with 28 points. Doug Clevenger had 25 for Army.

Hull Breaks Record With Two Goals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Hull and Bobby Orr were record-breaking winners Thursday night but the Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins came out losers despite their 5-5 National Hockey League tie.

Hull scored twice late in the game, giving him 55 goals and erasing the record of 54 he set three years ago. Orr's 21st goal with only one second to play forced the tie and established a mark for most goals by a defenseman. Detroit's Flash Hollett set the old standard of 20 in the 50-game season of 1944-45.

The deadlock dropped Boston four points behind front-running Montreal in the East Division and left the last-place Black Hawks nine points behind Toronto and seven in back of Detroit in the race for the fourth and final playoff berth.

In other NHL contests, Montreal tripped Pittsburgh 5-3, Los Angeles downed Detroit 4-2 and Philadelphia whacked Minnesota 5-2.

"We didn't win the game," said a downcast Orr, although the 14,000-plus fans in Boston Garden went wild after his last second heroics—and on his 21st birthday, to boot.

The Bruins blew a 4-0 second period lead as Dennis Hull, Jim Pappin and Doug Mohns brought Chicago within range before Bobby Hull put the Hawks ahead temporarily.

The Boston fans also gave Hull a standing ovation. "That was wonderful," he said, "especially in a visitors' rink."

First-period goals by Mickey Redmond and Bobby Rousseau started Montreal to victory over Pittsburgh. John Ferguson, Claude Provost and Jacques Lemaire also tallied as the Canadiens ran their unbeaten string to eight games. Billy Dea got two goals for Pittsburgh.

Los Angeles maintained its three-point hold on third place in the West Division by beating Detroit. Bob Wall collected a pair of goals and an assist for the Kings.

Gordie Howe scored his 42nd goal of the season and Frank Mahovlich his 46th as the Red Wings' production line of Howe, Mahovlich and Alex Delvecchio accounted for 107th goal, a record by one line for a season.

Philadelphia took an important step toward a playoff berth by topping Minnesota and increasing its margin over the fifth- place North Stars to four points. Leon Rochefort, Jim Johnson and Gary Dornhoefer shot the Flyers into an insurmountable 4-1 lead.

Minnesota's only bright spot was a goal by Danny Grant, giving him 63 points, a record for an NHL rookie. Toronto's Gus Bodnar had 62 in 1943-44.

All Newcomers In Jr. College Cage Semifinals

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — A surprising victory by Carthage, Ill., over defending champion San Jacinto, Tex., leaves four semifinalists who never have won a title in the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The pairings match Paducah, Ky., with a 29-4 record, against Burlington, Iowa, 29-6, at 7:30 o'clock, CST, tonight, and Carthage, 30-5, vs. Pittsburgh, Pa., 29-0, at 9:15.

Carthage upset San Jacinto 75-73 Thursday night on Rhea Taylor's long shot that was in the air when the final buzzer sounded. San Jacinto had just tied the score at 73-all with 45 seconds left.

Pittsburgh, the nation's only undefeated juco team, needed an overtime to get past Vincennes, Ind., 77-76. Pittsburgh's Joe Butler hit two free throws with 21 seconds left to force the overtime at 68-68. Perry Johnson got 36 points for Pittsburgh.

Rockets Nab Playoff Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Diego Rockets are in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

They clinched fourth place in the Western Division by whipping the Atlanta Hawks 115-97 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory.

San Diego now has a 36-43 won-lost record. Even if the Rockets should lose their last three regular season games, they still will finish ahead of fifth-place Chicago.

Miami scored a 116-108 victory over Dallas in the American Basketball Association. Only one game was scheduled Thursday in both the NBA and ABA.

Elvin Hayes sparked San Diego with 24 points. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 23, 19 in the third quarter for a San Diego Sports Arena record.

Donnie Freeman, with 22 points, led Miami over Dallas as the Floridians withstood a late Dallas rally. Ron Boone topped the Chaps with 26.

Hadl May Declare Self Free Agent

SAN DIEGO (AP) — John Hadl, who paced the pros in touchdown passes last year, plans to become the first experienced quarterback on the open market.

Hadl, 29, after six seasons with the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League, will be a free agent April 1 unless he settles his contract dispute with the Chargers.

"I'm playing out my option," Hadl said Thursday. "Negotiations are deadlocked. It has reached a point that unless something changes there's no chance.

"It's almost certain ... pretty well settled," he said, that Hadl won't wear a Charger uniform next season.

The former Kansas All - American hasn't seen Charger officials for about a month nd he said that he has no scheduled meeting with them.

Hadl reportedly seeks a three - year contract in the $60,000 to $70,000 range, plus a $250,000 loan for investment purposes.

Eugene Klein, the Chargers' principal owner, has said he's through talking with Hadl. Sid Gillman, the Charger general manager and coach, is siding with management, of course.

"All that separates us in $250,000," Gillmanhas said, "and I can assure you we are not going to get into the banking business."

"A lot of teams need a quarterback," Hadl said, "and I'm right in the prime of my career."

The Hadl case might wind up in thylap of Pete Rozelle, pro football commissioner.

Hadl knows that Rozelle made the New Orleans Saints pay a stiff price - two No. 1 draft choices - for picking up pass - catcher Dave Parks from San Francisco last year.

Asked if he fears that Rozelle might price him out of the market, Hadl said:

"Rozelle has his way of doing things. I know I'm a good commodity on the football market. I think if nobody picks me up, Rozelle would have a hard time explaining why."

Would Hadl take Rozelle to court? "I hope it won't come to that," he said.

Besides, Hadl said, "after Gene Klein stated I wasn't that good of a quarterback, I don't see how Rozelle could make the price that high."

"John is an excellent quarterback," Klein has said, "but he is no Joe Namath by any stretch of the imagination."

Hadl led all pro quarterbacks with 27 touchdown passes last year but he also was intercepted 32 times, high for both leagues.

Ashe Breezes Into Quarterfinal Round

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Top Seeded Arthur Ashe breezed into he quarterfinals of the Masters Tennis Tournament Thursday with a third round 6-2, 6-3, win over England's Peter Curtis.

The victory paved the way for a quarterfinal match between Ashe and Ray Ruffles of Australia, an Ashe victim in the United States' Davis Cup victory in December.

Ruffles beat Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., 6-4, 6-0, leaving Ashe the only American in the tournament.

Lippy Leo Favors Less Restraint on Arguing

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's the eighth inning. The Chicago Cubs, trailing by a run, have the bases loaded and two out. The batter, on a full count, is called out on strikes on a borderline pitch.

Should Manager Leo Durocher let the umpire have a stream of choice invective or should be hold his tongue and wait for a key situation in the ninth inning?

If Curocher has his way, when to chew out an umpire may become an important part of managerial strategy, like changing pitchers or sending up a pinch hitter. And Lippy Leo thinks Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may be on his side.

"Since they put in this rule a few years ago that you can't protest a ball or strike call, I think it has taken a lot of color out of the game," Durocher said Thursday. "And that's what Mr. Kuhn is looking for, suggestions to add more color and speed up the game.

"I don't think it would slow down play to modify the protest rule. I know the commissioner agreed that at least you should be able to holler from the bench once in a while.

"Last week I talked with Mr. Kuhn about this, and he agrees that it would be a good idea to let a manager protest a called ball or strike - not repeatedly, but maybe a couple or three times a game without getting thrown out."

Durocher's Cubs let their bats do their talking Thursday. Randy Hundley, Ernie Banks and Jim Dunegan homered in a 9-2 exhibitionrout of the Oakland Athletics.

Philadelphia edged St. Louis 9-7 with six runs in the fourth inning, highlighted by Richie Allen's grand slam. Rookie Ron Stone of the Phils smacked a two - run homer.

Carl Yastrzemski had a triple, two singles and a walk in Boston's 5-4 triumph over Detroit. Dick McAuliffe Norm Cash homered for the Tigers.

San Francisco used home runs by Williw McCovey and Ron Hunt and four San Diego errors that let in five unearned runs to defeat the Padres 8-5.

Rookie Challenges for Lead at Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Heard, 21, six feet tall and 180 pounds, quit Fresno State College last fall in his junior year and decided to take out after Nicklaus, Casper & Co. on the $6 million pro tour.

"I've wanted to play on the golf tour since I was 11 years old—I couldn't wait," the strapping young athlete said today. "I came from an athletically minded family. My dad played pro baseball and even had a contract to go with the Cardinals.

"But he got married instead.

"No, I don't intend to go back to college. This is my life now. I think I can make the grade."

Heard is one of the brash, new breed of hungry tigers who have abandoned other pursuits—including higher education—and plunged into the rich golf tour.

They look at Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Bill Casper, and Gary Player and say—apparently—what better way is there to become a millionaire?

Heard popped up among the leaders of a tightly bunched pack after the first round of the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open tournament Thursday.

He fired a 68, four under par, which placed him in a tie with six others, just one stroke back of pace-setting Lionel Herbert 41-year-old veteran from Lafayette, La., leading at 67. Jerry is one stroke ahead of Nicklaus, two in front of Palmer, three better than Casper and four in front of Player—not bad for a rookie.

Two High Schools Placed on Probation

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Two high schools were placed on probation today by the Missouri State High School Activities Association and a delay for further investigation was announced in a basketball sportsmanship case involving Lincoln High School of Kansas City.

The association announced Eugene High School was placed on probation until "the administration and Board of Education reports to the MSHSAA office sufficient action taken in regard to two fans who approached officials following the Eugene-St. Elizabeth regional tournament game played at Ashland, Mo., on Feb. 27, 1969, in which one of the fans pushed an official."

Rolla High School was placed on probation until the association receives a report in regard "to a fan striking an official following the Rolla-West Plains game played in the Rolla Regional Tournament on March 7."

The association's Board of Control said it met March 15 to consider reports of unsportsmanlike conduct. The board said sportsmanship of coaches and players had shown general improvement but "there has been an apparent increase of unsportsmanlike conduct among fans."

The board noted "each school is responsible for the conduct of its teams, coaches, students and fans at games both at home and away."

Any move against Lincoln of Kansas City was delayed until the Kansas City Board of Education reports to the board action in a case in which two game officials were struck by a young fan near the close of a regional basketball game involving St. Joseph Central and Lincoln.

After the game several fans, including principal of the St. Joseph school, complained of being pushed and shoved. As a result the playoff game was then shifted to Maryville, Mo., when the St. Joseph school announced it would not return to the fieldhouse in Kansas City where the violence occurred.

---The 'Other' Kelly---

POMPANO BEACH, Fla.—(NEA)—Pat Kelly whacked a ball to right-center field and made a triple out of it.

In the press box, someone said, "That was a 30-yard gain." This is the kind of humor Harold Patrick Kelly has been subjected to for the last several years. There are signs, however, that this will change.

After the game, a reporter approached Kelly in the locker room. "Some day," said the reporter, "a story on you may have an angle other than 'Pat Kelly, brother of Leroy Kelly of the Cleveland Browns.'"

Kelly, a rookie centerfielder for the new Kansas City Royals, did not have to chew that thought as he chewed his egg salad sandwich.

"Yeah," he said, smiling and dabbing the mayonnaise from his mouth. "My teammates are always kidding me about it. You know what they call me? 'Brother of.'"

In early spring training games, Pat Kelly has been starting in the outfield and batting third. He has looked good. Manager Joe Gordon feels there will probably be a place for him on the club. "He's got a good attitude," said Gordon. "He likes to play. He's also got power. But we like the way he skadoots around them bases. That's what we want, an exciting player."

"I won't believe I'm in the majors," said Pat, "until I'm on that plane flying to Kansas City."

That would be a departure. In his last six seasons in professional baseball, Kelly has played with Erie, Orlando, Wilson, Wisconsin Rapids, Charlotte and Denver. For the last two years, he also has had coffee breaks with the Minnesota Twins.

Last year at Denver, he batted .306 and led the Pacific Coast League in stolen bases with 38.

"The saying is, 'Have a good year and move up,'" he said. "Well, for the last six years I was with the Minnesota organization. But they had outfielders like Uhlaender, Allison and Oliva. Never much room for me. And I had good years." Three times, Kelly has batted over .300 and always he has been a base-stealing threat.

The Royals picked Kelly up in the fourth round of the expansion draft. He knows it is a great opportunity. At 25, there may not be many more chances to be something other than "brother of."

"All I want is to get some success of my own now," he said. "Leroy's got his, and I'm glad. He deserves it. I'm deeply proud of my brother. And I'd like to achieve in baseball what he's done in football. He's fantastic, isn't he? He's the best, except for Jim Brown. Leroy's always calling me down here, wanting to know how I'm hitting. Wants to know how I'm running, too." Kelly laughed.

"I signed a pro contract before Leroy did. He had baseball offers but decided to go to Morgan State College. At the time, he said, 'My day is coming.' Now, that's what I'm saying.

Schoendienst Hospitalized

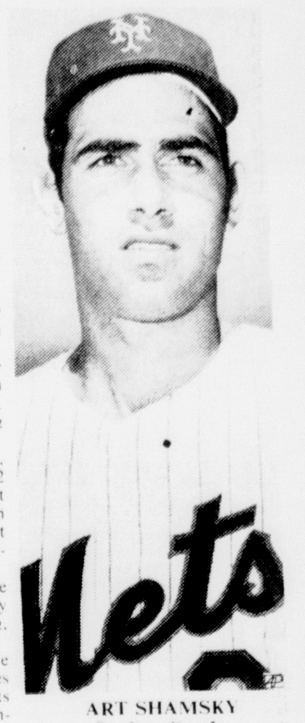
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was hospitalized Thursday because of severe abdominal pain, was reported improved today.

A Cardinal spokesman said Schoendienst's pain lessened a great deal during the night. He said the Redbird manager's physician had considered exploratory surgery but changed his mind as the pain eased.

Dr. William Mallette, a St. Petersburg physician, said there is a slight possibility of appendicitis.

Shamsky Hopes to Slug Way Into Regular Met Lineup

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor



ART SHAMSKY
Ready to Step In

This will be Art Shamsky's fifth year in the major leagues and the outfielder-first baseman has every right to expect it to be his best. Shamsky may play a lot of first base for the New York Mets this season.

He is only 27 and swings just about the strongest bat among the southpaw swingers of the Mets.

Last season, playing in 116 games, Shamsky hit .238 with 12 home runs and 48 runs batted in. Team leader Ron Swoboda had 59 "ribbies" and he played much more.

"I had a good start, had a poor middle of the season but came on good at the end," says Shamsky. "Maybe I can start out this spring the way I finished."

Shamsky, a natural pull hitter, saw action in the outfield for 82 games last year. He played 17 at first base and was used as a pinch hitter in 17 others. Art will get every chance to take Ed Kranepool's place at first base.

Manager Gil Hodges of the Mets knows more about Shamsky now than he knew last spring, Hodges' first with the Mets.

A year ago November, one month after Hodges replaced Wes Westrum as manager, the Mets obtained Shamsky from the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for infielder Bob Johnson.

Hodges had been in the American League managing the Washington Senators since 1963 and hadn't seen too much of Shamsky who broke in with Cincinnati in the National League in 1965.

But Hodges remembered reading about Shamsky as a home run hitter and approved the deal.

In 1966 Shamsky hit 21 home runs for the Reds, getting a four bagger every 11 trips to the plate.

The big thing with Shamsky is the major league record he tied with Cincinnati in 1966 when he hit four straight home runs, three of them in one game against the Pittsburgh Pirates. He hit his fourth two days later off Vern Law.

Shamsky spent five years in the minor leagues, his last being with San Diego in the Pacific Coast League in 1964 when he hit 25 home runs and batted .272.

The first game he played with Geneva, N.Y., in 1960 gave some people the idea they were seeing the new Babe Ruth. First time up Shamsky cracked a home run.

Did this first contact in organized ball make him home run conscious?

"No," laughs Shamsky. "But it was a good feeling to know the home run helped me make the team."

Cleon Jones, the left fielder who hit a surprising .297, led the Mets in slugging last year with .452. Ed Charles slugged .434 and Shamsky was third with .406. If either fielder Swoboda or first baseman Kranepool fail to hit early in the season you can look for Shamsky to slug his way into the lineup.

All Seven Stoddard County School Districts Ask Tax Rate Increases

BLOOMFIELD - All seven school district in Stoddard County are asking the voters to approve tax rate increases in the upcoming April 1 school election.

Dexter is seeking the lowest increase -- just two cents over the present rate while Richland is asking the highest increase of 32 cents.

Advance is seeking a levy of $3.50, a 25 cent increase; Bell City a $3.50 levy, a 25 cent increase, plus a separate 20 cent proposal for kindergarten; Bloomfield has set the tax rate at $3.50, a 20 cent increase; Bernie will ask approval for a $3.40 levy, a 20 cent increase; Puxico a $3.15 levy, a 20 cent increase; Dexter a $3.83 levy, a two cent increase and Richland a $3.50 levy, a 32 cent increase.

The Dexter School Board will put a $3.82 tax rate before thf voters at the April 1 school election -- a two cent increase over the present rate.

The Board set the rate for the incidental fund at $1.25 and the debt service fund at 47 cents. The people will be asked to approve a rate of $1.60 for the teachers' fund and 50 cents for the building fund, to make the $3.82 total.

The purpose of the two cent increase, school officials said, is to try to qualify for second level State Aid.

The terms of Yewell Lawrence and Loren Coffee expire this year and both have filed for re-election. Joe Vinson, who was appointed for the remainder of the first year of W. L. Arnold's term, has filed for re-election for a two-year term.

Voting will take place in the Junior High gym and at Dudley.

Richland

The Richland School District is asking voters to approve a $3.82 tax levy, a 32 cent increase over the present $3.50 rate. This increase is needed, school officials said, to qualify for state aid.

The breakdown of the levy will be as follows: Teachers Fund $1.57; Incidental Fund $1.50; Debt Service 75 cents.

Paul Schuerengerg and Lee N. Bloomfield are both seeking re-election to the School Board and have opposition from Bob Blair and James H. Russell. James Kelley was appointed for the remainder of the second year term of Edsel Wylie's term and has filed for re-election for a one year term.

Puxico

The Puxico School District has set its levy at $3.15, which represents a 20 cent increase, according to School Superintendent George Sifford.

The breakdown of funds was listed as follows: $1.25 teachers; 25 cents building; 40 cents debt service and $1.25 that can be levied by the Board without voter approval.

Five men are seeking the two positions on the board, including the two incumbents. Herman Campbell and Robert Davis. Others filed are Charles Placher, Donald Stewart and Paul Yates Jr.

Voting will take place at City Hall from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Advance

Voters in the Advance School District will be asked to approve a $3.50 tax levy -- an increase of 25 cents over the present rate.

The breakdown for the levy is as follows: Teachers Fund - $1.50; Incidental Fund $1.30; Building Fund 35 cents; debt service 35 cents.

No competition developed for the School Board where two positions are to be filled. Robert Crader and James Harnes., who both are current members of the Board, filed for re-election and have no opposition.

Voting will take place in the High School gym.

Bell City

Five men are seeking election to the Bell City School Board to fill the two positions. Filing for election were J. D. (John) Daniel, Winford (Bill) Watkins, Jim Scherer, Anson Knoderer and Larry Strobel. Watkins is currently a member of the board. The other member, Herman Vetter, did not seek re-election.

A tax levy of $2.25 on the $100 assessed valuation of the School District for school purposes for one year is asked in addition to $1.25 rate on the $100 assessed valuation that may be levied by the Board of Education without voter approval.

From the $2.25, a total of $1.65 will be for the teachers fund and 60 cents for the incidental fund.

In addition to the $3.50 tax levy - a 25 cent increase over the present levy, a separate proposal is being put before the voters concerning a kindergarten is a 20 cent levy, school officials said.

Bloomfield

A 20 cent increase in the tax levy is being sought in Bloomfield, which would make the levy $3.50, according to school officials.

The increase will go primarily into the building fund (15 cents building and 5 cents incidental) to replace funds used from the building fund last year for teachers' salaries, school officials said.

The transfer of funds was necessary due to loss of secondary school aid, it was pointed out.

Filing for the Board of Education were Robert Poeppelmeyer incumbent and Tom C. Milner, seeking his first term. Elmer Underwood did not seek re-election to the Board.

Voting will be in the ticket lobby of the gymnasium.

Bernie

Voters in the Bernie School District will be asked to vote a levy of $1.55 on the $100 assessed valuation for the teacher's fund; 25 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for the incidental fund for a period of one year in addition to the levy that may be set by the Board of education; and 25 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for the building fund. The total levy will be $3.40, a 20 cent increase over a year ago.

Closing deadline for candidates to file was set at Wednesday, March 26 at 4 p.m.

Superintendent W. A. Merick cited the reason for the tax increase as follows:

"The Bernie Schools will lose approximately $19,000 in state funds under the provisions of a new law being passed, and even the $3.40 we are voting will not be high enough to meet state requirements since the ratio of our county assessed valuation to real value is too low. We would need to vote a levy of $3.82 (figure had been $4.53) in order to qualify for additional funds;

We also need additional funds because approximately $12,000 we have been spending for Kindergarten from Title I government funds must now come from school funds," Merick added.

Merick added.

"The 20 cent increase will bring in only about $10,000 while we are losing $19,000 state money and need $12,000 for kindergarten", Merick concluded.

Better skills build better careers.

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Pete Butler, recently inducted into the American Association of College Coaches hall of fame, turned out baseball teams at Colorado State College for 26 years.

Before he retired in 1967 his teams won 25 consecutive Rocky Mountain Conference championships and scored 415 victories against 140 losses. Butler is now dean of the physical education department at the college.

Catholic Bishops Explore Union With NCC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States have taken major steps toward official negotiations with the predominantly Protestant National Council of Churches for what could become a historic Christian alliance at the national level.

A small team of experts from both sides will be named in about a month to study admission of the Catholic Church into the council, it was learned.

The council is a voluntary fellowship of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox denominations with 41 million members. The Roman Catholic Church, which has kept itself aloof from the council since it was formed in 1950, claims 47.4 million American members.

Catholic inclusion in the council, still regarded as a few years away, would thus bring together the leaderships of 91.4 million of the estimated 126 million Christians in the United States.

The council holds annual meetings, elects officers and takes policy positions about secular issues but has no control over the creeds of its member Churches.

Although the doctrinal and moral tenets of the member churches are not the council's concern, Catholic membership one day could cause difficulty in trying to develop a council stand on such matters as contraception, where Catholicism and the rest of Christianity sharply disagree.

Catholic dioceses have joined the councils of other Christians on a scattered city or state basis so far, the first time in 1961 in New Mexico and the most recent last month in Texas.

The Roman Catholic bishops of the country told the council last September that they were ready to consider national membership seriously. The new development is the selection of a team of experts to work out the details.

ARMED FORCES

FOR TRAIN NURSING APPLICATIONS

The deadline for filing applications for nursing scholarships through the Walter Reed Army Institute of Nursing (WRAIN) program has been extended from March 31 to April 15, according to Captain Virginia Anderson, Army Nurse Counselor for this area.

More than $12,000 for a four - year period is the amount in dollar value for each scholarship. Such scholarships are available to qualified high school students throughout the country.

Students selected for the WRAIN program attended the college or university of their choice for two years, and educational expenses such as tutition and fees are paid by the Army direct to the school. Students also received living expenses during these first two years of college, Captain Anderson continued.

After completing two years of study at the school of their choice, WRAIN students enter the University of Maryland School of Nursing to complete their formal education, after which, if successful, they receive bachelors' degrees in nursing and are commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army Nurse Corps, with an obligation to serve on active duty for three years.

The program is open to both male and female students.

For further information nd scholarship applications, interested high school seniors are asked to contact SFC Steve L. Sullivan, at 339 Broadway Cape Girardeau, Missouri or by phoning 335-9052 collect calls will be accepted.

FT. SILL, OKLA. (AHTNC) - Army Private Samuel D. True, 23, son of Mr. nd Mrs. Homer C. True, Route 2, East Prairie, Mo., completed the basic field artillery (cannoneer) course at Ft. Sill, Okla., Feb. 14.

The eight - week course, given at the U.S. Army Training Center here, is the last phase of instruction a soldier receives before being assigned as a crewman in a field artillery unit.

Training includes the use and care of artillery weapons - from heavy machine guns to howitzers - as well as ammunition handling and communications.

Public Urged to Demand Quick U.S. Aid to Biafra

By DAVID POLING

The United States is still unable to exert a meaningful response to the tragedy in Biafra. That is the first-hand report of Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., after his fact-finding tour of this African conflict.

And of all the horrors involved in this civil war slaughter, with its starvation of children and destruction of thousands of innocent families, surely the saddest story of all is the inability of Washington to fulfill the yearnings of the American public. For this country is aroused, and should be angry over the handling of this call for compassion and aid from this tormented territory.

Goodell told this writer that he had secured immediate support from the White House, the secretary of state and the secretary of defense that government jets could and would be available for the airlift of relief supplies paid for by private agencies concerned about Biafra. Their interest was genuine and immediate.

And yet what has happened? Nothing. Right, nothing. Zero. Goodell and others in the capital believe it is the direct result of negative attitudes within the State Department. Many of these career diplomats are 100 per cent for Nigeria and the breakaway state of Biafra can stew in its own juice. It seems unbelievable that such callousness and hard-heartedness could exist in the face of such incredible suffering and starvation as we see on the television every night.

Those of us who have been reading James A. Joyce's book, "End of an Illusion" (Bobbs-Merrill, $8.95), are quite familiar with the paramilitary mind that governs too much the politics, education and overseas adventures of America. Joyce has been tracking the beast for a long time and documents most carefully and powerfully the influence of men and women who never have to report to the citizens who pay the bills. As Joyce has observed:

"The real struggle for peace, freedom and justice is a race between the military compulsionists of the last century and the world builders of the 21st century."

Goodell states flatly that the Biafran bungling will only be solved by massive public pressure. This means thousands of cards and letters to the Nigerian desk at the State Department.

It also means telegrams and phone calls to the people in charge there to find the ways and means of putting this relief program on the road. I believe it is the particular responsibility of the church people of this country to be heard and heeded. And it is already too late for so many.

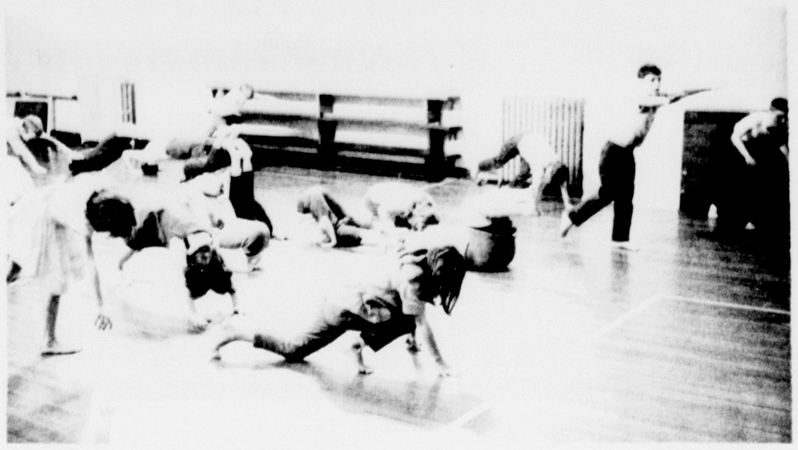
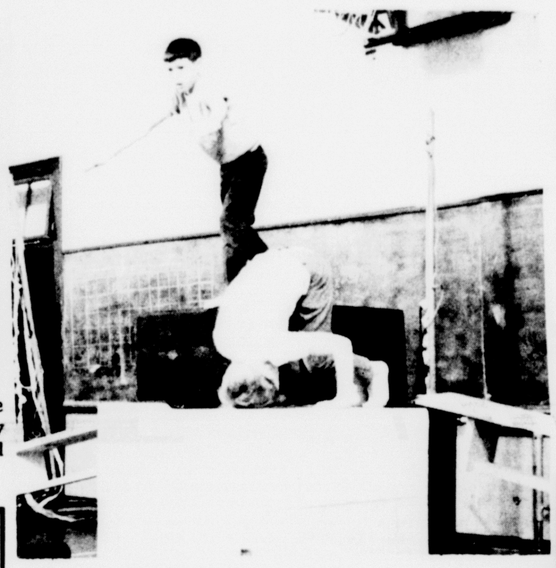
New P.E. Method Stresses Self-Direction, Creativity, Movement



"Off you go again," but this time transfer your weight from one part of your body to another part of your body.

"Now, let's get out the Apparatus." Everyone works together in setting up the equipment. Children learn to work cooperatively to get the job done faster.

"Let's begin class by moving quickly around the room. Be prepared to stop still as a statue when I say 'stop.' No matter what position you're in, stop and hold it until I tell you to continue.



There are many different levels of work in the movement program. They will start out on the floor and progress when they feel they are ready to do so. The teacher does not tell them when they are ready.

"Stop" calls Mr. Tolbert. The students try, with varying degrees of success. One totters on one foot, arms outstretches. Another pauses, apparently poised on the bales of her feet as though about to lean forward. Another tries to stop in Mid Air, fails and collapses in A crouched position on the floor instead.

Here is an experimental physical education program that squeezes the competition out of fun and games and replaces it with joy and creativity:

By GARY TOLBERG

It looks as if the Throw- it, Kick - it, Catch - it approach to physical education is going to be out soon, at least in the early grades. The traditional method of teaching is being challenged in the Charleston R-1 School District by Gary Tolbert, instructor at the Bertrand Elementary School of the R-1 District.

Movement education is an individualized approach to physical education which stresses creativity, self - direction and joy in movement. Any student can participate meaningfully in the program regardless of physique, skills, or past experience. And he can work on his own physical education needs rather than on the needs or demands of his group.

The basic approach in movement education is problem solving. The main objective: To help children understand and control the many ways their bodies move.

The children love it. Equally important, teachers love it - perhaps because, although conducting a movement education program

Basically, the children teach themselves, says Mr. Tolbert. We impose two rules do not touch anyone else and work quietly using a classroom voice. Aside from that we let them discover for themselves just how their bodies move.

In the first grade movement education is almost completely non- directed by the teacher. The emphasis then is on free play with specially designed equipment. At this age, says Mr. Tolbert, "we're less interested in telling the children what to do than in having them learn to think about what they're doing." Later on, however, the program becomes more structured. The teacher encourages each child to work out challenges imposed by a particular piece of apparatus or by an assigned movement problem. The problem may be one of filling space: "Try to see how much space you can fill while traveling across the balance beam," Or it may be one of effort: "Let's move across the room in sudden, sharp movements."

Each child is encouraged to solve the problem in his own way and in his own time. While solving it he is encouraged to develop a conscious awareness of what he can do, where he can move in space and how he moves.

The result of all this is a physical education program which at times seems close to anarchy. Asked to make a long slender line with their bodies and move slowly across the room, children will hold themselves straight, arms stretched high, and inch slowly forward . . . or roll along the floor, or walk slowly twisting in circles.

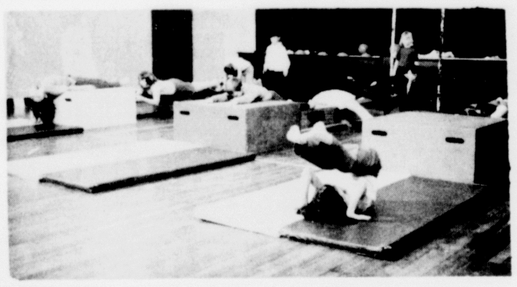
But this isn't chaos, Mr. Tolbert maintains. "It's creativity. The children are finding their own solutions to problems

A fault found by some in modern work is that in catering to all the standard is inevitably low or non - existent. Since no common standard is imposed, competition as such does not occur and challenges are worded so that each child may succeed at his own level. However, there is competition in that the child strives to improve his own skill and understanding, but these are in relation to his starting point and capability. Thus the teacher encourages each child to vie with himself and the attitude should be one of, "How can I improve this part of my sequence?" or "Can I get my feet, instead of my knees, on the High Box?" Obviously children are very quick to realize thy abilities of others but normally they accept these without misgiving. They will also accept their own shortcomings with good humor.

The results of good teaching are to be seen in confident, skillful movers and inventive, lively work. Moreover, the fun of producing something which is "Mine" and the excitement and satisfaction of working with others has an educational value not to be ignored.

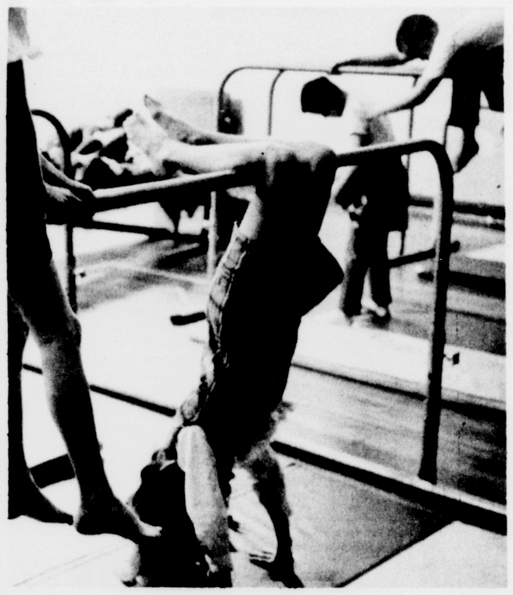
Everyone look how Eddie has solved the problem of traveling across the balance beam, trying to fill as much space as you possibly can. "Good Job," says Mr. Tolbert, the other children applaud.

"Now, everybody choose partners, and work up a stunt. A good stunt has a beginning, middle and the ending.



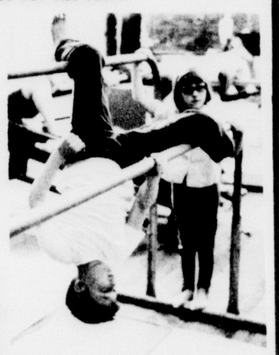
See how many different parts of your body you can put your weight on while traveling down the benches and boxes. Each child creates a different movement pattern.

"Look now Terri is climbing the rope today." The children are recognized for their creativity. This, challenges every child to create something new and different.



They may work on a piece of apparatus as long as they feel it is necessary. They move from apparatus to appratus as they please. If a child ties up one piece of apparatus too long the children themselves will tell him that he has had sufficient time for his turn.

When the apparatus is in place the children began working in the various pieces of apparatus. There are two rules, do not touch and work quietly.



There is no specific way to work on a piece of apparatus. Each child will create a new way of doing something.

A DESPERATE STAND AGAINST INVADERS!

Across Gengali's border, war rages. Created by the brutality of battle, a band of ruthless deserters calling themselves "The Irregulars" bring death and terror to all they encounter. Finally, they cross over into Bengali and attack Junglehome - an amazing school, orphanage and hospital located deep in the jungle.

Junglehome is the life work of Father Morra, one of two remarkable brothers. The other is Dr. Luaga, President of Bengali. Both are close friends of The Phantom.

Although teachers and students fight valiantly to hold off the vicious marauders, their desperate stand against "The Irregulars" is all but hopeless. Then, with the police and the army too far away to help, the brothers call upon The Phantom to fight the cruel invaders.

Can the ghost who walks save Junglehome? Don't miss the fast - moving and suspenseful new adventure of -

Farmer Trys Spring Cabbage

CHARLESTON - A new crop destined for the fresh produce markets in late May or early June was planted in a 50-acre field just south of Charleston this week.

The crop is spring cabbage, and the planter is Jim Moreton.

Mr. Moreton is one of several Mississippi County planters who have become interested in producing fresh vergetables as a profitable alternative to the usual Bootheel crops of soybeans, corn, cotton and wheat. The most publicized of these farmers is Wendell Choate, like Moreton a resident of Charleston, who last year grossed $1.1 million in a sweet corn operation.

Moreton explained that fall cabbage has been grown in Mississippi County on a limited acreage for about four year, but said this is the first time a spring crop has been planted. Ted Hull of Wyatt, an employee of the state Department of Community Affairs, is technical consultant for the Moreton operation.

Working with young plants imported from the Palatka, Fla., area, a crew of 16 people plants about three acres every four hours, using a four-row transplater.

This ingenious device, twoed behind a tractor, has space on it for eight workers, who place individual plants in the V-shaped "hands" on four vertical conveyors. The "hands" move the young cabbages from the working table surface to the previously-shaped planting bed, digs a hole, and inserts the plants. Then four sets of toed-in rollers cover the roots.

A follow-up crew of four persons walks behind the planter and fills any gaps in the rows left by the transplanting machine. The plants are set 10 inches apart.

Mr. Moreton said the cost of preparing the field for cabbage growing was rather high. Preparation started with a heavy application of fertilizer, followed by incorporation of Treflan, a chemical which prevents or retards weed growth and reduced the need for hand cultivation. Then another chemical was applied to control soil insects, and finally the ground was shaped into neat, flat-topped beds separated by shallow furrows.

The rows are spaced about 36 inches apart, giving a plant population of 17,000 to 20,000 per acre. Mr. Moreton said the crop could yield 300 to 600 fifty - pound bags of cabbage per acre, at a market price which has ranged in the past from as low as 90 cents to a high of about $3.00 per bag.

As with most crops grown for the fresh produce market, Mr. Moreton said his profit will depend on when the crop hits the market, and the quality of the vegetables. They must be wormfree, have good color, and a firm head.

Asked about the danger from frost, with early March planting, Mr. Moreton said cabbage can withstand temperatures down to about 20 degrees. Serious damage begins at about 15 degrees, he added. He said the temperature averages show it should be safe to plant the crop now.

A unique irrigation rig is used in the cabbage field immediately after planting to get the plants off to a good start. In Moreton's case, the irrigation equipment consists of a quarter-mile-long aluminum pipe supported by light-weight wheels about 42 inches in diameter. Sprinklers spaced at intervals along the pipe convey water across the entire width of the field. After a given spot has been watered, a single operator can crank up a gasoline-powered engine, and move the entire irrigation system under its own power to the next watering spot. This has reduced to almost nothing the formerly prohibitive cost of labor required to move heavy irrigation pipe around a field.

Irrigation will continue throughout the growing season as needed, Mr. Moreton said. In addition, the crop will have to be sprayed several times for protection against destructive insects, most notably the "cabbage looper," which somehow manages to find any cabbage patch.

The crop will be harvested by hand, then cooled and loaded aboard trucks for the trip to market in cities throughout the Midwest - hopefully proving once again that the fertile soil of the Missouri Delta can profitably produce crops other than the monotonous cotton, corn and soybeans.

GM Research To Sponsor CB Systems

CHICAGO, Ill. -- The General Motors Research Laboratories, have assumed the sponsorship of the 40,000-member Citizens two-way radio operators in all local communities, as of March 1, by Arthur F. Underwood and Henry B. Kreer, manager and director respectively.

The radio band teams was organized in 1963, and grew to a membership of 1,300 in the nation, with many of them having a 24-hour monitor system, who were able to report a wide variety of local emergencies to radio stations, who in turn relayed the information to highway departments, police stations, hospitals and service stations.

The Bootheel Citizen Band Radio Club, P. O. Box 123, an affiliate of the national organization, with headquarters in Sikeston, received an announcement, and relayed to all two-way radio operators in the area.

With the new sponsorship the communication system will be increased to report highway accidents and other local emergencies. In 1968 the citizens band operators reported over 1,200,000 automotive emergencies, of which 27 per cent were automobile accidents.

Illinois Electronics Firm Considering Charleston

CHARLESTON — Two representatives of a western Illinois electronics firm were in Charleston this week to discuss possible location of a manufacturing plant here.

The firm, which makes transformers, electrical controls and other related products is expanding its two existing plants and wants to establish a third facility, according to Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee Chairman P. J. Ponder.

Mr. Ponder said the industrial committee took the two company men on a tour of Charleston Wednesday morning, icluding a visit to the industrial park and other possible factory sites. After a luncheon at the Charlestonian the group moved to the Chamber conference room for a presentation of the city's 'industrial package."

Mr. Ponder said the firm seems definitely interested in locating here, provided the town can find a way to provide them with a low - cost building of 20,000 square feet. As many as 150 persons would be employed after the plant went into full production.

The chairman said the manufacturer wants a two - year lease with options to renew for three and five - year periods. This expansion policy was adopted when the second plant was built three and one - half years ago, Ponder explained.

Because of the short - term nature of the original lease, Ponder said, it might be necessary for said, it might be necessary for the community to raise part of the money for plant construction by subscrption, instead of floating industrial bonds.

"In any case," Ponder said, "we told the firm that we can provide them with a building, and we will await their decision, which could come by April 1."

The firm's representatives flew to Charleston accompanied by Bob Head and Jack Hill of the state Commerce and Industrial Development Division.

Name of the business and its executives is withheld at their request until a final decision on plant location is made by the manufacturer's board of directors.

FT. EUSTIS, VA. (AHTNC) - Army Major Gerald D. Shearon (right), son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey H. Shearon, Gray Ridge, Mo., receives the Distinguished Flying Cross January 15 at Ft. Eustis, Va.

Congratulating him is Colonel Daniel K. Byrne, reviewing officer of the Honor Guard at the fort.

Major Shearon received the award for heroism involving aerial flight during his last assignment in Vietnam.

Currently a student at the U. S. Army Transportation School at Ft. Eustis, Major Shearon entered the Army in June 1947.

The major graduated from Gray Ridge High School in 1947 and received his B. S. degree from Bryan College, Dayton, Tenn., in 1961. He taught at the Union Park Elementary School, Orlando, Fla., before entering the Army.

His wife, Glenn, is with him at the fort.

AWARD OF THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS

1. TC 320. The following AWARD is announced:

SHEARON, GERALD D 02097105 (489-30-9738) MAJOR TRANSPORTATION CORPS United States Army, Co E, 704th Maint Bn, 4th Avn Bn, 4th Inf Div, APO 96262

Awarded: Distinguished Flying Cross

Theater: Republic of Vietnam

Reason: For heroism while participating in aerial flight evidenced by voluntary action above and beyond the call of duty in the Republic of Vietnam. Major Shearon distinguished himself on 12 June while serving as Pilot of a UH-1H helicopter engaged in combat support of elements of the 4th Infantry Division in the Central Highlands. Although adverse weather and terrain hindered helicopter employment, Major Shearon successfully evaded intense hostile automatic weapons and mortar fire in the landing zone numerous times throughout the day long combat and resupply mission. Major Shearon was subjected to intense enemy mortar and rocket fire not only at the landing zone but also at the pick-up area. When 50 calibre fire severaly wounded the pilot of the aircraft in front of Major Shearon, causing the aircraft commander to assume control of the aircraft as it verred off its final approach. Major Shearon's clam and professional actions during the critical time made possible the successful accomplishment of his mission. During each subsequent insertion of troops and ammunition, he displayed great courage and professional skill. Major Shearon's gallantry under hostile fire and exemplary devotion to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army.

Authority: By direction of the President under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926.

FOR THE COMMANDER:
WARREN D HOGES
Colonel, GS
Chief of Staff

Sikeston Students To Take ITED Test Next Week

Upperclassmen Will Take Quiz Thursday; Other Grades, Friday

Iowa Tests of Educational Development will be administered to Sikeston high school seniors and juniors Thursday and to sophomores and freshmen on Friday.

Freshmen and sophomores will not report to school Thursday, and the two upper classes will be given their free day on Friday.

These exams are compiled of nine objective tests designed to provide a comprehensive and dependable description of the general educational development of the high school student.

Also included are examinations and interpretation of reading materials in the natural sciences, interpretation of literary materials, vocabularly and use of sources of information.

Achievement in the social concepts, natural sciences and correctness and appropriateness of reading materials in the social sciences is measured by the test.

Iowa Test of Educational Development is designed to measure fundamental general abilities.

Students are requested to bring two soft lead pencils and a book to read if the test is completed before the allotted time.

Students will take the test in their respective homerooms.

Scores on these tests are used as one of the determining factors in the placement of a student with reference to grouping and selection of courses of study.

This exam is given during the last quarter of each school year to all high school students. This is the 12th consecutive year for the test to be given in Sikeston high school.

Book Exhibit Contains 400 New Volumes

Books on Exhibit, a national exhibiting-promotional enterprise, will present its 18th annual exhibit of selected literary works of the past year in the Sikeston high school library Monday through Wednesday.

Over 400 volumes will be presented. Titles are covered by an annotated, curriculum-related, fully indexed catalogue.

Collection is broken down into 20 main and more than 60 sub-classifications.

High school titles include problems of democracy, windows of the world, modern history, science and man, literary heritage, essays and fiction.

Mrs. Lorraine Larance, assistant librarian, stated, "This is obviously the most modern Books on Exhibit display we have held. It is informative, as well as being enjoyable."

Thompson, Hipes, Struwe, Spitzmiller Are Speakers For Honor Society Meet

Seniors Denise Hipes, Mike Struwe, Tonja Thompson, and Gene Spitzmiller are speakers for the National Honor Society Induction. Induction will begin at 8 p.m. in the high school cafetorium next Saturday night.

Theme chosen for the induction is "Seek New Horizons." Theme topics include talks on character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

Denise Hipes will speak on character. "Character is the way you regard yourself, your life, and your world," said Denise.

Gene Spitzmiller will speak on scholarship, Tonja Thompson on leadership, and Mike Struwe will speak on service.

Chosen on the basic of their scholastic achievement, character, leadership and service to their school and community, the inductees will be presented official invitations in the near future by senior members of the chapter.

Final selection of the students will be determined by a point system. Persons in the upper percentages of their classes were asked to complete a list of their activities and awards for which they will be given points.

Service point slips were presented to senior, junior, and sophomore students Monday after school.

Executive committee consisting of Gene Spitzmiller, Rod Taylor, Mike Struwe, Gary Long, Barbara Nall, Phyllis Ford and Mrs. Catherine Matthews, sponsor, will tabulate the points to obtain the class averages.

New members will be accepted in the order of their class rank as long as they have the required number of points for their class.

Committe chairmen for the ceremony are Martha Bucher, decorations; Mary Anne Sappenfield, programs; Eddie Troop, candles and chairs; and Tishy Wagner, refreshments.

Sikeston Bands Serve As Hosts To Area Groups

Annual spring band festival of the eastern division, SEMO High School Band Association, was held Wednesday at the Sikeston high school field house.

Over 500 band students from seven area schools worked during the day under the direction of professor Paul Shahan of Murray State University.

Each band rehearsed individually during the day and other schools observed their clinic sessions. Area bands attending were Scott Central, Oran, Kelly, Matthews, Charleston, East Prairie, and three Sikeston bands. Charleston was the only other band with a multiple entry, including their freshman band.

Sophs' Choice

Bill Branum was chosen by his fellow classmates to be Sikeston's representative to the annual sophomore pilgrimage in Jefferson City April 7-8.

Prissy Nunnelee was selected as alternate.

Upper 20 per cent of the sophomore class was eligible for this event. Faculty voted on the list and narrowed it to 25 students. Final vote was made in homerooms Tuesday.

Activities for the day include a tour of the state capitol building.

Sophomores will have an opportunity to visit the legislative chambers, the museum in the lobby of the capitol, and the executive mansion.

Sponsored by the Missouri Federated Women's Club, the purpose of the trip is to "promote better citizenship and provide a view of state government in action."

Late Division Band Concert Is Tonight

Late division band, directed by Keith Collins, will present its annual spring concert tonight in the cafetorium at 8 o'clock.

DeMaris, Noles, Roberts, Price Attend Convention

Seniors Judy Price, Kay DeMaris, Tevis Noles, and Jerry Roberts attended the state convention of Distributive Education Clubs of America in Columbia Monday and Tuesday. Sponsor Gerald Jackson accompanied the group.

Each student was entered in various contests during registration activities.

Contests were held Monday afternoon ith the finals Tuesday morning.

Kay and Jerry were finalists in job interview and window display respectively. Each received a number two rating.

Judy was awarded a number three rating in advertising layout and design. She was also interviewed for the national leadership conference in Atlantic City to be a senior delegate from the state of Missouri.

Students were entertained Monday evening at a banquet held in the Student Union on the campus of the University of Missouri.

Several speakers talked to the group, and awards were presented to the contest winners.

Students continued the competition in the contests Tuesday morning. Award luncheon was held with the final presentation of the awards.

Jackson high school received the club of the year award.

Students from Mexico and Jackson high schools received the boy and girl awards of the year.

Carl Wright Is First Vice-Pres. Of Dist. Meeting

Carl Wright, instructor of social studies in Sikeston high school, was elected first vice-president of the Southeast Missouri District Teachers Association at the 93rd annual meeting last week.

Mr. Wright has a wide background in both education and business.

He graduated from Carbondale high school, and received his B.S. degree from Southern Illinois University in 1932, and his master's degree from the University of Missouri in 1964. He also has many hours of graduate work.

His teaching career began as superintendent of schools at Cave-In-Rock, Ill., where he remained four years, after which he served as principal of grades at Royalton, Ill.

He entered the business field in the late 1930's, and spent 12 years with Prudential Life Insurance company. In 1950, he became district manager of Nas-Kelvinator corporation, where he remained for six years.

In 1956, he re-entered the teaching field, when he became a teacher of social studies in Sikeston high school and commuted from his home in Cape Girardeau each day.

While in high school and college, he won a total of 182 medals in track, and lettered on varsity teams 20 times. In his senior year of high school he was captain of the football, basketball, and track teams, and lettered in each of the sports three years.

Mr. Wright is a member of NEA, MSTA, Phi Delta Kappa, Kappa Delta Pi, and SCTA. He is presently serving on the welfare committee and is president of the Community Teachers Association.

He was born in Poplar Bluff and resides with his wife in Cape

Red Peppers To Elect New Leaders For 69—70

MONTH OF MARCH brings cold winds, the beginning of spring, the end of the third quarter, and--Red Pepper elections.

Each year at this time anxious girls begin thinking seriously about whether or not they will run for a Red Pepper office or cheerleading position.

These girls energetically begin campaigning, practicing, and worrying.

Before making their decision to run, however, these girls should ask themselves a few basic questions.

Among these questions should be how much the girls think of the Red Pepper organization and how enthusiastic they are about the sports in which the Bulldogs participate.

There are endless details involved in running a large organization efficiently. It is up to the officers, with the help of their sponsors, to see that these things are done.

Officers and especially cheerleaders must have a genuine enthusiasm for their school, team, and the organization. They should be willing to attend as many sport functions as possible.

The Red Pepper organization is the finest group of girls ever assembled. They share a common bond that goes much farther than their red and black uniforms.

A Red Pepper is a member of more than just a pep club. She is a part of an association of girls who like to have fun.

Red Peppers is a state of mind. It is like the feeling that can come to a person as he hears "The Red and the Black" for the last time his senior year.

A girl who sees Red Peppers as a "big bore, or as a group of silly rules" is definitely not the type of girl who should run for an office or cheerleading position. She should quit the organization and rid herself of all the trouble.

Girls who view Red Peppers as a status symbol should also rule out running.

Whoever is chosen to lead the organization throughout the '69-70 school year will need the cooperation of all Peppers.

If you run for an office, hoping to change Red Peppers, be careful--you might find out how much it means to you just the way it is.

----Denise Hipes

Education Is Background For Success In Future

IN TODAY'S WORLD of mechanization and change no one can be sure of his future. Regardless of how well organized one may have his life's plans, he cannot be sure how they will develop.

In years to come many jobs will be replaced by machines. Those who show that they are able to accept the responsibility will be chosen for the higher and better paying positions.

In a short time--perhaps too short--240 seniors will step into the world of business or further education. As adults seeking greater knowledge, they will also be striving for pride and satisfaction in all they do.

Even though the future is uncertain one should tackle it with self-confidence. Many problems will arise that will take wisdom and understanding to solve.

Students will gain wisdom and better understanding of these situations as his education continues. Each person is urged to do his very best each day and never give up working for the highest goals.

One will meet many different kinds of people--all with ideas different from his own. Individuals should always stick to what he thinks is right, no matter how strongly he is opposed.

Many people today are afraid to state their beliefs either because they do not know enough about a particular subject to discuss it, or they do not have enough knowledge to back their ideas.

By the time a person reaches high school age, his ideas are usually definitely established; but a person who wished to be successful and accepted will not be so stubborn or narrow-minded as to refuse to change his ideas when another's view seems to be a wiser choice.

Those who are most likely to succeed are the ones who realize the value of their education and make the most of it, the ones who stick by their ideas when they feel they are right, and those who face responsibility and change in the modern world of today.

FBLA Members To Participate In Convention

District Future Business Leaders of America convention will convene Saturday in the Poplar Bluff high school.

Spelling teams and Parliamentary Procedure teams will compete with similar school teams throughout the district.

Schools from throughout Southeast Missouri are expected to take part in this meet.

Those students participating on the spelling team are Danny Powers, Connie Snow, Patrice Haines, and Carla Greer.

No Paper Next Week; Staff Takes Break

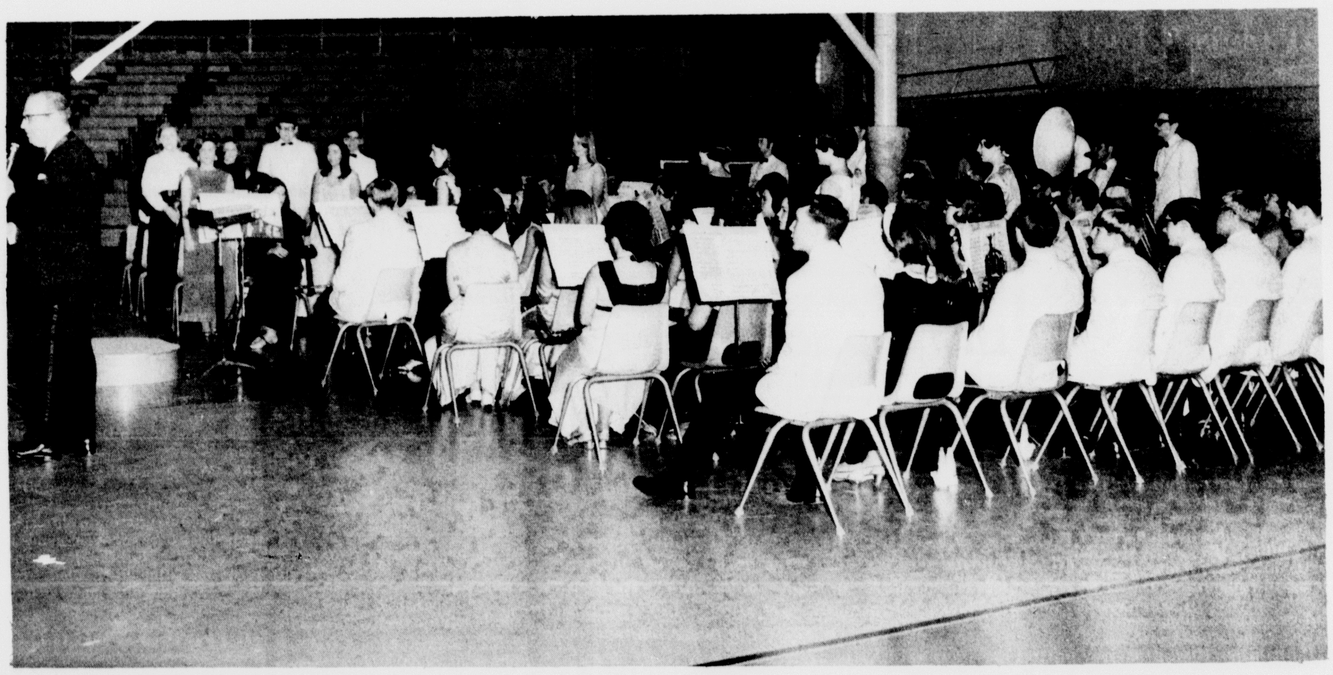
Bulldog Barker will not be published next Friday because of the three-day week for classes.

Students will take the Iowa Test of Educational Development Thursday and Friday, and staffers will be unable to print the paper.

Staffers will not publish the Barker inthe following week since the Easter holiday begins Thursday.

Students will return to school following the Easter vacation Tuesday morning, April 8.



DIRECTOR KEITH COLLINS recognizes graduating seniors at the early division band concert last Tuesday evening. Recognized were clarintists BARBARA NALL, DENISE HIPES, GAYLE GODWIN, NANCY TURNER, DALE FORBIS, and JOHN HOUGH. Flutist MARGARET MORRISON, contra-bass player LESLIE JOHNSON, and trombonist LARRY MCCANN were recognized. French horn players DONNA WHEELER and LANA DILLENDER, percussionist JIM DOGGETT, bass playeALAN BRYANT, and baritone player DOUG CROWE were among those recognized.

CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR—The minidress is red-headed Nora Andreson's campaign outfit for the position of Mayor of Los Angeles. She says male politicians are asleep on the job. Her proposals include legalized gambling, health foods in the City Hall cafeteria and 10 minutes of morning exercise for the City Council. The building in the background is City Hall.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS EXTREMELY compact one-bedroom Florida retirement home has five rooms plus two porches and a carport. Yet needs a front of only 48 feet and will even fit on a 40-foot-wide lot and still meet stringent zoning requirements. Economical back-to-back plumbing brings together around one central installation the kitchen, the bathroom and the hot water heater. Heating is via centrally located dual oil-fired wall furnace or by electric ceiling heat. Plan HA582R features a long, high, spacious cross-ventilated living-dining room 25 feet deep with sliding glass doors at each end connecting to screened porches. The kitchen's L-shaped work counter is hidden from the living areas' view. The house has 764 square feet of living space. Architect is Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla.

PRECIOUS WATER flows from a wall faucet in India and an old man cups his hands to drink. Hundreds of thousands of citizens were saved from the ravages of drought in the Indian states of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh through the efforts of the government and UNICEF. The government authorized the drilling of 6,500 hand-pump wells in Bihar and several thousand more in Uttar Pradesh. UNICEF provided foodstuffs, vehicles, drugs, equipment and base training costs for the well drilling.

The WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Save a place in the sun of your 1969 garden for a new hybrid tomato that is very resistant to verticillium and fusarium wilts, two troublesome diseases.

This early tomato, named Burpee's VF Tomato, is the result of 15 years of research at Fordhook Farm trial grounds.

The new hybrid is described as an abundant producer of medium-large, rich red, firm, meaty, small-cored fruits. The tomatoes are smooth and extremely crack-resistant. They may be left on the vine to ripen their full flavor. The plants are fine for staking and have heavy foliage to protect large, close fruit clusters.

The tomatoes are ready for picking 72 days after plants are set out.

* * *

Primitive types of tomatoes are believed to have originated in Peru. And resistance to both fusarium wilt and verticillium were found in early Peruvian tomatoes. Through extensive inbreeding, hundreds of crosses and selective testing for many years, the disease-resistant traits were transferred to large hybrid fruits.

Feed hybrids a bit more than you would other types of tomatoes. Apply fertilizer when transplanting and when plants begin to bloom.

Ultra Low Volume Spraying

There is always the risk of harmful side effects to plants, animals, soil and water from spraying plants with pesticides. Without pesticides, however, insects would cause severe damage to crops and prices would mount.

With this paradox in mind, the Michigan State University Agricultural Experiment Station is working to eliminate harmful pesticides from insect control. This includes study of systematic application (in the plant rather than on foliage), and reduced dosages on the plants. Another search is on for good nonchemical pest controls.

A full-grown ocean sunfish may measure 11 feet and have a weight of 2,000 pounds.

gram crops against cereal leaf beetle. In 1966 the cost had been reduced to 24 cents through ultra low volume spraying in which only four ounces of undiluted malathion were applied per acre.

This saved $3 million in Michigan in 1966, a three-fold return on the $190,000 invested in this research over two years.

The same technique is being used on fruit crops and Christmas trees.

The university scientists are plotting the life and death of many insects to seek to eliminate as many as 90 to 95 per cent of insects before they become adults.

Early studies, they report, show a one per cent increase in the annual death rate of insects would eventually reduce populations to tolerable levels, and in many cases eliminate the need for chemical control.

Political Boss Leander Perez Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Leander H. Perez Sr., a short tempered political czar once excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church for resisting racial integration, is dead at the age of 77. The multimillionaire boss of oil-rich Plaquemines Parish, whose wrath at various times centered on Negroes, Jews, political opponents and the U.S. Navy, was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday night at his Idlewild plantation.

He had been released Monday from a New Orleans hospital where he was treated for a heart attack suffered on Jan. 10.

Perez once declared he would oppose racial integration "til death." He was excommunicated in 1962 for blocking the opening of a Plaquemines parochial school which had admitted Negroes.

In 1966 a federal court issued a decree integrating the public schools of Plaquemines Parish, a low-lying area extending from south of New Orleans along the Mississippi River to the Gulf of Mexico. Perez, longtime president of the Parish Council, was placed under injunction not to interfere.

The injunction was still in force when he died.

In 1963 Perez tangled with the U.S. Navy, which has an air station within the parish at Belle Chasse, over the integration of bars and other public places in the area.

Perez had the Parish Council declare all drinking places off limits to uniformed servicemen and the air station off limits to all civilians.

"We say to hell with you," he told the Navy.

Perez also threatened to bar about 100 children of air station personnel from public schools, but relented when threatened with court action.

In the 1968 presidential election Perez backed the third party candidate, former Albama Gov. George C. Wallace, who carried Louisiana.

Politically, Perez dominated Plaquemines Parish for more than 40 years. For much of that time he also controlled neighboring St. Bernard Parish, but his grip there loosened in recent years because of an influx of new residents from New Orleans.

The two sons survive, along with two daughters, three sisters, 19 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Homestead Air Base Beefs Up Its Warplane Strike Force

The United States is doubling its warplane strike force at Homestead Air Force Base, south of Miami, across the Florida Straits from Communist Cuba.

Why;

The Pentagon does not say why. It says merely that the 4531st Tactical Fighter Wing at Homestead is being doubled in size with F4D Phantom fighter - bombers - which Air Force spokesmen call "the hottest thing that is operational right now."

But why does the United States want 60 to 72 of the big figher - bombers at Homestead, only 225 miles from Cuba, instead of sending them to Viet Nam or Thailand?

-A Soviet arms buildup in Cuba beginning late last year.

-The recent Kosygin- Castro talks in Havana.

-Repeated U.S. denial of a pledge never to invade Cuba.

- Recent announcements concerning Panama Canal treaties.

- An increase in Communist guerrilla activity in Latin America.

-Venezeula's determined effort for collective OAS action against Cuba.

Not all these developments necessarily are related to the buildup at Homestead, which served as the nerve center of military operations during the 1962 missile crisis with Cuba. But they all point toward increased tension between this country and the Cuban regime.

The Defense Department denies the Homestead buildup has anything to do with a reported arms buildup in Cuba and even denies any knowledge of such a development on the island. But it also denied, in the late summer of 1962, knowledge of a missile buildup after Cuban refugees and other groups reported the Russians were installing the weapons.

Seeking the probable reason for the new plane buildup at Homestead, we contacted an organization in Miami which sifts reports coming out of Cuba. A spokesman, who said an increase in activity is expected, said that any rumors of another 'Bay of Pigs" type invasion are groundless. He also discounted any connection between denial of the no - invasion pledge - issued by the State Department after a Khrushchev televised interview - and the plant buildup.

Any move against the Panama Canal, of course, might bring quick action and anticipation of any such move might result in stationing more warplane strength as near the canal as possible in this country.

The Castro regime, of course, has pushed Communist subversion and guerrilla activities in Latin America an; recently has stepped up the pace in certain areas, particularly Venezuela and Bolivia. Capture of a small Cuban - led landing party in Venezuela has resulted in demands on Caracas for hemispheric action against the Cuban regime.

Meanwhile, the six - day war in the Middle East was a blow to Cuban hopes. The Soviet Union, which had pledged support to Egypt, failed to deliver effective help at the critical point. In effect, Egypt was "dumped."

Regardless of the reports that came out of the Kosygin - Castro meetings, it is highly likely that Aleksei Kosygin's principal business in Cuba was to reassure Cuba and to formulate further plans for guerrilla activity in Latin America. Military nature of the talks is indicated by the fact that of the nine top Cubans conferring with the Soviet premier, five were military men not normally concerned with domestic policy matters.

Cuba has functioned as a training camp for subversives, both Cuban and otherwise, and has been effective in infiltrating them into target countries to engage in terrorist activities. Much of this delivery of subversives is believed to be by submarine - perhaps Soviet.

With the infiltration on the increase, Venezuela demanding action against Cuba action against Cuba and the Soviet Union backing the Cuban effort, the United States is believed to be stepping up its surveillance of sea-borne movements from Cuba. For such surveillance it also needs planes capable of high performance as fighters.

The Cubans presently are using "assault teams" consisting of fast torpedo boats, helicopters and MIG fighters. The F4D Phantoms at Homestead are the answer to the MIGs.

The Phantoms have a range of some 1,300 miles, when loaded. They have a practical strike capability, however, of 450 to 550 miles. This means that the planes at Homestead Air Force Base can move quickly to any point over the Yucatan Channel and as far as Jamaica in the Caribbean to cover the increased surveillance activities. Under certain conditions thev could move considerably farther from Homestead.

Movement of the F4D's to Homestead points strongly to the surveillance effort. But should there be a movement of considerable numbers of troops into the area, it will be a safe guess that Cuba is undertaking another missile buildup.

Mr. Paul Bethel of the Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba (CCFC) recently told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee he has reports of missile presence in Cuba from at least 50 witnesses Type and range of the missiles was not definitely established, but he testified that the missiles were not the surface - to - air, short range variety.

LIFE LINES readers may recall that it was the CCFC which first revealed that Russians had installed intermediate range ballistic missiles in Cuba. After weeks of denial, Washington officially recognized the presenc of the miysiles and was faced with the Cuban missile crisis.

Chartered Plane Crash Kills 16

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A chartered plane carrying a group of Tennessee sportsmen on a hunting trip crashed and burned while landing in heavy fog Thursday at New Orleans International Airport and the coroner reported 16 men killed.

"We believe there are 16 dead," said Dr. Charles B. Odom, Jefferson Parish coroner. "It fits in with the number of those on board the plane—27—three crewmen and 24 passengers." Odom said he believed all the bodies had been removed from the charred aircraft.

Earlier, Fire Chief William Mancuso of Kenner, who helped set up a temporary morgue at the airport, said 19 bodies were visible in the wreckage.

Eleven survivors, none of them in serious condition, were rushed to Ochsner Foundation Hospital. Only three were admitted.

The plane, a DC3, had been sold Wednesday by Avion Corporation to a broker and had been chartered by the West Tennessee Sportsmen's Association.

"A doctor said he counted 10 bodies in sight in the plane," said Jay Charrier, a lineman for the General Aviation Corp. "Myself, I saw about three bodies."

Authorities said the plane came from Memphis and was headed for Belize, British Honduras. It was landing here to refuel and go through customs.

The plane crashed at 7:02 a.m. (CST) on the east-west runway. The crash left a gaping hole in the fuselage, and propellers and other parts were scattered across the runway for 1,000 yards.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

Senate hearings have uncovered wide differences between various Federal laws and regulations affecting the thousands of citizens who are displaced each year because of Federally funded public works projects.

A bill introduced by Senator Muskie would resolve many of these differences and would be of assistance in solving the kinds of problems which have faced many Missourians in recent years.

This bill would:

--Allow compensation payments where businesses are asked to move to make way for a highway, reservoir, or other project.

--Provide for Federal payment to individual families for some relocation costs.

-Insure that the landowner is given the opportunity to accompany the appraiser during property inspection.

Other provisions are being considered.

Relocation due to Federal projects often places heavy burdens on citizens who must sell their peroperty and find a new home or new farm. During the last ten years, one million families, 180,000 businessmen, and 40,000 farmers have been forced to relocate due to projects sponsored by one or more of 50 Federal agencies.

It would be my hope that every consideration be given by each Federal agency to the needs and problems of individual citizens. Certainly a first step ithe right direction would be to have a fair and unified system of Federal relocation assistance and land acquisition.

NEW FARM CREDIT GOVERNOR — Congratulations are in order for Edwin A. Jaenke who is the new Governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

Mr. Jaenke was agricultural assistant on my staff for several years before being appointed Associate Administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and Vice President of the Commodity Credit Corporation in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Prior to joining my staff he was teaching and doing research in agricultural economics at the University of Missouri.

He is the youngest man to ever hold his new position.

The Board he heads supervises the cooperative Farm Credit System, through which farmers and their cooperatives borrow about $10 billion a year. The System is made up of 12 Federal land banks, 664 Federal land bank associations, 12 Federal intermediate credit banks, 453 local production credit associations, and 13 banks for cooperatives.

Woman Sues Railroad For Unsafe Platform

Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Clara was a blonde beauty standing over six feet tall. She weighed over 200 pounds and each ounce was used to the greatest advantage in providing her with more curves than a road map. And, to accentuate her physical charms, she wore a pair of spiked high heel shoes as she waited patiently on a platform to catch a train.

As fate would have it, however, Clara never caught the train. The railroad company had used some asphalt material to patch up the concrete platform and, as Clara stood on it, one of her heels sank slowly into the asphalt. The result? Statuesque Clara toppled over, broke her ankle and sued the railroad company for her injury.

"Railroad platforms must be safe for passengers," she complained in court. "Obviously, if a woman's heel can sink into the platform, it's not safe."

"There was nothing wrong with the platform," responded a railroad company official, "The trouble was with Clara. She was too much of a good thing. She was more woman than any woman should be."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the railroad company pay hefty Clara for her injury?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that considering Clara's weight and the size of her heel, she would have exerted a downward pressure equal to 1,400 pounds per square inch. Under the circumstances, concluded the judge, she was not a proper measure to determine whether the material used to mend the platform was adequate to make the platform safe for passengers.

Baker Auctions Train Car Truman Used in Campaign

VERNON, Calif. (AP) — The plush railroad car that carried Harry S. Truman coast-to-coast in his 1948 "give 'em hell" presidential campaign will be returned to his home state of Missouri.

On a dusty railroad siding in this industrial Los Angeles suburb, a Kansas City building contractor bid $77,000 Thursday to become the third owner of the midnight blue and gold private car.

"I buy this car on behalf of Alex Barket, who wants to bring it back to Kansas City in honor of the great state of Missouri," cried Robert F. Koste, representative of Metropolitan Construction Co. of Kansas City, as the auctioneer gaveled the lively bidding to a close.

Koste said Barket, board chairman of Metropolitan, "called me Wednesday and told me to run over and look at it. We did and he called that night and said buy it."

As he signed a check for $80,850, including tax, Koste said Barket may place the 28-year-old car in an industrial park, Bryams Ford Park.

"It's part of vanishing America," he said.

Bidding started at $20,000 and quickly spurted upward. Koste's last competitor, Joseph Ellis, a Del Mar, Calif., trailer dealer, withdrew at $76,000. He said he wanted to take the mahogany-paneled car to the San Diego County Fair as a tourist attraction, charging admission.

Watching the bidding as the seller, Thomas F. Baker, 51, San Francisco land developer and Southeast Missouri cotton planter who purchased the car in 1965. He kept it at a siding in Aspen, Colo., where he was able to cast a fishing line from the observation platform into the Roaring Fork River.

A group of women bidders wanted to travel across the country playing bridge in it.

Emergency Loan Funds Asked for Area Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal emergency and operating loan funds have been asked for some southeast Missouri farmers so that they can plant their spring crops.

In a letter to the President, Missouri senators Stuart Symington and Thomas F. Eagleton, and Rep. William D. Burlison, all Democrats, have asked release of an additional $16 million from the nationwide emergency loan fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Missouri's share of the $16 million would amount to $900,000 in emergency loans, they said.

The three members of congress said that high interest rates and severe crop losses in southeast Missouri last year have caused a credit shortage that has left the FHA as the only source of financing for many farm operators.

In all, they said, $2 million will be needed during the balance of the 1969 fiscal year up to June 30 to meet minimum needs of Missouri farmers unable to obtain loans from any source other than the FHA.

Caldwell Indicted For Counterfeiting

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nelson Eddy Caldwell, a Poplar Bluff, Mo., printer, was charged in a federal indictment returned Thursday with possession of counterfeit money and plates and with passing bogus money to confederates for distribution.

Caldwell was arrested earlier this month by Secret Service agents.

The four - count indictment, reported to U.S. Dist. Judge Roy W. Harper, charged Caldwell with possession on Feb. 3 of 448 bills and on March 4 of 350 bills of $5, $10 and $1 denominations.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Memorial Dedication Event Set

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — The dedication of the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library here May 7 will be a day-long event.

The restored church of St. Mary, Aldermanbury, brought to the campus of Westminster College from the bombed ruins of its site in London, is the center of the memorial. It was in March 1946, that the famous British leader delivered here his "Iron Curtain" speech warning of Soviet post World War II policies.

The principal speech at the dedication will be given by Admiral of the Fleet The Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

Lord Mountbatten and other dignitaries will attend a morning press conference in the restored church.

Dr. Robert L.D. Davidson, president of Westminster, said today that Winston S. Churchill II, grandson of Sir Winston, will atttend the news conference with these additional participants:

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, a member of the Churchill Memorial Program Committee; the British ambassador to the United States, John Freeman, and Mrs. Freeman; Mrs. Christopher Soames, wife of the British ambassador to France and the daughter of the late Sir Winston; Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.

A parade through the streets of Fulton is also listed among dedication activities for the day.

To accommodate newsmen, Westminster College is making available two press rooms, with telephones and special facilities for photographers, television and radio. The director of affairs at the memorial, Virgil Johnston, has been designated to furnish press cards for news media representatives desiring to be accredited for the day's activities.

Gov. Faubus Marries

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland were married today in a private ceremony in a Baptist church. It came three weeks after his first wife divorced him.

The former governor said he met Mrs. Westmoreland in mid-1967 when she went to his home in Huntsville to discuss "Info '68" a television program for the Democratic party. She was the program's commentator.

Faubus, 58, was divorced March 1 by his wife of 37 years, Alta, and friends had known for some time that he intended to marry the 30-year-old divorcee who has two children, an 11-year-old girl and a 9-year-old boy.

Water Bill Advances to Senate Floor

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A watered down water bill was approved Wednesday by the Senate Conservation Committee.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, committee chairman, said the State Water Resources Board would have the power, after a hearing, to protect reservoir water from waste in order to comply with federal requirements.

The board would also set up a reporting system for use of water of more than 25,000 gallons a day—including groundwater, streams and reservoirs.

Cason said the new bill was designed primarily as a reporting system to find out how Missouri uses its water. The permit system which drew widespread opposition was eliminated.

The committee also approved a bill to require titling of motor boats and one to transfer Round, Alley and Big Spring state parks on the Current and Jacks Fork rivers to the National Park Service as part of the National Scenic Riverways.

The Senate Education Committee approved bills to allow Jackson County to establish special schools for the handicapped and one to change school board election dates in Kansas City.

The committee also considered a measure but took no action to increase retirement benefits for teachers in the five state colleges.

Sen. A. Basey Van Landingham, D-Columbia, sponsor, said it would bring those teachers up to a par with teachers in public elementary and high schools. The proposal would cost the state $153,000 the first year and $69,000 the next two years. Both the state and teachers would have to increase their contributions to the retirement fund.

Reds Strike With Renewed Force

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese smashed into American bases with renewed fury today, hitting them with rockets, mortars and infantry assaults that caused serious casualties and losses of aircraft, vehicles and fuel.

In one of the heaviest series of blows since the opening of the spring offensive 27 nights ago, enemy rockets and mortars hit 65 allied bases and towns, and infantry assults ripped into three of the bases.

It was the largest number of attacks since last Friday, when 70 bases and towns were hit.

All of the enemy infantry attacks were on American bases along the northwest approaches to Saigon, between 31 and 51 miles from the capital. Twelve Americans were killed and 47 wounded, while known enemy losses were 38 dead, U.S. spokesmen said.

Ten of the Americans were killed and 28 were wounded in one attack on an artillery base.

Spokesmen said only five enemy bodies were found after an estimated 400 North Vietnamese attacked the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division's Fire Support Base White behind a 150-round mortar barrage. However, the Americans said many blood trails and drag marks were found, indicating the enemy took a number of wounded and dead with them when they pulled back toward the Cambodian border at daybreak.

The attack began shortly before 3 a.m. when mortars, bazooka-type rockets and small arms hit the American camp 50 miles northwest of Saigon. The 250 American troops called for help, hurriedly donned their gas masks as the North Vietnamese fired tear gas grenades, and turned the base's eight 105mm and 155mm guns on the enemy positions. Helicopter gunships fired rockets as one of the camp's a guns illuminated the enemy batteries with flares.

All the Americans killed were victims of the bombardment. Six were members of a mortar platoon trying to hit the enemy mortars. The other four were riflemen in a bunker that took a direct hit.

Two infantry assaults were made on the south and east sides of the base within 90 minutes, but they were small, officers said. Thirty enemy troops were repulsed in the first thrust, while 15 to 20 North Vietnamese failed to find an opening in the second assault.

Only 12 of the 28 Americans wounded had to be evacuated. The rest were treated and returned to duty.

The base is one of four artillery and patrol camps along the southern edge of the Viet Cong's War Zone which impede the enemy approach to Saigon from the northwest.

White Base is just north of the Michelin rubber plantation where more than 10,000 American troops and scores of tanks are trying to root out an estimated 7,500 North Vietnamese threatening Saigon. U.S. intelligence officers said the purpose of the attack on the base apparently was to tie down the artillery batteries while North Vietnamese troops tried to maneuver away from American ground forces closing on them.

AP photographer Horst Faas reported from the area that the bulk of the North Vietnamese believed to have been in the Michelin plantation area apparently had escaped to the north and east.

Only one major contact was reported today in the big U.S. counteroffensive, known as Operation Atlas Wedge. Troops of Col. George S. Patton's 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment and men of the 1st Air Cavalry Division fought a day-long battle 45 miles northwest of Saigon Thursday, and killed at least 72 North Vietnamese, U.S. headquarters said.

The North Vietnamese cut into Patton's tanks and armored personnel carriers with heavy small arms fire, machine guns and armor piercing rocket-grenades. The tanks replied with their 90mm cannon while the personnel carriers fired .50-caliber machine guns.

The headquarters said one American was killed and 12 wounded, but damage to the armored column was "light to moderate," meaning some tanks and personnel carriers were destroyed or damaged.

Military spokesmen said the big Atlas Wedge force now has killed about 300 of the enemy since the operation was launched Tuesday. About half a dozen Americans have been killed and about 55 wounded, they said.

In an attempt to catch the escaping enemy, more than 40 B52 bombers pounded the area north of the plantation with over 1,200 tons of explosives.

One shelling apparently seriously damaged the U.S. Marine air base at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, where several squadrons of figher-bombers are based.

Several rockets slammed into the base, and while U.S. Headquarters would not specify what damage was caused, it appeared that some planes were hit. Spokesmen said some Americans were wounded, but no one was killed.

Other targets included Da Nang Air Base, the biggest north of Saigon, the nearby Marine air station at Marble Mountain, no reported casualties or damage; a U.S. Army transportation base near Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon, moderate damage and some Americans wounded; an American fuel storage depot near Qui Nhon, 260 miles northeast of Saigon, "light to moderate damage," and the headquarters of the U.S. 1st Marine Division at Da Nang, of the 4th Infantry Division in the central highlands and of the 1st Infantry Division, north of Saigon.

The U.S. Command also reported the loss of 11 more helicopters and a jet fighter-bomber. One helicopter and the jet were shot down Wednesday and Thursday in the northernmost provinces, killing two men and wounding five. Most of the other helicopters apparently were destroyed by enemy shelling in the past week.

The report raised aircraft losses from all causes in the Vietnam war to 2,452 helicopters and 2,615 fixed-wing planes, the U.S. Command said. sIn the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, six battalions of the U.S. 9th Ifantry Division killed about 80 Viet Cong in a widespread series of skirmishes. U.S. casualties were said to be light.

Laird Pledges New War Course If Talks Fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird pledged today that if the Paris peace talks fail to end the conflict in Vietnam, "We will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct."

He did not say what that alternative would be.

Laird made that statement after Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., shifted the course of a Senate hearing away from the hotly contested antiballistic missile (ABM) system with a critique of Nixon administration handling of the Vietnam war.

Fulbright said the question of armaments and their control is linked with that of the Southeast Asian conflict.

"Isn't it possible, Mr. Secretary, to realize that we are not now and never have been winning this war?" he asked Laird.

"If this administration continues and escalates this war in Vietnam, it will soon be Mr. Nixon's war," the senator said.

"I would just like to say that this administration is committed to end the war in Vietnam," Laird said. "We are presently engaged in very important peace talks in Paris."

Then he declared:

"I want you to know that we are hopeful that we will be successful in the talks ... but if we are not successful, and we pray for success, I can assure you that we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct of that war."

Laird denied that the administration dropped the old Sentinel missile defense project because of public protests, insisting that the change came "because we have a better system."

On Vietnam, Laird said: "I do not believe that it serves this nation or the cause of peace in Southeast Asia any real good to carry on our negotiations in public at this time."

He said peace efforts are being made privately, as well as formally and publicly.

Fulbright remained critical and caustic. "I've heard this before and I accepted it before for a while," he said.

Laird said discussion of a shift from city defenses to the Safeguard system, President Nixon's plan to defend U.S. offensive nuclear bases with antiballistic missiles (ABM), was under way even before the public protests against deployment near Boston, Chicago and Seattle.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., told Laird it appeared to him the protests had led to re-examination of the missile defense program and the shift to 'a completely different mission."

Nixon Calls on Truman To Patch up Differences

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — President Nixon and Harry S. Truman repaired their longstanding breach today with Nixon delcaring that where the nation's strength is concerned, "We're not Republicans or Democrats—we are all Americans."

Accompanied by Mrs. Nixon the President visited the former chief executive at his home here. Truman and his wife awaited them on the front porch and exchanged cordial greetings before moving inside for some conversation.

Nixon beamed at the Trumans but the former President—who had severed relations with Nixon more than 16 years ago in a hassle over campaign oratory—looked sober as he greeted his visitors. He did bow low when shaking hands with Mrs. Nixon.

On the drive to Independence from Kansas City Municipal Airport, Nixon halted his motorcade twice to greet school children.

Outside Van Horn High School in Independence, Nixon climbed to the hood of his limousine and, using a battery-powered megaphone, told hundreds of students that 20 years ago—before they were born—he has supported Truman in the establishment of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He said his reunion visit with the former President demonstrated that where the nation's strength and security are involved, Republicans and Democrats join together.

"That's what this visit is all about," he said.

Moving on to the Truman Library to short ride from the family home, the two men walked in side by side, spent a few minutes in Truman's office and then came out into a reception room where the piano, the former president used at the White House was waiting.

Nixon had had it shipped out and in presenting it, Nixon again struck the theme, and Truman agreed, that where peace and defense are concerned there are no Democrats or Republicans - only Americans.

Truman said he appreciated what Nixon had done in getting the piano for the library but that he couldn't play it. Mrs. Truman asked Nixon to and he did - "The Missouri Waltz."

The Trumans went back home while the Nixons were taken on a tour of the library.

The piano was the unlikely peace symbol to end one of the nation's nastiest political feuds - the Truman-Nixon split.

Several Hubcaps Stolen

Mrs. Jewel Blalack, route four, Sikeston, reported to police that someone stole four hubcaps from her automobile yesterday morning while it was parked on the parking lot at Two Tony's Restaurant. They were valued at $85.

Cline Ables, 1200 Ables Road, reported this morning that someone stole four hubcaps off his car last night while it was parked at his residence. They were valued at $62.

Robert Cooper and Curtis Jobe, both of Bertrand, reported last night that someone stole all four hubcaps off their cars that were parked at the skating rink. Cooper's caps are valued at $65. No estimate was made for the other caps.

Police reported that someone broke into a coin machine at the Kwiki Car Wash on Tanner Street last night and stole $6. The business is owned by John Felker.

Three Injured In Accidents

Three persons were injured in area highway accidents Thursday, two in Ripley county, and one in Stoddard county.

A 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Paul Smith Jr., 17, Doniphan, went out of control while rounding a curve, and went into a ditch.

The accident occurred Thursday afternoon on highway 142, three miles west of Naylor.

Injured was the driver with a back injury, and a passenger, Susan Smith, 16, Doniphan, who was treated at Ripley County Memorial hospital, for bruises.

Henry Baker, 65, Bloomfield, passenger in a 1953 Chevrolet, driven by Georga Hamil, 67, Dexter, suffered a broken left leg and cuts on his forehead, in an accident at 3:50 p.m. Thursday on highway 60, four miles west of Dexter.

The Hamil car was following too closely behind a 1958 Chevrolet, driven by Lola Marie Woods, 67, Dexter.

The Woods car made a right turn, and the Hamil car went into a ditch to avoid hitting the Hamil car.

Baker was taken to the Veterans hospital, Poplar Bluff.

MRS. DOROTHY POWELL, a teacher in the Sikeston public schools for 20 years, was named "Woman of the Year" at the eleventh annual B&PW banquet held last night at the American Legion hall. The affair is sponsored by the Sikeston Business and Professional Women's club. Mrs. Powell was cited for her many years of service to the underprivileged children and her work in many organizations.

Mrs. Dorothy Powell Is 'Woman of the Year'

Approximately 400 were present last night at the American Legion hall to see the "Woman of the Year" selection. Only a few short sentences of a biographical sketch were necessary before everyone recognized Mrs. Dorothy Powell, a teacher in the Sikeston public schools for 20 years. She teaches fourth grade at Lee Hunter Elementary School.

After introducing the former "Women of thyyear", Mrs. Dale White read a short history of the accomplishments of Mrs. Powell.

Mrs. Powell was cited for her work with the underprivileged children, her work with school children who required special attention, her charities to her neighbors, time taken to visit nursing homes and the sick, and her participation in many clubs and organizations. She has participated actively in the Order of the Eastern Star, Parent-Teachers Association Women's Division of Chamber of Commerce, Missouri Association for Social Welfare, Community Concert Association, Business and Professional Women's club, Council of Exceptional Teachers and the Sew and Chat club. She was the coordinator of the Sew and Chat club, organized to sew for the needy and to provide money for underprivileged children. She has worked in the local elections, cancer drives, Red Cross and UNICEF. A member of the First Christian church, she has taught Sunday school since she was 15 years old. She has opened her home to ministers, scouts, and students for weeks at a time. Because of her modesty, many of her efforts have gone unknown.

Mrs. Powell replaces Mrs. Burt Rowe, Sr., who was the 1968 "Woman of the Year".

Capt. H. S. Matthews Jr. was the guest speaker for the ceremonies. He spoke on his experiences with the young men under his command and the sacrifices that must be made to keep America free. He pointed out that freedom is never really free, that it must be guarded again and again. Noting the trends of some of the youth of this country, he denounced their lack of respect for laws and other people's rights. He spoke of the hippies with their "long hair hanging down their dirty backs," and felt that riots and campus rebellions should be squashed immediately.

Speaking of the navy and its purpose in the national defense, he called it the "over the horizon force", rarely seen but always there to stabilize world peace. He said it was difficult for the average citizen to understand or appreciate the role of our countries national defenses.

Capt. Matthews, commander officer of the U. S. S. Independence, concluded his speech with a presentation of a plaque to the B & PW club. He received a standing ovation.

Colonel Robert A. Dempster presented Mrs. Powell with a Distinguished Citizen Award on behalf of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. Other honors bestowed upon Mrs. Powell were the Key to the City presented by Mayor Kendall Sikes, a gift certificate from Baugher's Studio, a charm from Mrs. Darrell Alcorn, and a silver bowl from Jack Hogan, president of Security National Bank. Mrs. Powell accepted the awards and gifts and said "I will try to live up to your expectations".

Mrs. Dale White announced the past women of the year and Mrs. Alcorn presented them with a rose. They were Mrs. Burt Rowe, Sr., 1968; Mrs. Keith Collins, 1967; Mrs. Franklin Struwe, 1966; Mrs. Earl Jarvis, 1965; Mrs. Violetta McGee, 1963; Mrs. Helen Reuber, 1962; Miss Electa O'Hara, 1961; Mrs. Joe McCord, 1960; and Mrs. Kenneth Smitten, 1959.

Others present were members of the B & PW clubs of Cape Girardeau, Caruthersville, Charleston, and Dexter.

Entertainment was furnished by the Sikeston high school Concert Choir, directed by Gordon Beaver, and Mrs. W. L. Clayton and Bob Williamson.

Mrs. Clayton closed the banquet with the navy hynm in honor of Capt. Matthews.

Spradling Supports Voting Machine Bill

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A bill to modernize Missouri's ox cart election laws won preliminary approval in the Senate today. The voice vote was unanimous.

One feature of the bill allows fast growing areas to use simple electronic voting machines or any other type of voting machines to count the ballots.

Sen, Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, said his county "is tremendously interested in this" to speed up the vote counting. He said a computer at Southeast Missouri State College coould be used to count the card punched by voters with a stylus.

"We would be able to count the vote in 15 minutes," he said, instead of waiting 26 or 28 hours as in the last election in some wards.

Sen. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D - Columbia, indicated Boone County also is interested in the new types of machines. Clay County is the only one authorized to use them now.

The bill also sets poll opening and closing hours at 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. The Senate defeated a move to make the opening time 6 a.m. Under the present law, rural areas keep the polls open until sundown when that is later than 7 p.m.

The bill was developed by a special Election Law Study Commission headed by Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy.

He won Senate approval of another bill to extend the life of the commission another two years to study such things as counting absentee ballots with the regular ballots — a recommendation of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

One change in the proposed new law would do away with the practice of scratching "yes" or "no" to vote on constitutional amendments, school bond issues and other propositions before the voters, instead voters would mark an "X" in a box, as they do in voting for candidates.

An attempt to move the primary election date from August to June in another bill was pending when the bill was laid over before the Senate quit work until Monday.

The House advanced a bill that would let the teachers in a school district organize a union and negotiate wages and working conditions with the school board. They would be barred from striking to enforce their demands.

The House rejected an amendment that would have forced the school board to negotiate with the teachers union but retained the idea that they could negotiate. Any teacher who struck could be fired.

There was no discussion as the House advanced a bill making substantial increases in the benefits under workmen's compensation.

Resisting Arrest Offense Brings $56 Fine, Sentence

A 30-day suspended jail sentence was revoked and an additional 10 days were assessed against John Joe Aycock, East Prairie, last night in City Court. He was charged with resisting arrest.

Judge James Sickal also imposed a $56 fine on the charge, and fined Aycock $21 for careless and imprudent driving.

The 30-day suspended jail sentence was pronounced against Aycock last year, pending good behavior for one year.

John Henry Stevenson, 303 Alabama, was fined $56 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence for assault.

Robert Franklin Henry, Sikeston, was fined $16 for disturbing the peace, and $12 for public intoxication.

Arthur Bernard, Watertown, N. Y., was fined $31 for carrying a concealed weapon, and $12 for public intoxication.

Jennie Harris, 227 Young, was fined $75 for petit larceny.

J. D. Rusisill, 309 South Scott, was fined $17 for careless and imprudent driving. Donald Ozment, 425 Maple, was fined $12 for the same offense.

A charge of trespassing against James E. Robinson, 230 Felker, was dropped upon payment of $6 court costs.

A careless and imprudent driving charge was dismissed against Paul E. Lomax, Matthews.

Gussie Murdock, 229 West Kathleen, forfeited a $7 bond when failing to appear to answer failure to have a city auto sticker charge. The same was done by Larry Lambert, 202 Marian, who was charged with he same offense.

A no city sticker charge against William Hennington, 101 Smith, was dismissed.

Piano Shipped to Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mahogany grand piano President Nixon is presenting to the Truman Library was a gift to the White House during the Franklin D. Roosevelt years.

A spokesman for the Steinway Piano Co. of New York, which gave the piano, said it was given to the executive mansion in 1937 at the request of Eleanor Roosevelt.

The piano was shipped to Missouri by the government so Nixon could make the presentation in Independence. Both he and former President Harry S. Truman play the piano.

No Contest for Seats

HOWARDVILLE -- No opponents filed against incumbents Tom Jennings and Jack White, aldermen of Wards One and Two, respectively, seeking re-election in the April 1 city election.

A proposition for an electrical franchise contract to Scott, New Madrid, Mississippi Rural Electric Co-op for a 10-year term with an option to renew for 10 years will be submitted for voter approval.

School Board Races Develop

NEW MADRID — A race has developed in the April 1 New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District election to elect two directors for three - year terms.

Incumbents Paul E. "Jack" Mahar, Marston, and James. R. "Bob" Blades, Parma, are being opposed by R. F. "Dick" Spitzer Jr. and Hoyt Butler, both of Parma.

Patrons also will be voting on a tax levy of $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation in addition to the amount allowed by law to make a total levy of $3 per $100 valuation.

Under the proposed tax levy Parma patrons will receive a 50 cent increase, Matthews 10 cents, and Higgerson, a $1.90 increase.

New Madrid and Lilbourn patrons' tax will remain the same, and Portageville taxpayers will realize a 25 cent reduction.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
MARCH SUNRISE

Each sunrise is a miracle. In a universe that extends unknown billions of miles from our planet in its solar system, our small fleck of material turns on its axis and light replaces darkness. Since ancient days men have felt the wonder of a Supreme Being which governs life.

All life is regulated by profound rhythms. Seasons come and go in inexorable sequence; flowers bloom and their seeds fall to the soil to insure the continuance of species. Some of the rhythms are prolonged; some are brief. Such is the sequence of dawns and sunsets, days and nights.

A March sunrise is a moving experience. When night's black curtain begins to change to gray, fields and hills, meadows and mountains begin to emerge. As the sun lifts above the horizon, the color in the sky is a painting of reds and pinks, rose and amber. Then the light rays strike the landscape and begin to color the uplands.

He who has watched the colors deepen on a hillside at dawn has seen a picture more beautiful than any painted by the hand of man. For a piognant interlude, the greens of pines and hemlocks and the lacings of gray birches and beeches is a changing picture of blended, pastel hues.

Minute by minute the colors change as the sun lifts in its pathway. The hilltop golows with maroon and saffron hues; the deep hues of the evergreens are tinged with shades of pink and rose and, for a moment of eternity, the landscape is like a bouquet.

Here's a new and exciting way to have an auto accident. Try colliding with a bathtub or a Brahma bull.

This accident was actually reported in claims filed with one of the largest auto insurers in the country.

One honest motorist reported that Santa Claus landed on his car, leaving the top looking like a saucer.

The facts between the lines were that the claimant parked his car to watch Kris Kringle parachute from a helicopter. It was a Christmas promotion stunt. But he parked too close to the landing area.

Another claim of the type that takes the drudgery out of insurance company paper work told the story of two motorists who tried to kill the same rattlesnake. Intent upon the malevolent reptile, the drivers didn't notice each other until their cars collided.

Here's another one, and the moral is, "Never lend your car to friends with aggressive tendencies." One man who did learned later that his friend, obviously oblivious to the fact that the car he was driving belonged to someone else, intentionally crashed it into 11 moving vehicles.

Pulling up alongside a car, he would roll down his window and yell, "Now it's your turn." He then would ram the other car, producing a scene reminiscent of a battle between bull elks during the mating season.

If you're wondering about that collision with a bathtub, it happened when the tub fell off a truck.

The Brahma bull escaped from a cattle truck and promptly charged the nearest rubber-tired bull. Its driver tromped down on his brakes -- and got a car in the trunk. The bull missed him, though.

All of which goes to prove that if you work for an insurance company and a policyholder tells a story that sounds ridiculous, don't laugh - it probably happened.

HOW THE UN PURCHASED A WHIRLWIND

Fevered and fitful, it passed a resolution concerning South West Africa. Now there are second thoughts.

In championing the rights of their brethern, the black African nations and the UN have bought themselves a whirlwind in the desert of South West Africa.

Yielding to demands of black African countries, the UN voted to terminate South Africa's mandate over South West declaring the giant desert territory "a direct responsibility of the United Nations."

Pressure to end the mandate grew from black African bitterness over the segregation or "apartheid policy" of South Africa's white government. The UN action flies in the face of a recent decision of the World Court, the judicial arm of the UN, which ruled that two African nations, Liberia and Ethiopia, had no legal grounds to bring the suit to set aside the mandate which was issued by the League of Nations. Only the League can do that, and it has gone out of business.

Overlooked were several matters germane to any plane to bring South Africa to its knees:

-South Africa has possession and will not willingly give it up. The African states which made an issue of the matter would like to use force but, recognizing South Africa's strength, had to resort to an amendment calling for a committee to study the situation and recommend ways of assuming the mandate.

-Although South West Africa is rich in potential, it exists almost entirely on its subsidy from South Africa.

-Britain is unlikely to back suggested sanctions against South Africa, for the best of reasons: it cannot afford to do so. It has the tidy sum of $3 billion invested in South Africa plus an annual trade advantage of about $150 million a year - a rather important item to consider when your Pound Sterling has a severe case of anemia.

The UN also leaped before it looked at the cost of its S. W. Africadventure. South Africa is pouring $200 million a year into its mandate - millions more than the entire administrative budget of the UN, which is up to its collective neck in debt. Should the UN take over the administration of South West Africa, it will have to take over financing too - a further burden on it and its principal supporter, the American taxpayer.

South Africa would probably quit the UN before giving in, and there is feeling that this move may not be very far away. Portugal, with its African territories of Angola and Mozambique, might follow. And would Rhodesia, which isn't a UN member, support the desertions?

The offended architects of the resolution are not in a position to fight a war. Neither is the U. S., for various national and international reasons. Nor is Britain which is having enough trouble with Rhodesia and a sick economy.

All in all, this last hope of peace, the UN, has stirred up the peace and bought a lot of trouble with its resolution.

MARCH'S UNCERTAIN TRUMPET FOR SPRING

March is here, and the temptation is strong to sing of spring.

The birds already are doing it. In the Austrian pine, the cardinal lifts his bell-like tenor at dawn. In the distance is heard the plaintive rain - crow call of the bluy jay. A starling on the lawn utters his surprising imitation of a bobwhite.

The buds of the magnolia tree still are tightly wrapped against winter, but the branches are alive as a pair of chickadees flits among them in perpetual excitement. And the crocuses under the south window, which a week ago were afraid to open their cloaks, now spread yellow robes over the litter of their winter mulch.

On days such as those which began our March, it is easy to be carried away with optimism. The sun rises, not in the stormy glory of exciting colors, but in a gentle rosy glow that spreads around the horizon. It illuminates a sky which often is a dome of blue - not the brittle blue of winter, but a softer shade. Clouds, when they come, are cotton puffs.

Such are the pleasant days of early spring - or, if you insist on the astronomical reckoning of seasons, late winter. In them men can plow fields and plant potatoes or, if they are of another bent, while away pleasant hours on the golf course. And if they prefer winter, there is still plenty of snow on the ski slopes of the Rockies.

Which reminds us that winter can, and probably will, play a return engagement in the Mid West, sweeping out of the north and out of the mountains with a great flourish of white banners. March, having come in like a lamb, can be expected to go out like a lion, if we accept the old saying. Modern meteorologists write it off as inaccurate; and indeed it is. But it conveys a warning that is true enough: March at some time, in our Mid-West, will book winter for what we may hope with some assurance will be his farewell appearance of the season.

There is an obvious lesson in this, and as men have been drawing morals from nature since the days of Aesop, we might as well point it out. Troubled days follow good ones with cruel certainity in our world. And if we are wise we will, while enjoying the good times, build up reserves of spirit as well as of material things to cope with hours of adversity.

In recent years, the idea of taking personal thought for the morrow has been discouraged by a rush of government measures to assure material sufficiency. But the good life calls for more; and there is no government subsidy for the human spirit.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Have you been embarrassed lately by mistaking a him for a her, or a her for a him?

Well, don't let it worry you. It's happening to everybody. Such mixups are quite normal, considering how much alike the two sexes think, talk, dress, act and look today.

It all started some years ago when the boys started imitating the girls. Now it is somewhat difficult to be sure who is imitating whom.

However, despite the present complexity of the problem, it is still possible for a careful student of human behavior to determine the sex of most of those he meets. There are always tipoffs of one kind or another.

Here are a few hints to guide the puzzled:

If it can hang by its heels from a playground iron bar, it's a boy. If it likes someone else to carry its books home from school, it's a girl.

Does it wear an itty-bitty watch surrounded by diamond chips? That's a young lady. Does it wear a larger watch with a metal or leather band? That's a young man..

If it can sew on a button without sticking the needle into its fingers, it's a woman. If it complains about how tired it is from sowing wild oats, it's a man.

So it like a tuna fish or peanut butter and jelly sandwich for lunch? Chances are it's feminine. Would it rather have a ham and egg sandwich? Chances are it's masculine.

Does it rush out to the icebox to get a cold beer at every third commercial on a television program? That's the papa. Does it simply murmur acidly, "Sooner or later you're going to turn into a beer can"? That's the mama.

Choice of words is sometimes an indication. If it says it's going to work, it's a Joe. If, preferring to employ a euphemism, it says it "goes to business,' it's a career Jane.

If it likes to gossip with its hairdresser while getting its tresses trimmed, it's a girl. If it closes its eyes and dozes the moment it sits down in a barber chair, it's a guy.

Does it count the years, months, days, hours and minutes until it will be able to retire? That's grandpa. Does it say in exasperation, "You know you'd never be happy just sitting around the house doing nothing?" Thats grandma.

CARE OF CLOTHES: A little steam from boiling water in a kettle will remove a "ring" on fabric after a spot has been treated with cleaning fluid...If the large end of your tie comes out shorter than the small and, because of a careless tieing job, take the time to re-tie it properly. Otherwise, the face of the tie will be badly mussed and wrinkled when next worn....Keep those shoes well-shined in rainy weather, not just for appearance sake, but because leather needs the lubrication of a polish.

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson say: Nixon campaign got millions through Agnew promise to block cheap New England oil; secretary Stans now pays off oil barons by "no action" strategy re Machiasport, HHH turned down same secret deal, got peanuts

WASHINGTON--This column has now dug out the details of a pre-election deal between the Texas oil barons and Vice President Spiro Agnew.

The oilmen met with Agnew last October 21 at the plus petroleum club in Midland, Tex., to discuss campaign finances. In return for their contributions they wanted Agnew's word that the Nixon administration would block occidental petroleum fr- building a $145 million oil refinery, storage complex and deepwater port at Machiasport, Me.

Under the proposal, Machiasport would be declared a "Foreign Trade Zone," which would permit occidental to import foreign oil free of the normal customs and trade restrictions. This could open New England to a flood of cheaper, low-pollutant fuel oil, which would undercut the rigged prices that the oil companies now charge for imported oil.

Agnew not only gave his secret pledge to the Texas oil crowd, but he has now reminded Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans of this commitment to block the Machiasport project.

Stans, an investment banker and big-game hunter who once shot a Bongo in the Congo, was the chief fund raiser for the Nixon campaign. He persuaded Agnew to attend the Petroleum club meeting and to put the arm on the fat cats. Approximately 20 oilmen showed up, including representatives of the major oil companies. Notes taken by one of the participants have been made available to this column.

--"Machiasport Is Dead"--

Shortly after 6 p.m., John Hurd, the Texas finance chairman for the Nixon campaign, began his pitch.

"I have good news for you," he told the assembled oilmen. "I have talked directly to Mr. Agnew. He has assured me that the occidental effort at Machiasport is dead. If he and Nixon are successful, there will be no refinery."

As an after thought, he blurted: "I hope there are no occidental people here."

"There sure are," spoke up Walter Davis, an occidental Vice President. A few minutes later, Agnew appeared and confirmed what Hurd had said.

"I assure you," he promised, "That any gimmick to get a refinery a t Machiasport will be killed."

Earlier, Hubert Humphrey had met with the same fat cats and had scrupulosly declined to oppose the Machiasport foreign trade zone. As a result, the oil barons cut off Humphrey with no more than token contributions but raised millions for the Nixon-Agnew campaign.

A foreign trade zone, though physically located in the United States, is considered for trade purposes to be outside the country. If Machiasport should be granted this status, occidental could bring in foreign oil for $1.25 to $1.46 a barrel less than the cost of domestic crude oil, currently $3.20 to $3.50 a barrel at Dallas.

--$300 Million Windfall--

Other oil importers pocket the difference, hich adds up to a staggering sum each year. On the East Coast alone, this windfall surpasses $300 million a year. Ye t not one cent of this has been passed along to the consumers.

In contrast, occidental has offered to slash prices both to civilian consumers and the Armed Forces. This almost surely would compel the other oil companies to give up part of their windfall, too. Result: All the other oil companies have ganged up angrily to block the occidental proposal.

Shell oil, for example, bitterly charged that occidental's windfall in imported crude oil would reach $65 million in the first full year of the Machiasport operation. Looked at another way, this was a startling admissi- from Shell that the import pr- -m is a tremendous Bonanza for companies fortunate enough to have oil import quotas.

Approval of the occidental deal is supposed to come from the Secretaries of Commerce, Treasury and Defense who, together, comprise the foreign trade zones board. In the past, their alternates have made the decisions, which have been ratified routinely by the busy cabinet officers over the phone.

The alternates, acting on the merits, voted a few weeks ago in favor of establishing a foreign trade zone at Machiasport. The oil tycoons immediately got hold of Agnew and reminded him of his October 21 pledge. True to his word, Agnew spoke to Stans who, as Commerce Secretary, is chairman of the foreign trade zones board.

Instead of accepting the decision of the alternates, Stans called an unprecedented meeting of the board. For the board to overrule the alternates, however, would have caused some awkward publicity. So the last minute, Stans called off the meeting and deferred the decision. It now looks as if he intends to block the Machiasport project simply by taking no action at all.

Dr. Alexander Sas-Jaworsky, Abbeville, La. -- Thanks for the information that Jacques Hnizdowsky, whose painting was hanging in President Nixon's temporary office in Washington, is a ukrainian, not a Russian-American. We note your statement, "May God have mercy on you" for making this mistake. We hope you will entreat Mercy also for the National collection of fine arts, from which we got the information.

Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy--Thanks for putting us straight on the fact that you are now a Democrat, not a Republican. The error was due to our linking you with your father, a strong Republican when he occupied your position in the State Department, and did not take into consideration, we should have, the fact that you are now married to a lovely Democrat, Eleanor Acheson, and that women's views do prevail.

RADICAL ON COMMISSION STAFF

Earlier this year the White House Commission on Violence was appointed to investigate the breakdown of law and order in our country. It is well-known that the staff of the commission will do most of the actual research and write most of the final report.

Staff members, therefore, should be individuals who can be trusted to make objective investigations into this serious probem. Yet one of the key members of the staff is a professor of the University of California at Berkeley, who regards violence as a sometimes permissible way of solving problems in our country.

Jerome Skolnick is co-director of the Commission's Task Force on Violent Aspects of Demonstrations and Protests. He can speak on violent demonstrations from first-hand knowledge since he has participated in several of them.

Skolnick is a member of the Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam. In this group, according to the House Committee on Un-American Activities, communists play the "dominant role."

Skolnick's attitude toward violence is clearly stated in his published writings. He has said that it is "increasingly difficult to draw a line between crime and political activity," and adds that an individual who burns down a department store may be engaged in "heroism." He has sanctioned "the violence revolutionary act" as a means of bringing about change.

Attitudes such as these have helped produce the atmosphere of violence in our country. If the Commission on Violence is to find meaningful solutions to the problem, it must hire investigators who are not themselves contributing to it. HLH

New Grand Old Party: Reuther Comes To The White House

Washington, D.C.: - Men are of many kinds politically, philosophically and religiously. And Richard Nixon believes their differences should not prevent their praying together. In this spirit, the President invited the iconoclastic Walter Reuther to worship services in the White House East Room last Sunday.

In view of Mr. Nixon's recent forgiving and recent eclecticism, this surprised a few friends of the President but did not startle them. Mr. Nixon has of late been more consensus conscious than even his predecessor.

But what did surprise those who know the militant auto union le- -r was that he came. He lis- -ed. He sat with other worshipers, not too many chairs from Gen. Westmoreland and university president Dr. S.I. Hayakawa, as the Rev. Louis H. Evans Jr. of the LaJolla (Calif.) Presbyterian Church conducted the services that morning.

Those who know Walter Reuther well were doubly startled. For they know the auto union leader as an agnostic "with sympathies," if I can steal a line from Somerset Maugham.

But come he did. And worship he did, in the home of the man whom he has fought so bitterly for so many years.

For Mr. Reuther, this visit is a most unusual gesture of reconciliation. He is virtually a total political man. His followers will take sharp note of his action. To him and to them this is no mere visit. He did not come to dine at some formal state function. He came to a man's home on a Sunday morning for prayers and a sermon.

This will not, of course, shake the faith of Mr. Reuther's beared colleague. West Coast UAW regional chief Paul Schrade, now building a new Democratic party coalition which hopes Edward Kennedy will lead it to the presidency once again. Nor will Mr. Reuther's even slight sign of empathy for Mr. Nixon deter those many auto union officials who will not shed their loyalty and devotion to Hubert Humphrey.

But the invitation to Mr. Reuther to come and sit with cabinet members as well as scrub women, chauffeurs as well as Gridiron Club officials, as a representative of labor during Rev. Evans' discourse on ethics and morality, is not being overlooked in knowledgeable political circles.

A strange phenomenon is developing in Republican ranks. Slowly Richard Nixon is developing influence and acceptance in labor ranks on levels and in relationships not easily discernible to the public. This comes from far more than formal dialogues with labor men. It springs, for example, in part from a willingness to accept some union chiefs as intimately (and perhaps more so) as did Lyndon Johnson.

Racing parallel with this phenomenon is the developing coolness between some militant leaders and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller -- a mighty stubborn man when he believes himself to be on a principled course.

And not too many have paid much heed to the course he's now taking -- one which might have been expected of a preelection Richard Nixon.

Gov. Rockefeller believes there comes a point where you can't spend money you haven't got.

So in New York he's seeking to cut the behemoth budget by 5 per cent while raising the sales tax. After all the arithmetic is done, the state will still be short some $280 million.

Mr. Rockefeller has decided that the cuts must -- among other items -- be made in welfare and medicaid.

There will be some trimming of the educational budget. But some cities, such as New York, still will get more than they did last year.

In addition, "Rocky" has pushed through a revised anti-public strike (Taylor) law. The growling in labor circles hasn't been a mere chorus of statements in public. There have been some furious confrontations. But Mr. Rockefeller doesn't budge when he believes he's right. Nor does he take pressure from his friends in or out of lab- not even from those he has hosted at cocktail parties in public halls or at private dinners under his surrealist art.

So Gov. Rockefeller slowly is losing some of his militant friends inside labor. Some simply are screaming. Some simply are drifting away. Some simply seek other alliances. Some, including those Mr. Rockefeller befriended during last year's stenchful 9-day garbage strike, are shifting to their old antagonist, Mayor John V. Lindsay, as he starts running for reelection.

It's fascinating to watch the remaking of images in the new Grand Old Party. And it's just the beginning.

4-H News

On March 17, the Oran Peppy Peppers were called to order by President Richard Welter, 4-H pledge, and Pledge of Allegiance were led by David Welter. Roll call and minutes of our last meeting were read by Donna Hicks.

Junior leadership turnout at New Hamburg was good, and those who went received recognition.

Project reports were given by their children. During the business session it was decided that something should be done to raise funds for our treasury. It was suggested that we have a party. The planning committee selected was Jolene Schlitt, Marion Tetly, Gary Hicks and David Welter.

Plans for 4-H Sunday (May 11) and National 4-H week (June 3-6) were made.

Our speaker this month was Gary Hicks. He reported on "The hazards of cigarette smoking."

Nominated for secretary were Cheri Schlitt, Jolene Schlitt, Donna Diebold, Cindy Dennis and Marion Tetly. Cheri Schlitt won the election.

After the business session we sang "I Love the Mountains" and "Daisy." We played Charades and had refreshments following adjournment.

The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City has the largest collection of art in the Western Hemisphere, says The World Almanac. It has over 365,000 works of art, a reference and research collection of more than 155,000 books and a periodical section with some 1,000 titles.

The Gospel Visitor

By REEDUS M. BAUGHER
The Church And Human Organizations
(Concluded)

In second Corinthians chapter five, verse seven, God says, "We walk by faith." Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the word of God, according to Romans ten verse seventeen. And according to Romans fourteen, twenty - three, whatsoever, is not of faith is sinful. Since God's word gives no authority, offers no testimony, to justify human institutions, they cannot be matters of faith for without hearing there is no faith and without faith we cannot walk by faith. (Read 2 John 9-11)

When the church today preaches the same gospel preached by the church of the New Testament, it will build only the church as it did then free from all human institutions and arrangements. There is no trace of their existence in New Testament scriptures to do any work of the church, therefore, there is no authority for them now. It would be interesting for someone to point out anything that God gave the church to do that cannot be done through the local congregations.

We have discussed in former articles the three works which God appointed the church to perform. We pointed out that each congregation is obligated to preach the gospel, help the needy, and to edify itself. Thus, let us set the record straight our position does not envolve a denial of the church doing any of the three works listed above. But rather, we defend the right for the church to do these so long as it is the church doing its work. The real issue is (1) The (church) sending to a (Missionary Society) to do (Evangelism) (2) The (church) sending to a (Benevolent institution) to o do (Ministering (3) The (church) sending to a (Edificational Society, School) to do (Edification) So what we oppose is not the work, but rather, the institution between the church and its work. And we will continue to oppose such institutions until someone gives scriptures which authorize them. We are willing to discuss these matters with anyone and stand "ready to give an answer to any one who ask the reason for our hope."

In view of the judgement to come and that we must all appear before Christ, to be judged by Him. (2 Cor. 5:10) As Paul said, "knowing the terror of the Lord we persuade men." We persuade men to give up all doctrines, commands, and traditions which originated with men and do all that God has said. Jesus said, "The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." (Jno. 12:48) Does your practice conflict with the words of Christ? The judgement is coming!!! (We will have a gospel meeting at Vanduser beginning the 24th thru the 30th, we will be pleased to have you).

Next time you are cooking rice as an accompaniment for meat or fish, add a sauteed chopped onion to the cooking liquid and rice. Extra flavor!

FROM PORTUGAL

LISTON (AP) — Portugal exported to European Free Trade Association (EFTA) countries 16,697 tons of canned fish worth $10.7 million in 1967.

Great Britain was the greatest buyer with 10,122 tons worth $6 million.

Although Portugal belongs to EFTA, the Common Market countries take 49 per cent of all exports of Portuguese canned fish and the partners in EFTA only 24 per cent.

West Germany is the country that buys the most canned fish from Portugal. Last year Germany bought 10,615 tons worth $7.3 million.

Relatives Make Poor Instructors

Dear Ann Landers: I could have kissed you when I read your answer to "Stymied Mother." You told her to get off Isabelle's back and I hope she listens.

I used to be a fat and unhappy 16-year-old and my mother nagged me just the way Stymied Mother is nagging Isabelle. The more my mother harped the more I ate. She sounded like a broken phonograph record and I hated it. I used to sneak food into my room to spite her.

One day my mother went to school at the request of the guidance counselor. I don't know what they talked about, but from that day on my mother never mentioned my weight.

Within six months I lost 35 pounds. I not only look like a different person but I feel like one. I have confidence, my grades are better and boys treat me like a girl instead of another guy. I hope every mother who bugs her daughter about being fat reads this and learns something. — 36-25-36.

Dear 36: I can't improve on your language so I'll simply repeat your well-chosen words. I hope every mother who bugs her daughter about being fat reads this and learns something.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 20-year-old gal who is flustered easily. When I'm ill at ease (which is often) my hands get ice cold and clammy as the dickens. This usually happens when I meet new people. I try to avoid shaking hands, which gives the impression I'm unfriendly. Help me, please. — DRIPPY MITTS

Dear Drippy: Have you tried an anti-perspirant? This is NOT the same as a deodorant. If the anti-perspirant doesn't work, wear white silk or nylon wrist-length gloves. Gloves will give you confidence, reduce your anxiety and diminish the clamminess.

Dear Ann Landers: Thanks for advising that woman who signed herself "Stuck At Home" to learn how to drive. I'm sorry you didn't add, "But don't let a relative teach you." Here's my story:

After serving as a WAC in World War II, I returned to Los Angeles. I was scared out of my wits by the traffic, refused to ride in a car with friends and took a bus or walked everywhere.

I realized this was crazy, so I forced myself to enroll in a drivers' school. My brothers were furious. "Why spend money on school?" they screamed, when THEY could teach me. Sure they could. They could teach me to tailgate, run through yellow lights and get mad at every driver who passed me.

I kept on at the school. My teacher didn't swear at me. He didn't tear out his hair and make me feel like a hopeless idiot. I learned the parts of an automobile and the rules of the road. I made my mistakes on a dual-controlled car.

Today I am a competent driver and proud of myself. At this moment, however, I wish I'd paid as much attention to my typing instructor as my driving instructor, but typing is not a matter of life and death -- and driving is. — HELEN S.

Dear Helen: Your typing isn't that bad, honey. Thanks for a good letter.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Open House For Couple

The Rev. and Mrs. James E.Denbow will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday.

The couple's children, Gary, Peggy, and Jim will hold an open house for their parents at the North Acres General Baptist church from 2 - 5 p.m. Sunday.

Revival Services

Special revival services will begin at the Eastside Church of the Nazarene Monday. The church is located at Ralph Avenue and Betty Street. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 Monday through Saturday, with the morning worship service on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and the evening Evangelistic service at 7. Special workers for these services are the Hoods of Olathe, Kan.

Rev. Gene Hood, of Olathe, Kan., is an elder in the Church of the Nazarene, and is devoting his full time to the work of evangelism. Although a young man, he has a delivery and Bible understanding of a veteran minister.

A native of Texas, he received his religious training in Bethany Nazarene College, whery he majored in theology. While in his senior year in college, he was in demand as a speaker and spent his weekends and vacations in evangelistic services throughout the southern states, where he held camps, youth crusades and revivals.

Traveling with him is his wife, Carolyn, and their son, Randy. Mrs. Hood is a pianist and assists in the music during the campaign. Randy assists in the singing. Recently the Hoods made a tour of the South which took them to churches in Haiti and to the Bible School there.

The Eastside Church and its pastor, Rev. E. W. House, extends welcome to the public.

UCLA Coach Impressed by Purdue's Semifinal Spree

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — UCLA and Purdue meet Saturday for the national collegiate basketball title, but UCLA Coach John Wooden isn't banking on a repeat of the teams' season opener when UCLA beat Purdue 94-82.

That match was played at UCLA, and Wooden thinks Purdue is a vastly improved team.

The Bruin coach, seeking an unprecedented third straight NCAA title and the fifth in six years, was anything but complacent after UCLA held on for an 88-82 victory over stubborn Drake in the semifinals Thursday night.

Purdue gained the championship game with a convincing 92-65 win over North Carolina in the first semifinal.

"We'll have to play a lot better than we did tonight," Wooden said of a Bruin team that hit 56 per cent of its field goal shots, but committed 22 floor errors and technically won on free throws.

Referring to Purdue, Wooden added, "If they played all season like they played tonight, we wouldn't have beaten them last fall."

Purdue Coach George King was a little happier with his team's performance.

"I don't believe we were looking ahead to anyone tonight," King said.

But when questioned before the second game about the possibility of meeting UCLA, he said he would let his Boilermakers run with the Bruins just as they did in their first meeting.

"We like for a team to pressure us," he said, "so we can develop our running game."

And King added that Purdue has picked up more poise and togetherness in play throughout the season.

But King faces the same large problem he did earlier—UCLA's 7-foot-1½ Lew Alcindor proved his All-American ranking against Drake with 25 points and 21 rebounds.

"If we had Chuck Bavis," King said, "we probably would play them straight away. But since we don't ..." He wouldn't say just what Purdue might do.

Bavis is Purdue's 7-foot junior center who is out of tournament play with an injury.

Wooden's chief concern in meeting the Boilermakers is the guard duo of All-American Rick Mount and Bill Keller, who bombed the Tar Heel defense with their outside shooting.

Mount hit 14 of 28 field goal attempts and finished with 36 points. Keller connected on nine of 19 floor shots and wound up with 20.

"I don't think we can guard him (Mount) one-on-one," Wooden said, adding that "I've always been highly impressed with Keller."

Wooden also pointed to Boilermaker depth which he called better than UCLA's bench strength.

Rockets Nab Playoff Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The San Diego Rockets are in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

They clinched fourth place in the Western Division by whipping the Atlanta Hawks 115-97 Thursday night for their fifth straight victory.

San Diego now has a 36-43 won-lost record. Even if the Rockets should lose their last three regular season games, they still will finish ahead of fifth-place Chicago.

Miami scored a 116-108 victory over Dallas in the American Basketball Association. Only one game was scheduled Thursday in both the NBA and ABA.

Elvin Hayes sparked San Diego with 24 points. Lou Hudson led Atlanta with 23, 19 in the third quarter for a San Diego Sports Arena record.

Donnie Freeman, with 22 points, led Miami over Dallas as the Floridians withstood a late Dallas rally. Ron Boone topped the Chaps with 26.

Hadl May Declare Self Free Agent

SAN DIEGO (AP) — John Hadl, who paced the pros in touchdown passes last year, plans to become the first experienced quarterback on the open market.

Hadl, 29, after six seasons with the San Diego Chargers of the American Football League, will be a free agent April 1 unless he settles his contract dispute with the Chargers.

"I'm playing out my option," Hadl said Thursday. "Negotiations are deadlocked. It has reached a point that unless something changes there's no chance.

"It's almost certain ... pretty well settled," he said, that Hadl won't wear a Charger uniform next season.

The former Kansas All-American hasn't seen Charger officials for about a month nd he said that he has no scheduled meeting with them.

Hadl reportedly seeks a three-year contract in the $60,000 to $70,000 range, plus a $250,000 loan for investment purposes.

Eugene Klein, the Chargers' principal owner, has said he's through talking with Hadl. Sid Gillman, the Charger general manager and coach, is siding with management, of course.

"All that separates us in $250,000," Gillmanhas said, "and I can assure you we are not going to get into the banking business."

"A lot of teams need a quarterback," Hadl said, "and I'm right in the prime of my career."

The Hadl case might wind up in thylap of Pete Rozelle, pro football commissioner.

Hadl knows that Rozelle made the New Orleans Saints pay a stiff price - two No. 1 draft choices - for picking up pass - catcher Dave Parks from San Francisco last year.

Asked if he fears that Rozelle might price him out of the market, Hadl said:

"Rozelle has his way of doing things. I know I'm a good commodity on the football market. I think if nobody picks me up, Rozelle would have a hard time explaining why."

Would Hadl take Rozelle to court? "I hope it won't come to that," he said.

Besides, Hadl said, "after Gene Klein stated I wasn't that good of a quarterback, I don't see how Rozelle could make the price that high."

"John is an excellent quarterback," Klein has said, "but he is no Joe Namath by any stretch of the imagination."

Hadl led all pro quarterbacks with 27 touchdown passes last year but he also was intercepted 32 times, high for both leagues.

Ashe Breezes Into Quarterfinal Round

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Top Seeded Arthur Ashe breezed into he quarterfinals of the Masters Tennis Tournament Thursday with a third round 6-2, 6-3, win over England's Peter Curtis.

The victory paved the way for a quarterfinal match between Ashe and Ray Ruffles of Australia, an Ashe victim in the United States' Davis Cup victory in December.

Ruffles beat Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., 6-4, 6-0, leaving Ashe the only American in the tournament.

Temple, Boston College Bound Into NIT Final

NEW YORK (AP) — The Temple Owls, who tired of playing third fiddle in Philadelphia all basketball season, are playing perfectly in New York, and now only Boston College stands in their way of top billing in the National Invitation Tournament.

"I don't think we did a thing wrong all night—the perfect game," said Coach Harry Litwack of the overlooked Owls after they pulled away from Tennessee 63-58 in the semifinals Thursday night for their third straight upset.

Their perfect play came after Boston College, the first team picked for the NIT and the one that has received top billing, beat Army at its own control game 73-61.

The results left Temple and BC to play for all the marbles on national television Saturday at 2 p.m. EST, in Madison Square Garden. Army and Tennessee, the 1-2 defensive teams in the country, meet at noon for third place.

"You have to give the boys credit," Litwack said after the Owls, now 21-8, scored 10 straight points behind a press to turn a 49-44 deficit into a 54-49 lead.

"They've been getting second and third billing to LaSalle and Villanova all year in Philadelphia."

John Baum, Temple's 6-foot-5 jumping Jack, hit the final three points in that decisive 10-point run.

Before that, the Owls had dissipated an eight-point lead to only a 29-26 spread at halftime.

The lead changed nine times before Joe Cromer's two baskets for Temple tied the count at a 49 as the Owls began pressing.

Bill Strunk scored to put the Owls ahead to stay and Baum added his three points.

Eddie Mast of Temple finished with 24 points, 12 in the final half, and Cromer had 11 of his 15 after the intermission against Tennessee's 1-3-1 zone.

Bob Croft and reserve Rudy Kinard, who hit all but two of the Vols 30 points in the second half, finished with 21 and 19, respectively.

Boston College, running the nation's current longest winning streak to 19 in a 24-3 season, chose to forsake its fast break against the bruising Army defense and disciplined offense and waited patiently until midway through the final half to pull away.

"We wanted to beat them at their own game, not shove ours down their throats," said BC Coach Bob Cousy, who will retire after the final. Playmaker Billy Evans, who had 13 points and seven assists, said, "We had to play a slow, patient game. You have trouble getting involved. We're so used to running."

Although trailing 29-26 at the half, the Eagles finally went ahead to stay 42-40 when Tom Veronneau scored and was fouled as Army's Mike Gyovai fouled out.

Veronneau missed the free throw, but 6-7 teammate Terry Driscoll rebounded for a basket. Driscoll later hit a free throw for a 47-41 lead as Army's second starter, 6-6 center Dick Simmons, fouled out with 9:36 left. Driscoll led BC with 28 points. Doug Clevenger had 25 for Army.

Hull Breaks Record With Two Goals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Hull and Bobby Orr were record-breaking winners Thursday night but the Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins came out losers despite their 5-5 National Hockey League tie.

Hull scored twice late in the game, giving him 55 goals and erasing the record of 54 he set three years ago. Orr's 21st goal with only one second to play forced the tie and established a mark for most goals by a defenseman. Detroit's Flash Hollett set the old standard of 20 in the 50-game season of 1944-45.

The deadlock dropped Boston four points behind front-running Montreal in the East Division and left the last-place Black Hawks nine points behind Toronto and seven in back of Detroit in the race for the fourth and final playoff berth.

In other NHL contests, Montreal tripped Pittsburgh 5-3, Los Angeles downed Detroit 4-2 and Philadelphia whacked Minnesota 5-2.

"We didn't win the game," said a downcast Orr, although the 14,000-plus fans in Boston Garden went wild after his lastsecond heroics—and on his 21st birthday, to boot.

The Bruins blew a 4-0 secondperiod lead as Dennis Hull, Jim Pappin and Doug Mohns brought Chicago within range before Bobby Hull put the Hawks ahead temporarily.

The Boston fans also gave Hull a standing ovation. "That was wonderful," he said, "especially in a visitors' rink."

First-period goals by Mickey Redmond and Bobby Rousseau started Montreal to victory over Pittsburgh. John Ferguson, Claude Provost and Jacques Lemaire also tallied as the Canadiens ran their unbeaten string to eight games. Billy Dea got two goals for Pittsburgh.

Los Angeles maintained its three-point hold on third place in the West Division by beating Detroit. Bob Wall collected a pair of goals and an assist for the Kings.

Gordie Howe scored his 42nd goal of the season and Frank Mahovlich his 46th as the Red Wings' production line of Howe, Mahovlich and Alex Delvecchio accounted for 107th goal, a record by one line for a season.

Philadelphia took an important step toward a playoff berth by topping Minnesota and increasing its margin over the fifth- place North Stars to four points. Leon Rochefort, Jim Johnson and Gary Dornhoefer shot the Flyers into an insurmountable 4-1 lead.

Minnesota's only bright spot was a goal by Danny Grant, giving him 63 points, a record for an NHL rookie. Toronto's Gus Bodnar had 62 in 1943-44.

All Newcomers In Jr. College Cage Semifinals

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — A surprising victory by Carthage, Ill., over defending champion San Jacinto, Tex., leaves four semifinalists who never have won a title in the National Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The pairings match Paducah, Ky., with a 29-4 record, against Burlington, Iowa, 29-6, at 7:30 o'clock, CST, tonight, and Carthage, 30-5, vs. Pittsburgh, Pa., 29-0, at 9:15.

Carthage upset San Jacinto 75-73 Thursday night on Rhea Taylor's long shot that was in the air when the final buzzer sounded. San Jacinto had just tied the score at 73-all with 45 seconds left.

Pittsburgh, the nation's only undefeated juco team, needed an overtime to get past Vincennes, Ind., 77-76. Pittsburgh's Joe Butler hit two free throws with 21 seconds left to force the overtime at 68-68. Perry Johnson got 36 points for Pittsburgh.

Lippy Leo Favors Less Restraint on Arguing

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's the eighth inning. The Chicago Cubs, trailing by a run, have the bases loaded and two out. The batter, on a full count, is called out on strikes on a borderline pitch.

Should Manager Leo Durocher let the umpire have a stream of choice invective or should be hold his tongue and wait for a key situation in the ninth inning?

If Curocher has his way, when to chew out an umpire may become an important part of managerial strategy, like changing pitchers or sending up a pinch hitter. And Lippy Leo thinks Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may be on his side.

"Since they put in this rule a few years ago that you can't protest a ball or strike call, I think it has taken a lot of color out of the game," Durocher said Thursday. "And that's what Mr. Kuhn is looking for, suggestions to add more color and speed up the game.

"I don't think it would slow down play to modify the protest rule. I know the commissioner agreed that at least you should be able to holler from the bench once in a while.

"Last week I talked with Mr. Kuhn about this, and he agrees that it would be a good idea to let a manager protest a called ball or strike - not repeatedly, but maybe a couple or three times a game without getting thrown out."

Durocher's Cubs let their bats do their talking Thursday. Randy Hundley, Ernie Banks and Jim Dunegan homered in a 9-2 exhibitionrout of the Oakland Athletics.

Philadelphia edged St. Louis 9-7 with six runs in the fourth inning, highlighted by Richie Allen's grand slam. Rookie Ron Stone of the Phils smacked a two - run homer.

Carl Yastrzemski had a triple, two singles and a walk in Boston's 5-4 triumph over Detroit. Dick McAuliffe Norm Cash homered for the Tigers.

San Francisco used home runs by Williw McCovey and Ron Hunt and four San Diego errors that let in five unearned runs to defeat the Padres 8-5.

Rookie Challenges for Lead at Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Heard, 21, six feet tall and 180 pounds, quit Fresno State College last fall in his junior year and decided to take out after Nicklaus, Casper & Co. on the $6 million pro tour.

"I've wanted to play on the golf tour since I was 11 years old—I couldn't wait," the strapping young athlete said today. "I came from an athletically minded family. My dad played pro baseball and even had a contract to go with the Cardinals.

"But he got married instead.

"No, I don't intend to go back to college. This is my life now. I think I can make the grade."

Heard is one of the brash, new breed of hungry tigers who have abandoned other pursuits—including higher education—and plunged into the rich golf tour.

They look at Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Bill Casper, and Gary Player and say—apparently—what better way is there to become a millionaire?

Heard popped up among the leaders of a tightly bunched pack after the first round of the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open tournament Thursday.

He fired a 68, four under par, which placed him in a tie with six others, just one stroke back of pace-setting Lionel Herbert, 41-year-old veteran from Lafayette, La., leading at 67. Jerry is one stroke ahead of Nicklaus, two in front of Palmer, three better than Casper and four in front of Player—not bad for a rookie.

Two High Schools Placed on Probation

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Two high schools were placed on probation today by the Missouri State High School Activities Association and a delay for further investigation was announced in a basketball sportsmanship case involving Lincoln High School of Kansas City.

The association announced Eugene High School was placed on probation until "the administration and Board of Education reports to the MSHSAA office sufficient action taken in regard to two fans who approached officials following the Eugene-St. Elizabeth regional tournament game played at Ashland, Mo., on Feb. 27, 1969, in which one of the fans pushed an official."

Rolla High School was placed on probation until the association receives a report in regard "to a fan striking an official following the Rolla-West Plains game played in the Rolla Regional Tournament on March 7."

The association's Board of Control said it met March 15 to consider reports of unsportsmanlike conduct. The board said sportsmanship of coaches and players had shown general improvement but "there has been an apparent increase of unsportsmanlike conduct among fans."

The board noted "each school is responsible for the conduct of its teams, coaches, students and fans at games both at home and away."

Any move against Lincoln of Kansas City was delayed until the Kansas City Board of Education reports to the board action in a case in which two game officials were struck by a young fan near the close of a regional basketball game involving St. Joseph Central and Lincoln.

After the game several fans, including principal of the St. Joseph school, complained of being pushed and shoved. As a result the playoff game was then shifted to Maryville, Mo., when the St. Joseph school announced it would not return to the fieldhouse in Kansas City where the violence occurred.

---The 'Other' Kelly---

POMPANO BEACH, Fla.—(NEA)—Pat Kelly whacked a ball to right-center field and made a triple out of it.

In the press box, someone said, "That was a 30-yard gain." This is the kind of humor Harold Patrick Kelly has been subjected to for the last several years. There are signs, however, that this will change.

After the game, a reporter approached Kelly in the locker room. "Some day," said the reporter, "a story on you may have an angle other than 'Pat Kelly, brother of Leroy Kelly of the Cleveland Browns.'"

Kelly, a rookie centerfielder for the new Kansas City Royals, did not have to chew that thought as he chewed his egg salad sandwich.

"Yeah," he said, smiling and dabbing the mayonnaise from his mouth. "My teammates are always kidding me about it. You know what they call me? 'Brother of.'"

In early spring training games, Pat Kelly has been starting in the outfield and batting third. He has looked good. Manager Joe Gordon feels there will probably be a place for him on the club. "He's got a good attitude," said Gordon. "He likes to play. He's also got power. But we like the way he skadoots around them bases. That's what we want, an exciting player."

"I won't believe I'm in the majors," said Pat, "until I'm on that plane flying to Kansas City."

That would be a departure. In his last six seasons in professional baseball, Kelly has played with Erie, Orlando, Wilson, Wisconsin Rapids, Charlotte and Denver. For the last two years, he also has had coffee breaks with the Minnesota Twins.

Last year at Denver, he batted .306 and led the Pacific Coast League in stolen bases with 38.

"The saying is, 'Have a good year and move up,'" he said. "Well, for the last six years I was with the Minnesota organization. But they had outfielders like Uhlaender, Allison and Oliva. Never much room for me. And I had good years." Three times, Kelly has batted over .300 and always he has been a base-stealing threat.

The Royals picked Kelly up in the fourth round of the expansion draft. He knows it is a great opportunity. At 25, there may not be many more chances to be something other than "brother of."

"All I want is to get some success of my own now," he said. "Leroy's got his, and I'm glad. He deserves it. I'm deeply proud of my brother. And I'd like to achieve in baseball what he's done in football. He's fantastic, isn't he? He's the best, except for Jim Brown. Leroy's always calling me down here, wanting to know how I'm hitting. Wants to know how I'm running, too." Kelly laughed.

"I signed a pro contract before Leroy did. He had baseball offers but decided to go to Morgan State College. At the time, he said, 'My day is coming.' Now, that's what I'm saying.

Schoendienst Hospitalized

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals, who was hospitalized Thursday because of severe abdominal pain, was reported improved today.

A Cardinal spokesman said Schoendienst's pain lessened a great deal during the night. He said the Redbird manager's physician had considered exploratory surgery but changed his mind as the pain eased.

Dr. William Mallette, a St. Petersburg physician, said there is a slight possibility of appendicitis.

Shamsky Hopes to Slug Way Into Regular Met Lineup

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

ART SHAMSKY
Ready to Step In

This will be Art Shamsky's fifth year in the major leagues and the outfielder-first baseman has every right to expect it to be his best. Shamsky may play a lot of first base for the New York Mets this season.

He is only 27 and swings just about the strongest bat among the southpaw swingers of the Mets.

Last season, playing in 116 games, Shamsky hit .238 with 12 home runs and 48 runs batted in. Team leader Ron Swoboda had 59 "ribbies" and he played much more.

"I had a good start, had a poor middle of the season but came on good at the end," says Shamsky. "Maybe I can start out this spring the way I finished."

Shamsky, a natural pull hitter, saw action in the outfield for 82 games last year. He played 17 at first base and was used as a pinch hitter in 17 others. Art will get every chance to take Ed Kranepool's place at first base.

Manager Gil Hodges of the Mets knows more about Shamsky now than he knew last spring, Hodges' first with the Mets.

A year ago November, one month after Hodges replaced Wes Westrum as manager, the Mets obtained Shamsky from the Cincinnati Reds in exchange for infielder Bob Johnson.

Hodges had been in the American League managing the Washington Senators since 1963 and hadn't seen too much of Shamsky who broke in with Cincinnati in the National League in 1965.

But Hodges remembered reading about Shamsky as a home run hitter and approved the deal.

In 1966 Shamsky hit 21 home runs for the Reds, getting a four bagger every 11 trips to the plate.

The big thing with Shamsky is the major league record he tied with Cincinnati in 1966 when he hit four straight home runs, three of them in one game against the Pittsburgh Pirates. He hit his fourth two days later off Vern Law.

Shamsky spent five years in the minor leagues, his last being with San Diego in the Pacific Coast League in 1964 when he hit 25 home runs and batted .272.

The first game he played with Geneva, N.Y., in 1960 gave some people the idea they were seeing the new Babe Ruth. First time up Shamsky cracked a home run.

Did this first contact in organized ball make him home run conscious?

"No," laughs Shamsky. "But it was a good feeling to know the home run helped me make the team."

Cleon Jones, the left fielder who hit a surprising .297, led the Mets in slugging last year with .452. Ed Charles slugged .434 and Shamsky was third with .406. If either fielder Swoboda or first baseman Kranepool fail to hit early in the season you can look for Shamsky to slug his way into the lineup.

All Seven Stoddard County School Districts Ask Tax Rate Increases

BLOOMFIELD - All seven school district in Stoddard County are asking the voters to approve tax rate increases in the upcoming April 1 school election.

Dexter is seeking the lowest increase – just two cents over the present rate while Richland is asking the highest increase of 32 cents.

Advance is seeking a levy of $3.50, a 25 cent increase; Bell City a $3.50 levy, a 25 cent increase, plus a separate 20 cent proposal for kindergarten; Bloomfield has set the tax rate at $3.50, a 20 cent increase; Bernie will ask approval for a $3.40 levy, a 20 cent increase; Puxico a $3.15 levy, a 20 cent increase; Dexter a $3.83 levy, a two cent increase and Richland a $3.50 levy, a 32 cent increase.

The Dexter School Board will put a $3.82 tax rate before thf voters at the April 1 school election – a two cent increase over the present rate.

The Board set the rate for the incidental fund at $1.25 and the debt service fund at 47 cents. The people will be asked to approve a rate of $1.60 for the teachers' fund and 50 cents for the building fund, to make the $3.82 total.

The purpose of the two cent increase, school officials said, is to try to qualify for second level State Aid.

The terms of Yewell Lawrence and Loren Coffee expire this year and both have filed for re-election. Joe Vinson, who was appointed for the remainder of the first year of W. L. Arnold's term, has filed for re-election for a two-year term.

Voting will take place in the Junior High gym and at Dudley.

Richland

The Richland School District is asking voters to approve a $3.82 tax levy, a 32 cent increase over the present $3.50 rate. This increase is needed, school officials said, to qualify for state aid.

The breakdown of the levy will be as follows: Teachers Fund $1.57; Incidental Fund $1.50; Debt Service 75 cents.

Paul Schuerengerg and Lee N. Bloomfield are both seeking re-election to the School Board and have opposition from Bob Blair and James H. Russell. James Kelley was appointed for the remainder of the second year term of Edsel Wylie's term and has filed for re-election for a one year term.

Puxico

The Puxico School District has set its levy at $3.15, which represents a 20 cent increase, according to School Superintendent George Sifford.

The breakdown of funds was listed as follows: $1.25 teachers; 25 cents building; 40 cents debt service and $1.25 that can be levied by the Board without voter approval.

Five men are seeking the two positions on the board, including the two incumbents. Herman Campbell and Robert Davis. Others filed are Charles Placher, Donald Stewart and Paul Yates Jr.

Voting will take place at City Hall from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Advance

Voters in the Advance School District will be asked to approve a $3.50 tax levy – an increase of 25 cents over the present rate.

The breakdown for the levy is as follows: Teachers Fund - $1.50; Incidental Fund $1.30; Building Fund 35 cents; debt service 35 cents.

No competition developed for the School Board where two positions are to be filled. Robert Crader and James Harnes., who both are current members of the Board, filed for re-election and have no opposition.

Voting will take place in the High School gym.

Bell City

Five men are seeking election to the Bell City School Board to fill the two positions. Filing for election were J. D. (John) Daniel, Winford (Bill) Watkins, Jim Scherer, Anson Knoderer and Larry Strobel. Watkins is currently a member of the board. The other member, Herman Vetter, did not seek re-election.

A tax levy of $2.25 on the $100 assessed valuation of the School District for school purposes for one year is asked in addition to $1.25 rate on the $100 assessed valuation that may be levied by the Board of Education without voter approval.

From the $2.25, a total of $1.65 will be for the teachers fund and 60 cents for the incidental fund.

In addition to the $3.50 tax levy - a 25 cent increase over the present levy, a separate proposal is being put before the voters concerning a kindergarten is a 20 cent levy, school officials said.

Bloomfield

A 20 cent increase in the tax levy is being sought in Bloomfield, which would make the levy $3.50, according to school officials.

The increase will go primarily into the building fund (15 cents building and 5 cents incidental) to replace funds used from the building fund last year for teachers' salaries, school officials said.

The transfer of funds was necessary due to loss of secondary school aid, it was pointed out.

Filing for the Board of Education were Robert Poeppelmeyer incumbent and Tom C. Milner, seeking his first term. Elmer Underwood did not seek re-election to the Board.

Voting will be in the ticket lobby of the gymnasium.

Bernie

Voters in the Bernie School District will be asked to vote a levy of $1.55 on the $100 assessed valuation for the teacher's fund; 25 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for the incidental fund for a period of one year in addition to the levy that may be set by the Board of education; and 25 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for the building fund. The total levy will be $3.40, a 20 cent increase over a year ago.

Closing deadline for candidates to file was set at Wednesday, March 26 at 4 p.m.

Superintendent W. A. Merick cited the reason for the tax increase as follows:

"The Bernie Schools will lose approximately $19,000 in state funds under the provisions of a new law being passed, and even the $3.40 we are voting will not be high enough to meet state requirements since the ratio of our county assessed valuation to real value is too low. We would need to vote a levy of $3.82 (figure had been $4.53) in order to qualify for additional funds;

We also need additional funds because approximately $12,000 we have been spending for Kindergarten from Title I government funds must now come from school funds," Merick added.

Merick added.

"The 20 cent increase will bring in only about $10,000 while we are losing $19,000 state money and need $12,000 for kindergarten", Merick concluded.

Better skills build better careers.

GREELEY, Colo. (AP) — Pete Butler, recently inducted into the American Association of College Coaches hall of fame, turned out baseball teams at Colorado State College for 26 years.

Before he retired in 1967 his teams won 25 consecutive Rocky Mountain Conference championships and scored 415 victories against 140 losses. Butler is now dean of the physical education department at the college.

Catholic Bishops Explore Union With NCC

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States have taken major steps toward official negotiations with the predominantly Protestant National Council of Churches for what could become a historic Christian alliance at the national level.

A small team of experts from both sides will be named in about a month to study admission of the Catholic Church into the council, it was learned.

The council is a voluntary fellowship of 33 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox denominations with 41 million members. The Roman Catholic Church, which has kept itself aloof from the council since it was formed in 1960, claims 47.4 million American members.

Catholic inclusion in the council, still regarded as a few years away, would thus bring together the leaderships of 91.4 million of the estimated 126 million Christians in the United States.

The council holds annual meetings, elects officers and takes policy positions about secular issues but has no control over the creeds of its member Churches.

Although the doctrinal and moral tenets of the member churches are not the council's concern, Catholic membership one day could cause difficulty in trying to develop a council stand on such matters as contraception, where Catholicism and the rest of Christianity sharply disagree.

Catholic dioceses have joined the councils of other Christians on a scattered city or state basis so far, the first time in 1961 in New Mexico and the most recent last month in Texas.

The Roman Catholic bishops of the country told the council last September that they were ready to consider national membership seriously. The new development is the selection of a team of experts to work out the details.

ARMED FORCES

FOR TRAIN NURSING APPLICATIONS

The deadline for filing applications for nursing scholarships through the Walter Reed Army Institute of Nursing (WRAIN) program has been extended from March 31 to April 15, according to Captain Virginia Anderson, Army Nurse Counselor for this area.

More than $12,000 for a four - year period is the amount in dollar value for each scholarship. Such scholarships are available to qualified high school students throughout the country.

Students selected for the WRAIN program attended the college or university of their choice for two years, and educational expenses such as tutition and fees are paid by the Army direct to the school. Students also received living expenses during these first two years of college, Captain Anderson continued.

After completing two years of study at the school of their choice, WRAIN students enter the University of Maryland School of Nursing to complete their formal education, after which, if successful, they receive bachelors' degrees in nursing and are commissioned as second lieutenants in the Army Nurse Corps, with an obligation to serve on active duty for three years.

The program is open to both male and female students.

For further information nd scholarship applications, interested high school seniors are asked to contact SFC Steve L. Sullivan, at 339 Broadway Cape Girardeau, Missouri or by phoning 335-9052 collect calls will be accepted.

The eight - week course, given at the U.S. Army Training Center here, is the last phase of instruction a soldier receives before being assigned as a crewman in a field artillery unit.

Training includes the use and care of artillery weapons - from heavy machine guns to howitzers - as well as ammunition handling and communications.

Public Urged to Demand Quick U.S. Aid to Biafra

By DAVID POLING

The United States is still unable to exert a meaningful response to the tragedy in Biafra. That is the first-hand report of Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., after his fact-finding tour of this African conflict.

And of all the horrors involved in this civil war slaughter, with its starvation of children and destruction of thousands of innocent families, surely the saddest story of all is the inability of Washington to fulfill the yearnings of the American public. For this country is aroused, and should be angry over the handling of this call for compassion and aid from this tormented territory.

Goodell told this writer that he had secured immediate support from the White House, the secretary of state and the secretary of defense that government jets could and would be available for the airlift of relief supplies paid for by private agencies concerned about Biafra. Their interest was genuine and immediate.

And yet what has happened? Nothing. Right, nothing. Zero. Goodell and others in the capital believe it is the direct result of negative attitudes within the State Department. Many of these career diplomats are 100 per cent for Nigeria and the breakaway state of Biafra can stew in its own juice. It seems unbelievable that such callousness and hard-heartedness could exist in the face of such incredible suffering and starvation as we see on the television every night.

Those of us who have been reading James A. Joyce's book, "End of an Illusion" (Bobbs-Merrill, $8.95), are quite familiar with the paramilitary mind that governs too much the politics, education and overseas adventures of America. Joyce has been tracking the beast for a long time and documents most carefully and powerfully the influence of men and women who never have to report to the citizens who pay the bills. As Joyce has observed:

"The real struggle for peace, freedom and justice is a race between the military compulsionists of the last century and the world builders of the 21st century."

Goodell states flatly that the Biafran bungling will only be solved by massive public pressure. This means thousands of cards and letters to the Nigerian desk at the State Department.

It also means telegrams and phone calls to the people in charge there to find the ways and means of putting this relief program on the road. I believe it is the particular responsibility of the church people of this country to be heard and heeded. And it is already too late for so many.

New P.E. Method Stresses Self-Direction, Creativity, Movement

Here is an experimental physical education program that squeezes the competition out of fun and games and replaces it with joy and creativity:

By GARY TOLBERG

It looks as if the Throw- it, Kick - it, Catch - it approach to physical education is going to be out soon, at least in the early grades. The traditional method of teaching is being challenged in the Charleston R-1 School District by Gary Tolbert, instructor at the Bertrand Elementary School of the R-1 District.

Movement education is an individualized approach to physical education which stresses creativity, self - direction and joy in movement. Any student can participate meaningfully in the program regardless of physique, skills, or past experience. And he can work on his own physical education needs rather than on the needs or demands of his group.

The basic approach in movement education is problem solving. The main objective: To help children understand and control the many ways their bodies move.

The children love it. Equally important, teachers love it - perhaps because, although conducting a movement education program

Basically, the children teach themselves, says Mr. Tolbert. We impose two rules do not touch anyone else and work quietly using a classroom voice. Aside from that we let them discover for themselves just how their bodies move.

In the first grade movement education is almost completely non- directed by the teacher. The emphasis then is on free play with specially designed equipment. At this age, says Mr. Tolbert, "we're less interested in telling the children what to do than in having them learn to think about what they're doing." Later on, however, the program becomes more structured. The teacher encourages each child to work out challenges imposed by a particular piece of apparatus or by an assigned movement problem. The problem may be one of filling space: "Try to see how much space you can fill while traveling across the balance beam," Or it may be one of effort: "Let's move across the room in sudden, sharp movements."

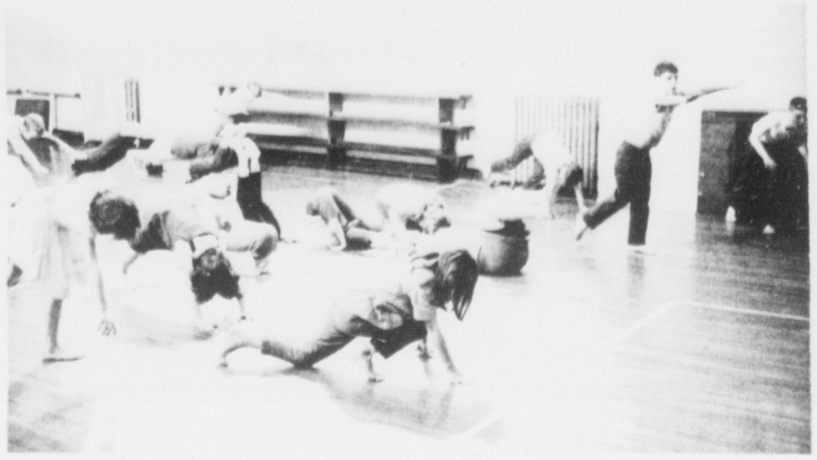
Each child is encouraged to solve the problem in his own way and in his own time. While solving it he is encouraged to develop a conscious awareness of what he can do, where he can move in space and how he moves.

The result of all this is a physical education program which at times seems close to anarchy. Asked to make a long slender line with their bodies and move slowly across the room, children will hold themselves straight, arms stretched high, and inch slowly forward . . . or roll along the floor, or walk slowly twisting in circles.

But this isn't chaos, Mr. Tolbert maintains. "It's creativity. The children are finding their own solutions to problems

A fault found by some in modern work is that in catering to all the standard is inevitably low or non - existent. Since no common standard is imposed, competition as such does not occur and challenges are worded so that each child may succeed at his own level. However, there is competition in that the child strives to improve his own skill and understanding, but these are in relation to his starting point and capability. Thus the teacher encourages each child to vie with himself and the attitude should be one of, "How can I improve this part of my sequence?" or "Can I get my feet, instead of my knees, on the High Box?" Obviously children are very quick to realize thy abilities of others but normally they accept these without misgiving. They will also accept their own shortcomings with good humor.

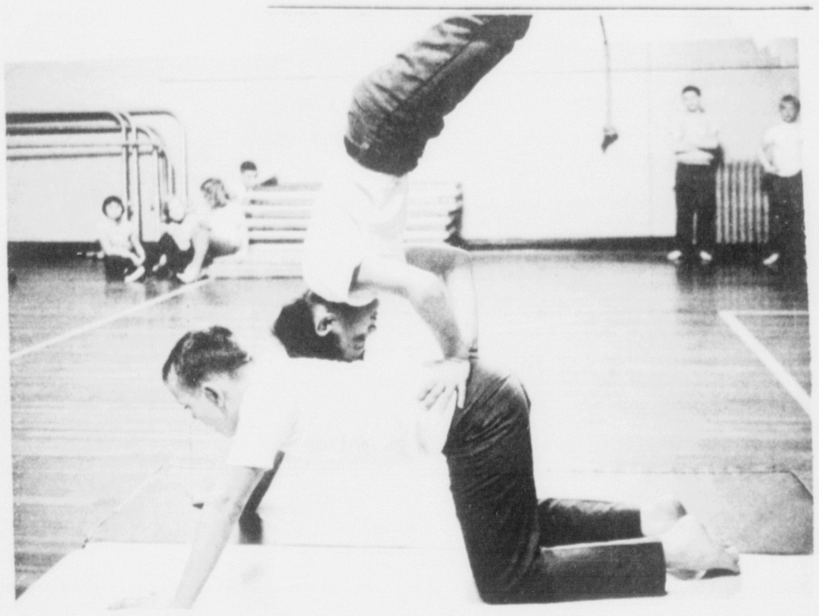
The results of good teaching are to be seen in confident, skillful movers and inventive, lively work. Moreover, the fun of producing something which is "Mine" and the excitement and satisfaction of working with others has an educational value not to be ignored.



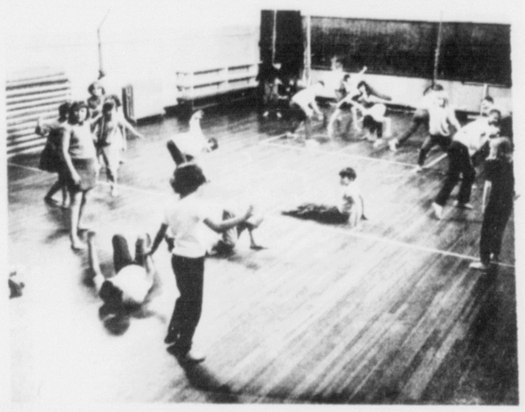
"Off you go again," but this time transfer your weight from one part of your body to another part of your body.

"Now, let's get out the Apparatus." Everyone works together in setting up the equipment. Children learn to work cooperatively to get the job done faster.

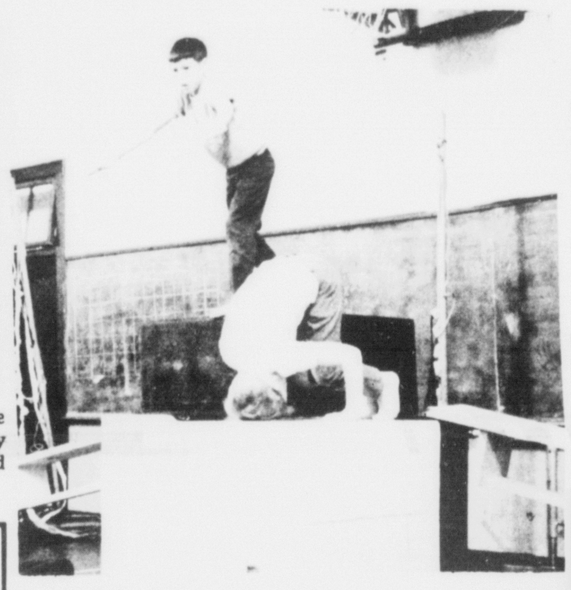
Everyone look how Eddie has solved the problem of traveling across the balance beam, trying to fill as much space as you possibly can. "Good Job," says Mr. Tolbert, the other children applaud.



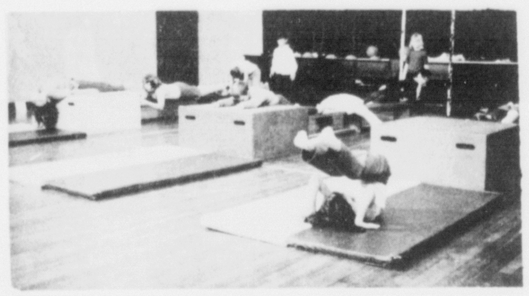
"Now, everybody choose partners, and work up a stunt. A good stunt has a beginning, middle and the ending.



"Let's begin class by moving quickly around the room. Be prepared to stop still as a statue when I say 'stop.' No matter what position you're in, stop and hold it until I tell you to continue.



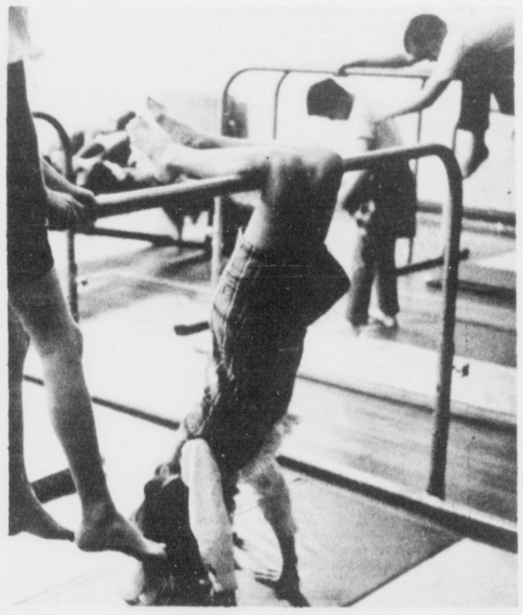
There are many different levels of work in the movement program. They will start out on the floor and progress when they feel they are ready to do so. The teacher does not tell them when they are ready.



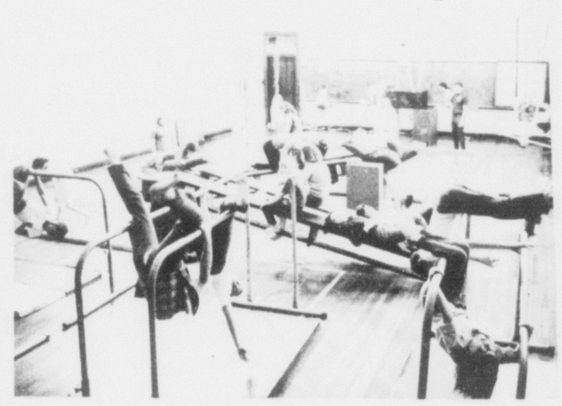
See how many different parts of your body you can put your weight on while traveling down the benches and boxes. Each child creates a different movement pattern.

"Stop" calls Mr. Tolbert. The students try, with varying degrees of success. One totters on one foot, arms outstretches. Another pauses, apparently poised on the bales of her feet as though about to lean forward. Another tries to stop in Mid Air, fails and collapses in A crouched position on the floor instead.

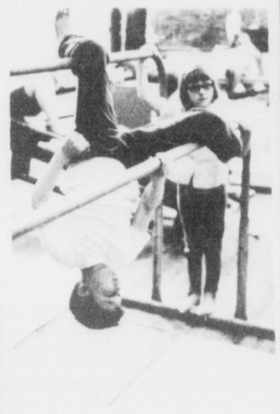
"Look now Terri is climbing the rope today." The children are recognized for their creativity. This, challenges every child to create something new and different.



They may work on a piece of apparatus as long as they feel it is necessary. They move from apparatus to appratus as they please. If a child ties up one piece of apparatus too long the children themselves will tell him that he has had sufficient time for his turn.



When the apparatus is in place the children began working in the various pieces of apparatus. There are two rules, do not touch and work quietly.



There is no specific way to work on a piece of apparatus. Each child will create a new way of doing something.

A DESPERATE STAND AGAINST INVADERS!

Across Gengali's border, war rages. Created by the brutality of battle, a band of ruthless deserters calling themselves "The Irregulars" bring death and terror to all they encounter. Finally, they cross over into Bengali and attack Junglehome - an amazing school, orphanage and hospital located deep in the jungle.

Junglehome is the life work of Father Morra, one of two remarkable brothers. The other is Dr. Luaga, President of Bengali. Both are close friends of The Phantom.

Although teachers and students fight valiantly to hold off the vicious marauders, their desperate stand against "The Irregulars" is all but hopeless. Then, with the police and the army too far away to help, the brothers call upon The Phantom to fight the cruel invaders.

Can the ghost who walks save Junglehome? Don't miss the fast - moving and suspenseful new adventure of -

Farmer Trys Spring Cabbage

CHARLESTON - A new crop destined for the fresh produce markets in late May or early June was planted in a 50-acre field just south of Charleston this week.

The crop is spring cabbage, and the planter is Jim Moreton.

Mr. Moreton is one of several Mississippi County planters who have become interested in producing fresh vergetables as a profitable alternative to the usual Bootheel crops of soybeans, corn, cotton and wheat. The most publicized of these farmers is Wendell Choate, like Moreton a resident of Charleston, who last year grossed $1.1 million in a sweet corn operation.

Moreton explained that fall cabbage has been grown in Mississippi County on a limited acreage for about four year, but said this is the first time a spring crop has been planted. Ted Hull of Wyatt, an employee of the state Department of Community Affairs, is technical consultant for the Moreton operation.

Working with young plants imported from the Palatka, Fla., area, a crew of 16 people plants about three acres every four hours, using a four-row transplater.

This ingenious device, twoed behind a tractor, has space on it for eight workers, who place individual plants in the V-shaped "hands" on four vertical conveyors. The "hands" move the young cabbages from the working table surface to the previously-shaped planting bed, digs a hole, and inserts the plants. Then four sets of toed-in rollers cover the roots.

A follow-up crew of four persons walks behind the planter and fills any gaps in the rows left by the transplanting machine. The plants are set 10 inches apart.

Mr. Moreton said the cost of preparing the field for cabbage growing was rather high. Preparation started with a heavy application of fertilizer, followed by incorporation of Treflan, a chemical which prevents or retards weed growth and reduced the need for hand cultivation. Then another chemical was applied to control soil insects, and finally the ground was shaped into neat, flat-topped beds separated by shallow furrows.

The rows are spaced about 36 inches apart, giving a plant population of 17,000 to 20,000 per acre. Mr. Moreton said the crop could yield 300 to 600 fifty - pound bags of cabbage per acre, at a market price which has ranged in the past from as low as 90 cents to a high of about $3.00 per bag.

As with most crops grown for the fresh produce market, Mr. Moreton said his profit will depend on when the crop hits the market, and the quality of the vegetables. They must be wormfree, have good color, and a firm head.

Asked about the danger from frost, with early March planting, Mr. Moreton said cabbage can withstand temperatures down to about 20 degrees. Serious damage begins at about 15 degrees, he added. He said the temperature averages show it should be safe to plant the crop now.

A unique irrigation rig is used in the cabbage field immediately after planting to get the plants off to a good start. In Moreton's case, the irrigation equipment consists of a quarter-mile-long aluminum pipe supported by light-weight wheels about 42 inches in diameter. Sprinklers spaced at intervals along the pipe convey water across the entire width of the field. After a given spot has been watered, a single operator can crank up a gasoline-powered engine, and move the entire irrigation system under its own power to the next watering spot. This has reduced to almost nothing the formerly prohibitive cost of labor required to move heavy irrigation pipe around a field.

Irrigation will continue throughout the growing season as needed, Mr. Moreton said. In addition, the crop will have to be sprayed several times for protection against destructive insects, most notably the "cabbage looper," which somehow manages to find any cabbage patch.

The crop will be harvested by hand, then cooled and loaded aboard trucks for the trip to market in cities throughout the Midwest - hopefully proving once again that the fertile soil of the Missouri Delta can profitably produce crops other than the monotonous cotton, corn and soybeans.

GM Research To Sponsor CB Systems

CHICAGO, Ill. - The General Motors Research Laboratories, have assumed the sponsorship of the 40,000-member Citizens two-way radio operators in all local communities, as of March 1, by Arthur F. Underwood and Henry B. Kreer, manager and director respectively.

The radio band teams was organized in 1963, and grew to a membership of 1,300 in the nation, with many of them having a 24-hour monitor system, who were able to report a wide variety of local emergencies to radio stations, who in turn relayed the information to highway departments, police stations, hospitals and service stations.

The Bootheel Citizen Band Radio Club, P. O. Box 123, an affiliate of the national organization, with headquarters in Sikeston, received an announcement, and relayed to all two-way radio operators in the area.

With the new sponsorship the communication system will be increased to report highway accidents and other local emergencies. In 1968 the citizens band operators reported over 1,200,000 automotive emergencies, of which 27 per cent were automobile accidents.

Illinois Electronics Firm Considering Charleston

CHARLESTON — Two representatives of a western Illinois electronics firm were in Charleston this week to discuss possible location of a manufacturing plant here.

The firm, which makes transformers, electrical controls and other related products is expanding its two existing plants and wants to establish a third facility, according to Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee Chairman P. J. Ponder.

Mr. Ponder said the industrial committee took the two company men on a tour of Charleston Wednesday morning, icluding a visit to the industrial park and other possible factory sites. After a luncheon at the Charlestonian the group moved to the Chamber conference room for a presentation of the city's 'industrial package."

Mr. Ponder said the firm seems definitely interested in locating here, provided the town can find a way to provide them with a low - cost building of 20,000 square feet. As many as 150 persons would be employed after the plant went into full production.

The chairman said the manufacturer wants a two - year lease with options to renew for three and five - year periods. This expansion policy was adopted when the second plant was built three and one - half years ago, Ponder explained.

Because of the short - term nature of the original lease, Ponder said, it might be necessary for said, it might be necessary for the community to raise part of the money for plant construction by subscrption, instead of floating industrial bonds.

"In any case," Ponder said, "we told the firm that we can provide them with a building, and we will await their decision, which could come by April 1."

The firm's representatives flew to Charleston accompanied by Bob Head and Jack Hill of the state Commerce and Industrial Development Division.

Awarded: Distinguished Flying Cross

Theater: Republic of Vietnam

Reason: For heroism while participating in aerial flight evidenced by voluntary action above and beyond the call of duty in the Republic of Vietnam. Major Shearon distinguished himself on 12 June while serving as Pilot of a UH-1H helicopter engaged in combat support of elements of the 4th Infantry Division in the Central Highlands. Although adverse weather and terrain hindered helicopter employment, Major Shearon successfully evaded intense hostile automatic weapons and mortar fire in the landing zone numerous times throughout the day long combat and resupply mission. Major Shearon was subjected to intense enemy mortar and rocket fire not only at the landing zone but also at the pick-up area. When 50 calibre fire severaly wounded the pilot of the aircraft in front of Major Shearon, causing the aircraft commander to assume control of the aircraft as it verred off its final approach. Major Shearon's clam and professional actions during the critical time made possible the successful accomplishment of his mission. During each subsequent insertion of troops and ammunition, he displayed great courage and professional skill. Major Shearon's gallantry under hostile fire and exemplary devotion to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army.

Authority: By direction of the President under the provisions of the Act of Congress, approved 2 July 1926.

Red Peppers To Elect New Leaders For 69—70

MONTH OF MARCH brings cold winds, the beginning of spring, the end of the third quarter, and--Red Pepper elections.

Each year at this time anxious girls begin thinking seriously about whether or not they will run for a Red Pepper office or cheerleading position.

These girls energetically begin campaigning, practicing, and worrying.

Before making their decision to run, however, these girls should ask themselves a few basic questions.

Among these questions should be how much the girls think of the Red Pepper organization and how enthusiastic they are about the sports in which the Bulldogs participate.

There are endless details involved in running a large organization efficiently. It is up to the officers, with the help of their sponsors, to see that these things are done.

Officers and especially cheerleaders must have a genuine enthusiasm for their school, team, and the organization. They should be willing to attend as many sport functions as possible.

The Red Pepper organization is the finest group of girls ever assembled. They share a common bond that goes much farther than their red and black uniforms.

A Red Pepper is a member of more than just a pep club. She is a part of an association of girls who like to have fun.

Red Peppers is a state of mind. It is like the feeling that can come to a person as he hears "The Red and the Black" for the last time his senior year.

A girl who sees Red Peppers as a "big bore, or as a group of silly rules" is definitely not the type of girl who should run for an office or cheerleading position. She should quit the organization and rid herself of all the trouble.

Girls who view Red Peppers as a status symbol should also rule out running.

Whoever is chosen to lead the organization throughout the '69-70 school year will need the cooperation of all Peppers.

If you run for an office, hoping to change Red Peppers, be careful--you might find out how much it means to you just the way it is.

----Denise Hipes

Sikeston Students To Take ITED Test Next Week

Upperclassmen Will Take Quiz Thursday; Other Grades, Friday

Iowa Tests of Educational Development will be administered to Sikeston high school seniors and juniors Thursday and to sophomores and freshmen on Friday.

Freshmen and sophomores will not report to school Thursday, and the two upper classes will be given their free day on Friday.

These exams are compiled of nine objective tests designed to provide a comprehensive and dependable description of the general educational development of the high school student.

Also included are examinations and interpretation of reading materials in the natural sciences, interpretation of literary materials, vocabularly and use of sources of information.

Achievement in the social concepts, natural sciences and correctness and appropriateness of reading materials in the social sciences is measured by the test.

Iowa Test of Educational Development is designed to measure fundamental general abilities.

Students are requested to bring two soft lead pencils and a book to read if the test is completed before the allotted time.

Students will take the test in their respective homerooms.

Scores on these tests are used as one of the determining factors in the placement of a student with reference to grouping and selection of courses of study.

This exam is given during the last quarter of each school year to all high school students. This is the 12th consecutive year for the test to be given in Sikeston high school.

Sikeston Students Take Book Exhibit Contains 400 New Volumes

Books on Exhibit, a national exhibiting-promotional enterprise, will present its 18th annual exhibit of selected literary works of the past year in the Sikeston high school library Monday through Wednesday.

Over 400 volumes will be presented. Titles are covered by an annotated, curriculum-related, fully indexed catalogue.

Collection is broken down into 20 main and more than 60 sub-classifications.

High school titles include problems of democracy, windows of the world, modern history, science and man, literary heritage, essays and fiction.

Mrs. Lorraine Larance, assistant librarian, stated, "This is obviously the most modern Books on Exhibit display we have held. It is informative, as well as being enjoyable."

Sophs' Choice

Bill Branum was chosen by his fellow classmates to be Sikeston's representative to the annual sophomore pilgrimage in Jefferson City April 7-8.

Prissy Nunnelee was selected as alternate.

Upper 20 per cent of the sophomore class was eligible for this event. Faculty voted on the list and narrowed it to 25 students. Final vote was made in homerooms Tuesday.

Activities for the day include a tour of the state capitol building.

Sophomores will have an opportunity to visit the legislative chambers, the museum in the lobby of the capitol, and the executive mansion.

Sponsored by the Missouri Federated Women's Club, the purpose of the trip is to "promote better citizenship and provide a view of state government in action."

Sikeston Bands Serve As Hosts To Area Groups

Annual spring band festival of the eastern division, SEMO High School Band Association, was held Wednesday at the Sikeston high school field house.

Over 500 band students from seven area schools worked during the day under the direction of professor Paul Shahan of Murray State University.

Each band rehearsed individually during the day and other schools observed their clinic sessions. Area bands attending were Scott Central, Oran, Kelly, Matthews, Charleston, East Prairie, and three Sikeston bands. Charleston was the only other band with a multiple entry, including their freshman band.

Late Division Band Concert Is Tonight

Late division band, directed by Keith Collins, will present its annual spring concert tonight in the cafetorium at 8 o'clock.

DeMaris, Noles, Roberts, Price Attend Convention

Seniors Judy Price, Kay DeMaris, Tevis Noles, and Jerry Roberts attended the state convention of Distributive Education Clubs of America in Columbia Monday and Tuesday. Sponsor Gerald Jackson accompanied the group.

Each student was entered in various contests during registration activities.

Contests were held Monday afternoon ith the finals Tuesday morning.

Kay and Jerry were finalists in job interview and window display respectively. Each received a number two rating.

Judy was awarded a number three rating in advertising layout and design. She was also interviewed for the national leadership conference in Atlantic City to be a senior delegate from the state of Missouri.

Students were entertained Monday evening at a banquet held in the Student Union on the campus of the University of Missouri.

Several speakers talked to the group, and awards were presented to the contest winners.

Students continued the competition in the contests Tuesday morning. Award luncheon was held with the final presentation of the awards.

Jackson high school received the club of the year award.

Students from Mexico and Jackson high schools received the boy and girl awards of the year.

Sikeston students returned home Tuesday afternoon.

Carl Wright Is First Vice-Pres. Of Dist. Meeting

Carl Wright, instructor of social studies in Sikeston high school, was elected first vice-president of the Southeast Missouri District Teachers Association at the 93rd annual meeting last week.

Mr. Wright has a wide background in both education and business.

He graduated from Carbondale high school, and received his B.S. degree from Southern Illinois University in 1932, and his master's degree from the University of Missouri in 1964. He also has many hours of graduate work.

His teaching career began as superintendent of schools at Cave-In-Rock, Ill., where he remained four years, after which he served as principal of grades at Royalton, Ill.

He entered the business field in the late 1930's, and spent 12 years with Prudential Life Insurance company. In 1950, he became district manager of Nas-Kelvinator corporation, where he remained for six years.

In 1956, he re-entered the teaching field, when he became a teacher of social studies in Sikeston high school and commuted from his home in Cape Girardeau each day.

While in high school and college, he won a total of 182 medals in track, and lettered on varsity teams 20 times. In his senior year of high school he was captain of the football, basketball, and track teams, and lettered in each of the sports three years.

Mr. Wright is a member of NEA, MSTA, Phi Delta Kappa, Kappa Delta Pi, and SCTA. He is presently serving on the welfare committee and is president of the Community Teachers Association.

He was born in Poplar Bluff and resides with his wife in Cape

Thompson, Hipes, Struwe, Spitzmiller Are Speakers For Honor Society Meet

Seniors Denise Hipes, Mike Struwe, Tonja Thompson, and Gene Spitzmiller are speakers for the National Honor Society Induction. Induction will begin at 8 p.m. in the high school cafetorium next Saturday night.

Theme chosen for the induction is "Seek New Horizons." Theme topics include talks on character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

Denise Hipes will speak on character. "Character is the way you regard yourself, your life, and your world," said Denise.

Gene Spitzmiller will speak on scholarship, Tonja Thompson on leadership, and Mike Struwe will speak on service.

Chosen on the basic of their scholastic achievement, character, leadership and service to their school and community, the inductees will be presented official invitations in the near future by senior members of the chapter.

Final selection of the students will be determined by a point system. Persons in the upper percentages of their classes were asked to complete a list of their activities and awards for which they will be given points.

Service point slips were presented to senior, junior, and sophomore students Monday after school.

Executive committee consisting of Gene Spitzmiller, Rod Taylor, Mike Struwe, Gary Long, Barbara Nall, Phyllis Ford and Mrs. Catherine Matthews, sponsor, will tabulate the points to obtain the class averages.

New members will be accepted in the order of their class rank as long as they have the required number of points for their class.

Committe chairmen for the ceremony are Martha Bucher, decorations; Mary Anne Sappenfield, programs; Eddie Troop, candles and chairs; and Tishy Wagner, refreshments.

Education Is Background For Success In Future

IN TODAY'S WORLD of mechanization and change no one can be sure of his future. Regardless of how well organized one may have his life's plans, he cannot be sure how they will develop.

In years to come many jobs will be replaced by machines. Those who show that they are able to accept the responsibility will be chosen for the higher and better paying positions.

In a short time--perhaps too short--240 seniors will step into the world of business or further education. As adults seeking greater knowledge, they will also be striving for pride and satisfaction in all they do.

Even though the future is uncertain one should tackle it with self-confidence. Many problems will arise that will take wisdom and understanding to solve.

Students will gain wisdom and better understanding of these situations as his education continues. Each person is urged to do his very best each day and never give up working for the highest goals.

One will meet many different kinds of people--all with ideas different from his own. Individuals should always stick to what he thinks is right, no matter how strongly he is opposed.

Many people today are afraid to state their beliefs either because they do not know enough about a particular subject to discuss it, or they do not have enough knowledge to back their ideas.

By the time a person reaches high school age, his ideas are usually definitely established; but a person who wished to be successful and accepted will not be so stubborn or narrow-minded as to refuse to change his ideas when another's view seems to be a wiser choice.

Those who are most likely to succeed are the ones who realize the value of their education and make the most of it, the ones who stick by their ideas when they feel they are right, and those who face responsibility and change in the modern world of today.

SOGGY SPRING

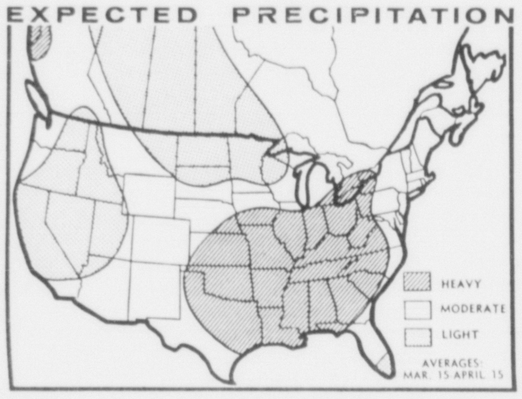
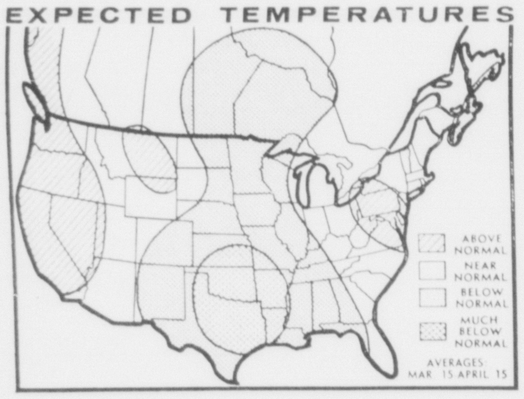
Maps show Weather Bureau's forecast of average temperature, precipitation for period thru April 15.

EXPECTED PRECIPITATION



Easter spirits may be dampened in areas of the South, the Ohio Valley and the middle Mississippi Valley where heavy precipitation is expected.

EXPECTED TEMPERATURES



Spring will get a cool start in the Mississippi Valley, central and southern Plains and East Gulf states where below-normal temperatures are forecast.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THIS EXTREMELY compact one-bedroom Florida retirement home has five rooms plus two porches and a carport, yet needs a front of only 45 feet and will even fit on a 40-foot-wide lot and still meet stringent zoning requirements. Economical back-to-back plumbing brings together around one central installation the kitchen, the bathroom and the hot water heater. Heating is via centrally located dual oil-fired wall furnace or by electric ceiling heat. Plan HA552R features a long, high, spacious cross-ventilated living-dining room 25 feet deep with sliding glass doors at each end connecting to screened porches. The kitchen's L-shaped work counter is hidden from the living area's view. The house has 764 square feet of living space. Architect is Jan Reimer, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla.

PRECIOUS WATER flows from a wall faucet in India and an old man cups his hands to drink. Hundreds of thousands of citizens were saved from the ravages of drought in the Indian states of Bihar and Uttar Pradesh through the efforts of the government and UNICEF. The government authorized the drilling of 6,500 hand-pump wells in Bihar and several thousand more in Uttar Pradesh. UNICEF provided foodstuffs, vehicles, drugs, equipment and base training costs for the well drilling.

The WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Save a place in the sun of your 1969 garden for a new hybrid tomato that is very resistant to verticillium and fusarium wilts, two troublesome diseases.

This early tomato, named Burpee's VF Tomato, is the result of 15 years of research at Fordhook Farm trial grounds.

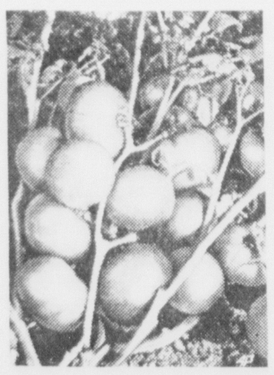
The new hybrid is described as an abundant producer of medium-large, rich red, firm, meaty, small-cored fruits. The tomatoes are smooth and extremely crack-resistant. They may be left on the vine to ripen their full flavor. The plants are fine for staking and have heavy foliage to protect large, close fruit clusters.

The tomatoes are ready for picking 72 days after plants are set out.

* * *

Primitive types of tomatoes are believed to have originated in Peru. And resistance to both fusarium wilt and verticillium were found in early Peruvian tomatoes. Through extensive inbreeding, hundreds of crosses and selective testing for many years, the disease-resistant traits were transferred to large hybrid fruits.

Feed hybrids a bit more than you would other types of tomatoes. Apply fertilizer when transplanting and when plants begin to bloom.



RESISTANT TOMATO

Ultra Low Volume Spraying

There is always the risk of harmful side effects to plants, animals, soil and water from spraying plants with pesticides. Without pesticides, however, insects would cause severe damage to crops and prices would mount.

With this paradox in mind, the Michigan State University Agricultural Experiment Station is working to eliminate harmful pesticides from insect control. This includes study of systematic application (in the plant rather than on foliage), and reduced dosages on the plants. Another search is on for good nonchemical pest controls.

One technique is ultra low volume spraying, which greatly cuts residues of applications and makes considerable savings in spray costs.

As an example, in 1964 it cost $4.70 per acre to spray Michigan grain crops against cereal leaf beetle. In 1966 the cost had been reduced to 24 cents through ultra low volume spraying in which only four ounces of undiluted malathion were applied per acre.

This saved $3 million in Michigan in 1966, a three-fold return on the $190,000 invested in this research over two years.

The same technique is being used on fruit crops and Christmas trees.

The university scientists are plotting the life and death of many insects — to seek to eliminate as many as 90 to 95 per cent of insects before they become adults.

Early studies, they report, show a one per cent increase in the annual death rate of insects would eventually reduce populations to tolerable levels, and in many cases eliminate the need for chemical control.

Political Boss Leander Perez Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Leander H. Perez Sr., a short tempered political czar once excommunicated by the Roman Catholic Church for resisting racial integration, is dead at the age of 77. The multimillionaire boss of oil-rich Plaquemines Parish, whose wrath at various times centered on Negroes, Jews, political opponents and the U.S. Navy, was stricken with a heart attack Wednesday night at his Idlewild plantation.

He had been released Monday from a New Orleans hospital where he was treated for a heart attack suffered on Jan. 10.

Perez once declared he would oppose racial integration "til death." He was excommunicated in 1962 for blocking the opening of a Plaquemines parochial school which had admitted Negroes.

In 1966 a federal court issued a decree integrating the public schools of Plaquemines Parish, a low-lying area extending from south of New Orleans along the Mississippi River to the Gulf of Mexico. Perez, longtime president of the Parish Council, was placed under injunction not to interfere.

The injunction was still in force when he died.

In 1963 Perez tangled with the U.S. Navy, which has an air station within the parish at Belle Chasse, over the integration of bars and other public places in the area.

Perez had the Parish Council declare all drinking places off limits to uniformed servicemen and the air station off limits to all civilians.

"We say to hell with you," he told the Navy.

Perez also threatened to bar about 100 children of air station personnel from public schools, but relented when threatened with court action.

In the 1968 presidential election Perez backed the third party candidate, former Albama Gov. George C. Wallace, who carried Louisiana.

Politically, Perez dominated Plaquemines Parish for more than 40 years. For much of that time he also controlled neighboring St. Bernard Parish, but his grip there loosened in recent years because of an influx of new residents from New Orleans.

The two sons survive, along with two daughters, three sisters, 19 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Homestead Air Base Beefs Up Its Warplane Strike Force

The United States is doubling its warplane strike force at Homestead Air Force Base, south of Miami, across the Florida Straits from Communist Cuba.

Why:

The Pentagon does not say why. It says merely that the 4531st Tactical Fighter Wing at Homestead is being doubled in size with F4D Phantom fighter - bombers - which Air Force spokesmen call "the hottest thing that is operational right now."

But why does the United States want 60 to 72 of the big figher - bombers at Homestead, only 225 miles from Cuba, instead of sending them to Viet Nam or Thailand?

-A Soviet arms buildup in Cuba beginning late last year.

-The recent Kosygin- Castro talks in Havana.

-Repeated U.S. denial of a pledge never to invade Cuba.

- Recent announcements concerning Panama Canal treaties.

- An increase in Communist guerrilla activity in Latin America.

-Venezeula's determined effort for collective OAS action against Cuba.

Not all these developments necessarily are related to the buildup at Homestead, which served as the nerve center of military operations during the 1962 missile crisis with Cuba. But they all point toward increased tension between this country and the Cuban regime.

The Defense Department denies the Homestead buildup has anything to do with a reported arms buildup in Cuba and even denies any knowledge of such a development on the island. But it also denied, in the late summer of 1962, knowledge of a missile buildup after Cuban refugees and other groups reported the Russians were installing the weapons.

Seeking the probable reason for the new plane buildup at Homestead, we contacted an organization in Miami which ifts reports coming out of Cuba. A spokesman, who said an ncrease in activity is expected, said that any rumors of another 'Bay of Pigs" type invasion are groundless. He also discounted my connection between denial of the no - invasion pledge - ssued by the State Department after a Khrushchev televised nterview - and the plant buildup.

Any move against the Panama Canal, of course, might bring quick action and anticipation of any such move might result in stationing more warplane strength as near the canal as possible in this country.

The Castro regime, of course, has pushed Communist subversion and guerrilla activities in Latin America an; recently has stepped up the pace in certain areas, particularly Venezuela and Bolivia. Capture of a small Cuban - led landing party in Venezuela has resulted in demands on Caracas for hemispheric action against the Cuban regime.

Meanwhile, the six - day war in the Middle East was a blow to Cuban hopes. The Soviet Union, which had pledged support to Egypt, failed to deliver effective help at the critical point. In effect, Egypt was "dumped."

Regardless of the reports that came out of the Kosygin - Castro meetings, it is highly likely that Aleksei Kosygin's principal business in Cuba was to reassure Cuba and to formulate further plans for guerrilla activity in Latin America. Military nature of the talks is indicated by the fact that of the nine top Cubans conferring with the Soviet premier, five were military men not normally concerned with domestic policy matters.

Cuba has functioned as a training camp for subversives, both Cuban and otherwise, and has been effective in infiltrating them into target countries to engage in terrorist activities. Much of this delivery of subversives is believed to be by submarine - perhaps Soviet.

With the infiltration on the increase, Venezuela demanding action against Cuba action against Cuba and the Soviet Union backing the Cuban effort, the United States is believed to be stepping up its surveillance of sea-borne movements from Cuba. For such surveillance it also needs planes capable of high performance as fighters.

The Cubans presently are using "assault teams" consisting of fast torpedo boats, helicopters and MIG fighters. The F4D Phantoms at Homestead are the answer to the MIGs.

The Phantoms have a range of some 1,300 miles, when loaded. They have a practical strike capability, however, of 450 to 550 miles. This means that the planes at Homestead Air Force Base can move quickly to any point over the Yucatan Channel and as far as Jamaica in the Caribbean to cover the increased surveillance activities. Under certain conditions they could move considerably farther from Homestead.

Movement of the F4D's to Homestead points strongly to the surveillance effort. But should there be a movement of considerable numbers of troops into the area, it will be a safe guess that Cuba is undertaking another missile buildup.

Mr. Paul Bethel of the Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba (CCFC) recently told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee he has reports of missile presence in Cuba from at least 50 witnesses Type and range of the missiles was not definitely established, but he testified that the missiles were not the surface - to - air, short range variety.

LIFE LINES readers may recall that it was the CCFC which first revealed that Russians had installed intermediate range ballistic missiles in Cuba. After weeks of denial, Washington officially recognized the presenc of the miysiles and was faced with the Cuban missile crisis.

Chartered Plane Crash Kills 16

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A chartered plane carrying a group of Tennessee sportsmen on a hunting trip crashed and burned while landing in heavy fog Thursday at New Orleans International Airport and the coroner reported 16 men killed.

"We believe there are 16 dead," said Dr. Charles B. Odom, Jefferson Parish coroner. "It fits in with the number of those on board the plane—27 —three crewmen and 24 passengers." Odom said he believed all the bodies had been removed from the charred aircraft.

Earlier, Fire Chief William Mancuso of Kenner, who helped set up a temporary morgue at the airport, said 19 bodies were visible in the wreckage.

Eleven survivors, none of them in serious condition, were rushed to Ochsner Foundation Hospital. Only three were admitted.

The plane, a DC3, had been sold Wednesday by Avion Corporation to a broker and had been chartered by the West Tennessee Sportsmen's Association.

"A doctor said he counted 10 bodies in sight in the plane," said Jay Charrier, a lineman for the General Aviation Corp. "Myself, I saw about three bodies."

Authorities said the plane came from Memphis and was headed for Belize, British Honduras. It was landing here to refuel and go through customs.

The plane crashed at 7:02 a.m. (CST) on the east-west runway. The crash left a gaping hole in the fuselage, and propellers and other parts were scattered across the runway for 1,000 yards.

Washington Report

By Senator Symington

Senate hearings have uncovered wide differences between various Federal laws and regulations affecting the thousands of citizens who are displaced each year because of Federally funded public works projects.

A bill introduced by Senator Muskie would resolve many of these differences and would be of assistance in solving the kinds of problems which have faced many Missourians in recent years.

This bill would:

--Allow compensation payments where businesses are asked to move to make way for a highway, reservoir, or other project.

--Provide for Federal payment to individual families for some relocation costs.

-Insure that the landowner is given the opportunity to accompany the appraiser during property inspection.

Other provisions are being considered.

Relocation due to Federal projects often places heavy burdens on citizens who must sell their peroperty and find a new home or new farm. During the last ten years, one million families, 180,000 businessmen, and 40,000 farmers have been forced to relocate due to projects sponsored by one or more of 50 Federal agencies.

It would be my hope that every consideration be given by each Federal agency to the needs and problems of individual citizens. Certainly a first step ithe right direction would be to have a fair and unified system of Federal relocation assistance and land acquisition.

NEW FARM CREDIT GOVERNOR — Congratulations are in order for Edwin A. Jaenke who is the new Governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

Mr. Jaenke was agricultural assistant on my staff for several years before being appointed Associate Administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and Vice President of the Commodity Credit Corporation in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Prior to joining my staff he was teaching and doing research in agricultural economics at the University of Missouri.

He is the youngest man to ever hold his new position.

The Board he heads supervises the cooperative Farm Credit System, through which farmers and their cooperatives borrow about $10 billion a year. The System is made up of 12 Federal land banks, 664 Federal land bank associations, 12 Federal intermediate credit banks, 453 local production credit associations, and 13 banks for cooperatives.

Woman Sues Railroad For Unsafe Platform

Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Clara was a blonde beauty standing over six feet tall. She weighed over 200 pounds and each ounce was used to the greatest advantage in providing her with more curves than a road map. And, to accentuate her physical charms, she wore a pair of spiked high heel shoes as she waited patiently on a platform to catch a train.

As fate would have it, however, Clara never caught the train. The railroad company had used some asphalt material to patch up the concrete platform and, as Clara stood on it, one of her heels sank slowly into the asphalt. The result? Statuesque Clara toppled over, broke her ankle and sued the railroad company for her injury.

"Railroad platforms must be safe for passengers," she complained in court. "Obviously, if a woman's heel can sink into the platform, it's not safe."

"There was nothing wrong with the platform," responded a railroad company official, "The trouble was with Clara. She was too much of a good thing. She was more woman than any woman should be."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the railroad company pay hefty Clara for her injury?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that considering Clara's weight and the size of her heel, she would have exerted a downward pressure equal to 1,400 pounds per square inch. Under the circumstances, concluded the judge, she was not a proper measure to determine whether the material used to mend the platform was adequate to make the platform safe for passengers.

Baker Auctions Train Car Truman Used in Campaign

VERNON, Calif. (AP) — The plush railroad car that carried Harry S. Truman coast-to-coast in his 1948 "give 'em hell" presidential campaign will be returned to his home state of Missouri.

On a dusty railroad siding in this industrial Los Angeles suburb, a Kansas City building contractor bid $77,000 Thursday to become the third owner of the midnight blue and gold private car.

"I buy this car on behalf of Alex Barket, who wants to bring it back to Kansas City in honor of the great state of Missouri," cried Robert F. Koste, representative of Metropolitan Construction Co. of Kansas City, as the auctioneer gaveled the lively bidding to a close.

Koste said Barket, board chairman of Metropolitan, "called me Wednesday and told me to run over and look at it. We did and he called that night and said buy it."

As he signed a check for $80,850, including tax, Koste said Barket may place the 28-year-old car in an industrial park, Bryams Ford Park.

"It's part of vanishing America," he said.

Bidding started at $20,000 and quickly spurted upward. Koste's last competitor, Joseph Ellis, a Del Mar, Calif., trailer dealer, withdrew at $76,000. He said he wanted to take the mahogany-paneled l car to the San Diego County Fair as a tourist attraction, charging admission.

Watching the bidding as the seller, Thomas F. Baker, 51, San Francisco land developer and Southeast Missouri cotton planter who purchased the car in 1965. He kept it at a siding in Aspen, Colo., where he was able to cast a fishing line from the observation platform into the Roaring Fork River.

A group of women bidders wanted to travel across the country playing bridge in it.

Emergency Loan Funds Asked for Area Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal emergency and operating loan funds have been asked for some southeast Missouri farmers so that they can plant their spring crops.

In a letter to the President, Missouri senators Stuart Symington and Thomas F. Eagleton, and Rep. William D. Burlison, all Democrats, have asked release of an additional $16 million from the nationwide emergency loan fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Missouri's share of the $16 million would amount to $900,000 in emergency loans, they said.

The three members of congress said that high interest rates and severe crop losses in southeast Missouri last year have caused a credit shortage that has left the FHA as the only source of financing for many farm operators.

In all, they said, $2 million will be needed during the balance of the 1969 fiscal year up to June 30 to meet minimum needs of Missouri farmers unable to obtain loans from any source other than the FHA.

Caldwell Indicted For Counterfeiting

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nelson Eddy Caldwell, a Poplar Bluff, Mo., printer, was charged in a federal indictment returned Thursday with possession of counterfeit money and plates and with passing bogus money to confederates for distribution.

Caldwell was arrested earlier this month by Secret Service agents.

The four - count indictment, reported to U.S. Dist. Judge Roy W. Harper, charged Caldwell with possession on Feb. 3 of 448 bills and on March 4 of 350 bills of $5, $10 and $1 denominations.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Memorial Dedication Event Set

FULTON, Mo. (AP) — The dedication of the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library here May 7 will be a day-long event.

The restored church of St. Mary, Aldermanbury, brought to the campus of Westminster College from the bombed ruins of its site in London, is the center of the memorial. It was in March 1946, that the famous British leader delivered here his "Iron Curtain" speech warning of Soviet post World War II policies.

The principal speech at the dedication will be given by Admiral of the Fleet The Earl Mountbatten of Burma.

Lord Mountbatten and other dignitaries will attend a morning press conference in the restored church.

Dr. Robert L.D. Davidson, president of Westminster, said today that Winston S. Churchill II, grandson of Sir Winston, will attend the news conference with these additional participants:

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, a member of the Churchill Memorial Program Committee; the British ambassador to the United States, John Freeman, and Mrs. Freeman; Mrs. Christopher Soames, wife of the British ambassador to France and the daughter of the late Sir Winston; Missouri Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.

A parade through the streets of Fulton is also listed among dedication activities for the day.

To accommodate newsmen, Westminster College is making available two press rooms, with telephones and special facilities for photographers, television and radio. The director of affairs at the memorial, Virgil Johnston, has been designated to furnish press cards for news media representatives desiring to be accredited for the day's activities.

Gov. Faubus Marries

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Mrs. Elizabeth Westmoreland were married today in a private ceremony in a Baptist church. It came three weeks after his first wife divorced him.

The former governor said he met Mrs. Westmoreland in mid-1967 when she went to his home in Huntsville to discuss "Info '68" a television program for the Democratic party. She was the program's commentator.

Faubus, 59, was divorced March 1 by his wife of 37 years, Alta, and friends had known for some time that he intended to marry the 30-year-old divorcee who has two children, an 11-year-old girl and a 9-year-old boy.

Water Bill Advances to Senate Floor

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A watered down water bill was approved Wednesday by the Senate Conservation Committee.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, committee chairman, said the State Water Resources Board would have the power, after a hearing, to protect reservoir water from waste in order to comply with federal requirements.

The board would also set up a reporting system for use of water of more than 25,000 gallons a day—including groundwater, streams and reservoirs.

Cason said the new bill was designed primarily as a reporting system to find out how Missouri uses its water. The permit system which drew widespread opposition was eliminated.

The committee also approved a bill to require titling of motor boats and one to transfer Round, Alley and Big Spring state parks on the Current and Jacks Fork rivers to the National Park Service as part of the National Scenic Riverways.

The Senate Education Committee approved bills to allow Jackson County to establish special schools for the handicapped and one to change school board election dates in Kansas City.

The committee also considered a measure but took no action to increase retirement benefits for teachers in the five state colleges.

Sen. A. Basey Van Landingham, D-Columbia, sponsor, said it would bring those teachers up to a par with teachers in public elementary and high schools. The proposal would cost the state $153,000 the first year and $69,000 the next two years. Both the state and teachers would have to increase their contributions to the retirement fund.
